PREFACE.

IN the text of this edition the MSS. have been followed rather than the emendations of editors, unless there seemed to be weighty reasons to the contrary. In places, however, where A is certainly corrupt, the testimony of Donatus or other Scholiasts as to readings earlier than those in the Calliopian MSS. has been sometimes accepted, when supported by intrinsic probability. In all but a few cases the limits of space have precluded a full statement of the arguments for and against doubtful readings, but in no instance has a decision been made without careful consideration of all sides of the question.

In a School edition it has been thought better to print the letter v, and to adopt the modernised spelling of the MSS., except where the orthography in Terence's time was demonstrably different: e.g. o is substituted for u after another u or v; quor, quoius, quoi, etc., appear for cur, cuius, cui, etc., and -is for -es in the accusative plural of such words of the third declension as form the genitive plural in -ium.

As regards the spelling of verbs or adjectives compounded with prepositions no rigid uniformity has been observed, because none existed in the republican period. Assimilation took place in the commoner words, and in certain combinations of letters (e.g. m and p), much earlier than in others. Accordingly conraditur is read, but comparatum (40-1), and so on. In this respect the text follows that of Fleckeisen.

This Play, like its three predecessors in the same series, has been carefully expurgated for use in Schools.

It is hoped that the stage directions, which have been mainly suggested by practical experience at Westminster, may be of real service. As my opportunities of studying this aspect of the Play were unique, I have endeavoured to make this part of the edition as complete as possible.

Constant use has been made of the editions of Umpfenbach, Fleckeisen, Dziatzko, Wagner, Bond and Walpole,—the first two on textual questions only,—with less frequent reference to those of Bentley, Zeune (containing the commentaries of Donatus), Stallbaum, Parry, and Davies.

I have to thank my former fellow-worker, C. E. Freeman, Esq., of Park House School, Southborough, to whose accurate scholarship our editions of the Trinummus and Andria owed so much, for his courteous permission to make use of any matter which appeared in one of the Plays above mentioned as our joint production. I must also express my obligations to the Rev. R. F. Dale for his kindness in reading through the notes and making some valuable suggestions.

INTRODUCTION.

ROMAN COMEDY AND TERENCE.

First beginnings of Dramatic Representations at Rome.

The natural bent of the Roman character was too serious and too prosaic to favour the growth of a national drama. More than five hundred years had elapsed since the foundation of the city, before a play of any kind was produced on the Roman stage, and even then it was but a rude adaptation of a foreign work by a foreign author.

Fescennine Verses. Yet there had long existed the germs whence a drama might, under other circumstances, have sprung. The unrestrained merriment of the harvest-home at time of vintage found expression, in Latium as in Greece, in extemporised dialogues more or less metrical in character, and much more than less coarse in expression. The lively genius of the Greeks had from such rude beginnings developed a regular Comedy as early as the sixth century B.C. But, among the Romans, although these rustic effusions were at a very early date sufficiently well established to receive a definite name, Carmina Fescennina, from Fescennia, a town in Etruria; yet they never rose above gross personalities and outrageous scurrility¹. When this license was checked by a stringent clause in the Laws of the Twelve Tables, the Fescennine verses became merely a generic name for improvised songs, not always very refined, at weddings, triumphs, or other festal occasions.

Saturae. According to Livy 7. 2, the first 'ludi scenici' were introduced at Rome 361 B.C. to appease the anger of the gods who had sent a pestilence on the city.

It seems certain that about this time a stage was erected in the Circus at the Ludi Maximi, and the first three days of the festival were henceforth occupied with recitations, music and dancing. Performers from Etruria, called ludiones, danced to the music of the flute without words or descriptive action; but the strolling minstrels of Latium (grassatores, spatiatores) soon took advantage of the stage to recite their chants with appropriate music and gesture. These performances were named from their miscellaneous character Saturae¹. They were composed in the rugged Saturnian metre, with no connected plot, and did not admit of dialogue.

Fabulae Atellanae. A nearer approach to dramatic form was made in the Fabulae Atellanae, broad farces with stock characters, e. g. Maccus, Pappus, Bucco, and Dossenus, analogous to the clown, pantaloon, and harlequin of an English pantomime. Each character had its traditional mask, and the pieces were originally played only by amateurs at private theatricals; but when translations from Greek dramas had monopolised the Roman stage, the Atellan farce was adopted as

*In rabiem coepit verti iocus, et per honestas Ire domos impune minax. Doluere cruento
Dente lacesciti, fuit intactis quoque cura
Condicione super communi, quin etiam lex
Poenaque lata, malo quae nollet carmine quemquam
Describi: vertere modum formidine fustis
Ad bene dicendum delectandumque redacti.*

¹ From lanx satura, a dish of mixed food. The later Saturae or Miscellanies, with which we are familiar from the works of Horace, Juvenal, and Persius, were introduced by Lucilius, who died 103 B. C. Cf. Hor. Sat. 1. 10.

an after-piece, like the Satyric drama among the Greeks, and was regularly performed by professional actors. The name Atellanae, from Atella, an Oscan town near Capua, gave rise to the erroneous supposition that these farces were performed at Rome in the Oscan dialect ; whereas it was only in accordance with Roman custom to give to dramatic performances a local name which could offend no national prejudices. The records of these plays are scanty, but they appear to have presented extravagant caricatures of special classes, trades, or occurrences, and their grotesque situations and lively humour secured them a lasting place in popular favour.

Laws regulating Dramatic Performances. The failure of the Romans to produce a national drama was due, not only to their national 'gravity,' but also to the rigid censorship of the laws. Any personal lampoon, any ill-advised criticism of public affairs, met with summary chastisement. 'Fuste feritor' was the laconic edict of the Twelve Tables : and the magistrates seem to have had plenary power to scourge any actor at any time or place that they deemed fit.

Public opinion at Rome. To legal harshness was added a moral stigma. No Roman citizen could venture to appear on a public stage without losing his character for ever. (The composition and performance of plays were handed over entirely to freedmen and slaves,) who did not dare to represent Roman life, or introduce Roman topics. Even the rustic raillery and amateur farces of early Rome had to lay their scene in Tuscan Fescennia or Oscan Atella.

Contact with Greek civilisation. Moreover, in addition to a national deficiency of literary instinct and ignominious legal penalties, a third cause had operated powerfully in checking any development of dramatic originality. For nearly five centuries the Romans had been engaged in a varying, yet almost ceaseless struggle for supremacy, or even for existence. The defeat of Pyrrhus, 274 B.C., and the final conquest of Tarentum and the other cities of Magna Graecia a few years later, left them undisputed masters of the whole peninsula. They were thus brought into close contact with Greek civilisation at the very moment when they had leisure to attend to it. There began at once to arise an ever-increasing demand for a better education for the Roman youth, and for more varied amusements for the Roman populace. The satisfaction of these demands was delayed by the First Punic War, 264-241 B.C.

Livius Andronicus. In 240 B.C. Livius Andronicus, a Tarentine captive who received his freedom for educating the sons of Livius Salinator, produced on the Roman stage¹ a drama translated from the Greek. He also translated the Odyssey into Saturnian verse as an educational text-book, which was still in use in the boyhood of Horace². Thus at Rome the beginnings both of Epic and Dramatic poetry were due not so much to poetical inspiration as to the needs of the school-room and the Circus. As might be expected in work thus done to order, there was little artistic merit. The few fragments which remain seem crude and barbarous, and we may well believe that the books were never again opened when the rod of an Orbilius was no longer dreaded.

Old Athenian Comedy. There could be no doubt as to the school of Attic Comedy to be chosen for imitation. The Old Comedy of Eupolis, Cratinus or Aristophanes, essentially political in its subjects, abounding in topical allusions and trenchant satire of public men and public matters, could not have been reproduced on a Roman stage.

Middle Comedy. Even the poets of the Middle Comedy, who satirised classes rather than individuals or travestied schools of philosophy, would have seemed to the stern censors of the Republic far too free, and would have been almost unintelligible to the majority of Romans.

New Comedy. The New Comedy was alone available. This was the name given to a school of dramatists, of whom the best known are Philemon, Diphilus, Apollodorus of Carystus, and above all Menander. They wrote at a period (340-260 B.C.) when the power of Macedon had crushed the liberty of Greece. Political life was dead; social life was idle and corrupt. The natural products of such a period of decay were the 'Society' plays of the New Comedy. Their aim was merely to give amusing sketches of every-day life¹. The savage satire of Aristophanes only survived in good-humoured banter. The keen strife of Conservatism against Democracy was replaced by intrigues of amorous youths or crafty slaves to outwit the head of the family. The interest of these plays was not local but cosmopolitan. Human nature is pretty much the same in all ages, and so these plays were naturally suited for the Roman stage. They were amusing, without the slightest tendency to criticise points of national interest, or otherwise offend against the strict regulations of the Roman magistrates.

Cn. Naevius, 235-204 B.C., the first imitator of Livius Andronicus, a Campanian of great ability and force of character, did indeed dare to write with something of Aristophanic freedom. But his temerity in assailing the haughty Metelli, and even the mighty Africanus himself, led first to imprisonment and afterwards to banishment. The experiment was not repeated.

Plautus and Terence. Between 230 and 160 B.C. the writers of Comedy were fairly numerous², but only two have bequeathed to posterity more than scattered fragments. These two are Titus Maccius Plautus and Publius Terentius Afer.

Life and Works of Terence. Plautus died in 184 B.C. Terence was born in 195 B.C. at Carthage, whence his cognomen 'Afer.' He was a slave, but must early have shown signs of ability, for his master, Terentius Lucanus, gave him a good education, and before long his freedom. His talents gained him admission to the literary clique, known as the Scipionic circle, the fashionable representatives of the new Hellenic culture. Scipio Aemilianus was the centre of the coterie, which included Laelius and Furius Philo, Sulpicius Gallus, Q. Fabius Labeo, M. Popillius, the philosopher Panaetius, and the historian Polybius. These being men of education and taste, unreservedly recognised the immeasurable superiority of Greek literature as compared with the rude efforts of their native writers. To present to a Roman audience a faithful reproduction of the best Hellenic models, in pure and polished Latin, seemed to them the ideal of literary excellence. Style was more valued than strength, correctness of form more than originality of thought. Such was the literary atmosphere which Terence breathed; and his enemies, not confining themselves to gross aspersions on his moral character, openly affirmed that the plays produced under his name were really the work of his distinguished patrons. How far Scipio or Laelius may have had some hand in his plays can never be known; Terence at any rate did not care to refute the report which doubtless flattered his noble friends, but rather prided himself on the intimacy and approbation of so select a circle¹. All the plays of Terence, as of Plautus, were Comoediae palliatae, i. e. plays wherein the scene and characters are Greek, as opposed to Comoediae togatae, where the scene is laid in Rome or at least in Italy. Praetextatae was a name given to historic or tragic plays.

Terence's first comedy, the Andria, was produced 166 B.C. Suetonius relates that when this play was offered to the Aediles, the young author was told to submit it to the judgment of Caecilius. Terence arrived when the veteran poet was at supper, and being in mean attire was seated on a stool near the table. But he had read no more than a few lines, when Caecilius bade him take a place upon his couch, and bestowed high commendation on the play. As Caecilius died in 168 B.C., the Andria must have been in manuscript at least two years before its performance, and some colour is given to the above anecdote by the mention which Terence makes in the Prologue of the ill-natured criticisms of Luscius Lanuvinus. The Hecyra, his second play, proved his least successful one. At its first performance in 165 B.C., the audience deserted the theatre to look at some boxers; a similar fate attended a second representation in 160 B.C., and only the personal intercession of the manager, Ambivius Turpio, secured it a hearing at all. The Heauton Timorumenos appeared in 163, the Eunuchus and Phormio in 161, the Adelphi in 160. In the same year Terence visited Greece, either to study for himself Athenian manners and customs, or, as some assert, to escape the persecution of his enemies. According to one account¹ he perished by shipwreck in 159 B.C., as he was returning to Italy with no less than 108 of Menander's comedies translated into Latin. A more general belief was that he died at Stymphalus, in Arcadia, from grief on hearing of the loss of his MSS., which he had sent on before him by sea. Porcius Licinus narrates that his noble patrons suffered him to die in such abject poverty that he had not even a lodging at Rome whither a slave might have brought news of his death. This is probably untrue, for Suetonius writes that he left gardens of twenty jugera in extent on the Appian Way, and his daughter afterwards married a Roman knight.

In personal appearance Terence is said to have been of middle height, with a slight figure and reddish-brown hair. Of his character we know nothing, save what can be gathered from his prologues. These indicate a lack of independence and confidence. He evidently feels that he is not a popular poet. He never professes to be more than an adapter from Greek models; imitation, not creation, was the object of his art.

Contrast of Plautus and Terence. The sensitive protégé of patrician patrons has none of the vigorous personality of Plautus. Indeed, though the literary activity of the two poets is only separated by a single generation, their works belong to different epochs of literature. Plautus wrote for the people, he aimed at the broad effect on the stage, his fun was natural and not unfrequently boisterous. Circumstances forced him to adapt foreign plays and lay his scenes in foreign cities, but he was not careful to disguise his true nationality, and freely introduced Roman names, allusions, and customs wherever they might contribute to the dramatic effect on the heterogeneous audience which crowded to the gratuitous entertainments of a Roman holiday.

Between such plays and the polished productions of Terence there is a world of difference. Terence sought the approbation, not of the uncultured masses, but of a select circle of literary men. His highest aim was to produce in the purest Latin a perfect representation of the comedies of Menander and his school. His cardinal virtues, as a writer, were correctness of language and consistency of character. His scene is always laid at Athens, and not once in his six plays is to be found an allusion which is distinctively Roman. Indeed, the whole tone of his writings was cosmopolitan. Human nature, under the somewhat common-place conditions of every-day life in a civilised community, was his subject; Homo sum, humani nihîl a me alienum puto, was his motto. His plays breathe a spirit of broad-minded liberality, and their simple unaffected style, the easy yet pointed dialogue, the terse and dramatic descriptions, and the admirable delicacy of the portrayal of character, won from the cultured taste of the Augustan age a more favourable verdict¹ than could have been expected from the rude and unlettered masses who most enjoyed the broad fun of a boisterous farce. The above characteristics secured for Terence considerable attention at the Renaissance in Europe. In England several of the minor dramatists are under obligations to him; while in France his influence profoundly affected Molière, and is in no small degree responsible for the long-continued servitude of the French drama to the 'unities' of time and place which have so cramped its free development.

As might be expected, the characters in Terence, though admirably drawn, are rather commonplace. No personality in his plays stands out in the memory like that of Tyndarus in the Captivi, or Stasimus in the Trinummus. Two old men, one irascible and the other mild, both usually the dupes of their sons and an intriguing slave; two young men, one of strong character and the other weak, both amorous and somewhat unscrupulous as to the means of gratifying their passion; a dignified and elderly gentleman; an anxious mother; a devoted servant; a rascally slave dealer: these form the stock characters of Terentian comedy and recur with somewhat wearisome monotony. Nor does the standard of morality rise above a conventional

Terentio non similem dices quempiam.

Cicero writes:

*Tu quoque, qui solus lecto sermonc, Terenti, Conversum expressumque Latina voce Menandrum
In medium nobis sedatis vocibus effers, Quidquid come loquens atque omnia dulcia dicens.*

Horace, Ep. 2. 1. 59, records the general verdict:

dicitur . . .

Vincere Caecilius gravitate, Terentius arte.

Volcatius, on the other hand, places Terence below Naevius, Plautus, Caecilius, Licinius, and Atilius.

respectability and a civilised consideration for others, except where the natural impulses inspire a generous disposition with something of nobility.

The discerning criticism of Caesar nearly expresses the more matured judgment of modern times :

*Tu quoque, tu in summis, O dimidiata Menander, Poneris et merito, puri sermonis amator.
Lenibus atque utinam scriptis adiuncta foret vis Comica, ut aequato virtus polleret honore Cum Graecis neque in hac despectus parte iaceres; Unum hoc maceror ac doleo tibi deesse, Terenti.*

Not that Terence was devoid of humour ; but his humour is so delicate and refined that it must often have fallen flat upon the stage. When his plays are well known their subtle satire and polished wit can be appreciated ; but there is without doubt an absence of energy and action (Caesar's vis comica), which prevented his pieces from being dramatically successful. An audience must be educated up to his plays before it can perceive their many excellences.

THE PLOT AND CHARACTERS OF THE PHORMIO.

The scene of this play is, as usual, laid at Athens. The characters of the two old men, so familiar to readers of Terentian comedy, are represented by the brothers Demipho and Chremes, Athenian citizens of good position and some fortune. The former has a son named Antipho; the latter is husband to Nausistrata, of whom he stands in considerable awe, and father of Phaedria. Nausistrata, who had been married before, has property in the island of Lemnos, whither Chremes goes year by year to collect the rents and realise the produce of the farms. While on one of these visits he clandestinely marries, under the feigned name of Stilpho, a Lemnian lady, and has by her a daughter named Phanium, born sixteen years before the opening scene of the play. This family is supported out of the income derived from the property of Nausistrata, who imagines that it is only one example of Chremes' general incapacity that he brings home so much less money than her former husband.

Demipho is aware of this unlawful connexion, and has moreover agreed to marry his son Antipho to Phanium, passing her off as a distant relation of the family.

The play opens at a time when Demipho and Chremes are both absent from Athens, the former in Cilicia on a visit to an old friend who promised him a most profitable investment, the latter on a journey to Lemnos, whence he intends to bring Phanium for the projected marriage with Antipho. Upon his arrival, however, he finds that both mother and daughter have left the island in search of him. They arrive safely, but being unable to discover any one in Athens named Stilpho, are reduced to great poverty and distress. Overcome by her anxieties the mother falls ill and dies, leaving Phanium in charge of a trusty old nurse, Sophrona.

During this period the two young men Antipho and Phaedria

Act I. In the opening scenes Geta narrates his experiences to his friend Davus. Finding it impossible to control a pair of wild youths, he gives up the attempt, and lets them follow their own devices.

Phaedria first falls violently in love with a music-girl, who turns out afterwards to be an Athenian citizen, but who is now in the hands of a slave-dealer, Dorio, on sale for thirty minae (£120). As Phaedria has no money, he can do nothing but escort his lady-love to and from the school where she is completing her education.

Just at this time Antipho is told a touching story of a beauty in distress at a funeral. He goes to see, and it proves to be none other than Phanium weeping over her mother's corpse.

The young man is at once captivated by her charms, but dares not marry a penniless girl in his father's absence. In his perplexity he lays the case before Phormio, a shrewd parasite, from whom the play is named. Phormio takes up the matter with zest. He has often been entertained at Antipho's house, and has moreover a natural turn for intrigue. Pretending to be a kinsman of Phanium, he trumps up a fictitious story that Antipho is her nearest relation and so by Athenian law under obligation to marry her. Antipho is summoned before the courts, of course makes no attempt to rebut Phormio's evidence, and so is bound over to marry Phanium, which he does forthwith. His happiness is, however, soon clouded by the dread of his father's wrath, and he pours forth his troubles (Sc. 3) into the unsympathetic ears of his cousin, who considers that he himself is alone deserving of pity. Geta now (Sc. 4) brings the news of Demipho's arrival. Antipho cannot be induced to face his father, and runs away, leaving Phaedria and Geta to fight his battles for him.

Both do their best to calm down the irascible old gentleman, who comes on (Sc. 5) fuming at the news of his son's unauthorised marriage. In spite of all that can be said, Act I closes with his determination to seek legal advice and fight the matter out with Phormio.

Act II introduces us to Phormio, who confidently assures Geta that he will make everything all right, and gives a lively picture of a parasite's easy life. The conversation is interrupted by the appearance of Demipho (Sc. 2) with three advisers. Phormio at once assumes a high hand. He defies Demipho to interfere with a judgment formally given in a court of law, and threatens to sue him for heavy damages if he ventures to turn Phanium, as he threatens, out of doors. Demipho is furious, but cannot outface the parasite. (Each of his three friends gives a different opinion, and he is left in a state of greater perplexity than before.) Finally he decides to await his brother's return, and goes off to make enquiries at the Peiræus. Cm
Se

Thereupon Antipho reappears (Sc. 4) and learns from Geta what has occurred. They are quickly joined by Phaedria and Dorio. The slave-dealer has had an offer for the music-girl, and with cynical brutality repudiates his engagement to give Phaedria some time longer to procure the necessary money. The young lover is in the depths of despair, but is somewhat cheered by Geta's promise to raise the thirty minae by hook or by crook.

Act III. In the interval between Acts II and III Chremes has returned. Demipho is explaining to him the position of affairs when Geta appears, prepared to carry out a scheme concocted between himself and Phormio to obtain from the old men the money required by Phaedria. He tells the two fathers that zealous for their interests he has sounded Phormio as to what he would take to get Phanium safely out of the way by marrying her himself. Phormio alleges that he is engaged to another girl, but, as a great favour to Demipho, will throw over his fiancée on payment of the sum of thirty minae as dowry for Phanium.

Demipho is furious at this extravagant demand ; but Chremes, anxious to get his Lemnian daughter married to Antipho and so avoid the awkward questions which might be asked by a stranger, agrees to provide the money from his wife's income. All this has been overheard by Antipho in the background. He is nearly beside himself with anger at what he supposes to be Geta's treachery, and grief at the prospect of being compelled to divorce his young wife. He is only very partially reassured by Geta's explanations, and goes off to tell Phaedria of the scheme and its success as Demipho and Chremes reappear with the money. Geta conducts Demipho to settle matters with Phormio. Chremes, left alone, is considering how he can find out his wife and daughter from Lemnos, when, to his utter amazement, Sophrona, their faithful servant, comes out of Demipho's house. His bewilderment is intensified on hearing that the mother is dead and the daughter married to Antipho. At first he thinks that, in unconscious imitation of his uncle, the young man has married two wives, but when at length he realises that Phormio's ward is one and the same as his own daughter, his joy and thankfulness know no bounds, and he at once goes into his brother's house to see the bride.

In Act IV we find Demipho returning with Geta from his business with Phormio. He fetches Nausistrata from her house, as Chremes had requested that she should be asked to break the news to Phanium with reference to her projected match with Phormio. But as they approach the door out comes Chremes full of excitement at the unlooked-for turn which events have taken. An amusing scene follows. Chremes tries to stop Demipho from taking further action, but cannot give any intelligible reason in Nausistrata's presence. He finally manages to get his wife dismissed, and takes Demipho into the house to communicate his great piece of news. As soon as they have disappeared Antipho enters, quickly followed by Phormio, in high spirits at having secured the money for Phaedria who has lost no time in having his Pamphila formally declared a free citizen. Geta bursts out of the house upon them, beside himself with excitement. By an adroit piece of eaves-dropping he has learnt the secret about Phanium, the importance of which is fully grasped by Phormio, who retires to prepare for the next stage of his intrigue.

Act V opens with a stormy scene between Phormio and the two old gentlemen. The parasite demands Phanium as his bride in accordance with the compact. Demipho says that he has changed his mind and insists that the thirty minae should be refunded. Phormio indignantly refuses, and soundly reviles them both for their childish indecision. Demipho, losing all patience, tries to hurry Phormio off to the law-courts, whereupon the parasite plays his trump card. He openly proclaims his knowledge of Chremes' Lemnian family, and threatens to tell all to Nausistrata. This brings matters to a climax. Demipho and Chremes endeavour to drag Phormio away from the house and a violent struggle ensues, which is ended by the appearance of Nausistrata, summoned by the parasite's stentorian lungs. Chremes, to his utter confusion, has to hear the story of his misdeeds poured into the ears of his injured wife. Nausistrata is wildly indignant, Phormio insolently triumphant. He invites the public to Chremes' 'funeral obsequies,' and further tells of Phaedria's marriage and of the trick by which the purchase money was secured. At this news Chremes begins to fume, but is at once set down with the crushing retort from his imperious spouse that his son might well have one wife, if the father had two. Demipho's mediation at last effects a provisional reconciliation. As a reward for his services, and as a punishment to Chremes, Phormio obtains from Nausistrata an invitation to dinner, of which he will no doubt constantly avail himself, and they all go into the house as the curtain falls.

The story of the Play will have already indicated the main outlines of the several characters. In naming the Play after Phormio, Terence showed a just appreciation of the importance of the part. The individuality of the parasite is strongly marked. Shrewd and unscrupulous as to means, avowedly a 'bird of prey' who lives on the weakness or the vice of his neighbours, he yet displays an active sympathy and bon-homie in his dealings with the young men, which redeem his rascality from utter baseness. He may be a rogue, but he is no hypocrite, like Chremes.

Antipho and Phaedria are rather common-place, and, unlike Aeschinus and Ctesipho in the Adelphi, are very similar in character. Both are frank and affectionate, but entirely wanting in mental ballast or moral principle, the slaves of their passions and mere puppets in the hands of Phormio, or even of the servant Geta.

On the other hand, the personality of the two old gentlemen is sharply drawn and skilfully worked out. Demipho is an irascible miser, with a domineering disposition which ill brooks contradiction, and a love of money which made him ready to expose his brother to public shame rather than submit to the loss of thirty minae.

Chremes is a life-like portrait of a weak and hen-pecked husband. He has no more principle than his son, and much less honesty. For sixteen years he had been practising a criminal deception upon his wife, but he shows no contrition for his abominable conduct, only fear for its detection, and richly deserves the unenviable position in which we leave him.

Nausistrata is a strong-minded shrew, who despised and persecuted her feeble husband, but she seems to have been liberal enough in advancing a large sum to Demipho, nor does she grudge it to Phaedria when she learns the truth. The violence of her temper affords the only extenuation for the infidelity of Chremes, and brings dramatic retribution on her own head.

Of the other characters little need be said. Dorio enjoys the unenviable reputation of being the most repulsive and rascally slave-dealer in Roman Comedy: Geta is faithlessly faithful in helping the young men to cheat his master: Sophrona has the usual characteristic of old nurses depicted by Terence, devoted attachment to her mistress: the 'advocates' are concisely, though unintentionally, humorous.

Artistically considered the Phormio occupies a middle place among the comedies of Terence. In it we find nothing so farcical as the 'baby-scene' in the Andria, nor has it the exquisite polish and pervading moral purpose of the Adelphi. But the dialogue is more pointed and the interest better sustained than in the earlier play, while what is lost in finish is gained in vigour when compared with the later. Molière has made the Phormio the basis of a farce, Les Fourberies de Scapin, but no impartial critic would prefer the copy to the original.

METRES AND PROSODY.

The object of this Introduction is to explain briefly the metres employed by Terence in the Phormio, and to clear up such apparent difficulties of Prosody as may remain after the general scheme of the metres is understood.

These metres are Iambic and Trochaic, which receive their names from being composed of iambi or trochees, as the case may be, or of some other feet, considered to be equivalent: and the lines are further subdivided according to the number of metres which they contain, and according to their complete or incomplete form. In iambic and trochaic lines a series of two feet is called a metre (or dipodia), and the name of the line corresponds to the number of these metres; thus an iambic trimeter is an iambic line containing three metres or six feet; a trochaic tetrameter is a trochaic line containing four metres or eight feet. Again, some lines have a number of complete feet; these are called acatalectic; while others are called catalectic, because the last foot is incomplete. Thus a trochaic tetrameter catalectic is a trochaic line of four metres or eight feet, wanting the last syllable, and really containing only seven feet and a half.

I. IAMBIC.

(a) Iambic Trimeter Acatalectic, or Senarius: (620¹); all the plays of Terence begin with it.

(b) Iambic Tetrameter Acatalectic, called Octonarius from its eight complete feet. (116.)

(c) Iambic Tetrameter Catalectic, called Septenarius from its seven complete feet. (57.)

(d) Iambic Dimeter Acatalectic, or Quaternarius. (3.)

These lines consist in their pure form of iambs; but the spondee, tribrach, anapaest, and dactyl are admitted in all feet except the last, which must be an iambus, unless, of course, the verse is catalectic. Moreover, as the Tetrameter is regarded as being composed of two verses, with the division after the fourth foot, that foot is usually an iambus; and such words as ego, tibi, cedo, are allowed to stand there as if at the end of a senarius. In any iambic metre an anapaest is occasionally resolved into a Proceleusmatic (∪∪∪), which is most commonly in the first foot, and composed of two distinct pairs of syllables. Cf. 48, 133, 276, 370, 394, 707, 733, 762, 768, 776, 795, 966, 968, 983, 999.

II. TROCHAIC.

(a) Trochaic Tetrameter Acatalectic, or Octonarius. (19.)

(b) Trochaic Tetrameter Catalectic, or Septenarius. (237.)

(c) Trochaic Dimeter Catalectic. (2.)

These lines consist in their pure form of trochees; the spondee, tribrach, anapaest, and dactyl are also admitted. But only the trochee, tribrach, and sometimes dactyl are found in the seventh foot of the Septenarius; and the eighth foot of the Octonarius is always a trochee or spondee. In Trochaic Septenarii the last syllable is always considered as long: cf. 318, 319, 321. Trochaic, like Iambic Tetrameters, are considered to be divided after the fourth foot, but in neither metre is this division constantly observed. As the Trochaic metre is more quick and lively than the Iambic, it is naturally employed in scenes where strong feeling and excitement are represented.

Besides the above, 485 is an irregular line, apparently consisting of one trochee with a syllable over.

PROSODY.

The rules of prosody, as commonly taught, must be considerably modified, if we are to understand the scansion of Plautus and Terence. It must always be remembered that the poets of the late days of the Republic and their successors were writing in a literary dialect, not in the language of everyday life. The quantity of any syllable was regarded as rigidly fixed, just as we might find it marked in a dictionary. But in reading the comic poets we find that accent must be considered as well as quantity. Scansion was determined by the ear, not by any hard and fast rules. Just as in Shakesperian verse loved may be scanned as of one syllable or of two, and the same word may be pronounced as long or short according to its position, so in Terence eius, huius, quouis, etc., may be monosyllabic or dissyllabic, and the same syllable may be used with a different quantity according to the requirements of the metre. This latter variation of quantity is however not arbitrary, but conforms to a general law, which may be thus stated.

When the metrical accent¹ falls on the first syllable of an Iambus, or on the syllable before or after an Iambus, the second syllable of the Iambus may be shortened.

Accordingly in Iambic metre,

$$(a) - \acute{ } - = - \acute{ } \cup, \quad (b) \cup - \acute{ } = \cup \cup \acute{ }:$$ in Trochaic metre,

$$(c) \acute{ } \cup - = \acute{ } \cup \cup,$$

$$(d) \acute{ } - - = \acute{ } \cup -, \quad (e) \acute{ } - \cup = \acute{ } \cup \cup.$$

It will be noted that in the following examples some of the shortened syllables would by the ordinary rules be long by nature, others long by position.

(a) 10 actóris opera mágīs stettisse.

787 factúm volo : ac pol mínus queo virī cúlpa, quám me dignum est. (Here virī illustrates b.)

922 argéntum rúrsum iúbě rescribi, Phórmio.

(b) 143 vel öcciditö.

261 darī mi in conspéctum.

266 hic in nóxia est, ille ad défendéndam cáusam adést.

434 seněctútem oblétet.

The following are in Proceleusmatics :—

370 ob hánc inimicitias.

707 anguis per inplúvium decídít.

This form of shortening, i. e. where the accent falls on the syllable after the iambus, is by far the most frequent, and is very common in the first foot. Examples are too numerous to quote at length.

(c) 529 nam híc me huiús modī scíbat ésse.

557 quántum opus ést tibi árgénti.

739 cónloquár. quis híc lóquitur.

(d) 209 quíd híc contérimus óperam.

564 scío ésse exánimatám metu.

(e) 342 priór bibás, priór decúmbas.

346 seněx adést : vidě quíd agas. (Here vidě illustrates c.)

563 númquid ést quód operá mea vóbis ópūs sit. Níl, verum ábí domum. (Here ést illustrates c., and ópūs illustrates d.)

Some scholars maintain that Latin pronunciation threw the accent on the first syllable, so that in the case of an iambus the stress laid upon the short syllable tended to shorten the long syllable; and in support of their theory they cite the quantities of mălě, quăšĭ, cĭtŏ as contrasted with cĕrtĕ, ĕtsĭ, rārŏ, etc. Others consider that the metrical accent is alone sufficient to account for all shortened syllables. The true explanation will probably be found in a combination of both theories, i. e. that a natural tendency of colloquial pronunciation to shorten the long syllable of an iambus was extended by the incidence of the metrical accent. At any rate the law seems clearly established, though its origin may be doubtful.

Ample evidence exists to prove that final consonants were often lightly pronounced. The disappearance of d from the end of the archaic ablative singular, of m from the first person singular of the present indic. active and other tenses, the alternative form for the third person plural of the perf. indic. active (dedere for dederunt) may be cited as instances. But in the case of final m and s we have special and explicit testimony. Quintilian 9. 4. 40 tells us that 'm parum exprimitur,' Priscian 1. 38 'm obscurum in extremitate dictionum sonat;' and accordingly we find final m regularly elided before a vowel or h even in Augustan verse, while in the comic writers it can be disregarded or not at will, e. g. enĭmvero, quidĕm and the like are exceedingly common.

As regards s, Cicero Or. 161 writes, quod iam subrusticum videtur, olim autem politius, eorum verborum, quorum eadem erant postremae duae litterae quae sunt in 'optumus,' postremam litteram detrahebant, nisi vocalis insequeretur. Ita non erat ea offensio in versibus quam nunc fugiunt poetae novi. Ita enim loquebamur 'qui est omnibu' princeps,' non 'omnibus princeps,' et 'vita illa dignu' loque,' non 'dignus.' Lucretius, and of course the older poets Ennius and Lucilius, frequently drop the final s after u, especially in the dat. and abl. plural in -bus. Terence often avails himself of this licence, e. g. 943 sepultŭs sum at the end of a senarius.

Similarly opus est, factus est, etc., may always be scanned opŭ'st, factu'st when convenient, e. g. 715, 833, etc. So also amatus es may metrically be amatu's. It was doubtless too in accordance with ordinary pronunciation that Terence sometimes scans nempe as nēpē, e. g. 307 nēmpe Phórmiónem. Note also that mihī and nihil are usually considered as monosyllabic, whether they are written as mi and nil or not : but cf. 176, 940. It seems probable that visum est, noxia est, etc., were pronounced visum'st, noxia'st, and the accents have been placed accordingly.

Besides the 'Iambic Law' and the points above mentioned, there are other causes of difference between Terentian and Augustan prosody.

I. Indifference to double consonants, which Terence probably did not write. Thus ille is often used as a pyrrhic (υυ), and less frequently esse, eccum, quīppe, immo, etc. ; possibly also such cases as supēllectile 666, occidito 143, etc., may be thus accounted for. Cf. Lucr. 6. 1135 cōruptum = corruptum.

II. Retention of the quantity of final syllables originally long. This is very rare in Terence. Of the nineteen instances quoted by Wagner in his Terence, Introd., p. 14, only two are certain, viz. Phor. 9 stetīt, Ad. 25 augeāt, both it may be noted in prologues. In 315 āis is doubtful. In the older poets, Ennius and Plautus (cf. Ritschl, Prol. 175), such long syllables are common, especially -or (-ωρ) in nouns, adjectives, or verbs, -at, -et, -it in third pers. sing. of verbs.

Lucretius seldom permits himself this licence. Mr. Munro admits only two instances of -ēt (though this termination is always long in Ennius), while -āt and -īt never appear except as contracted forms for -avit, -iit. Vergil freely lengthens -or, -er, -ur, us, -at (imperf.), -et, -it, but only in arsis, and usually when a pause follows the word. Note, however, that Vergil does not confine himself to syllables originally long, but admits such quantities as supēr, puēr, capūt, procūl, and frequently -quē in imitation of the Homeric τε before double consonants. Ovid regularly lengthens periūt, subiūt, rediūt, etc. Horace lengthens syllables in arsis about ten times.

III. Synizesis or Synaeresis. Almost any two vowels not separated by a consonant may be contracted into a single syllable. This is most common in the case of pronouns and deus, e. g. eūm, tūom, mēorum, hūūs, cūūs, dēos; but we also find rēicere 18, nesciō 193, diūtius 182, dūās 754, dehortatus = dortatus 910, quōād 148, etc. Sometimes a word made monosyllabic by synizesis is then elided, e. g. meum 232. In Terence dehinc and proin are always of one syllable, antehac of two. On the contrary, nunc iam is always scanned as nūnciām, and is printed accordingly (diaeresis). Augustan poets employ Synizesis sparingly, chiefly in making consonantal i or u, as abiete, ariete = abjete, arjete; tenuia = tenvia, and in cases of nouns or adjectives ending in -eus, e. g. aurēā.

IV. Hiatus is admitted,

- (1) when there is a change of speaker, e. g. 146, 542, 963;
- (2) when the line is broken by a strong pause, e. g. Ad. 574;
- (3) after an interjection, e. g. 411, 753, 803.

Note, however, that O may be elided, e. g. 259, 360, 853, and apparently Au 754. Occasionally a long final vowel, or a vowel before m, is shortened and not elided, e. g. quī aget 27, nē agas 419, tē idem 426 probably, quām ego 808, sī habet 1041. Cf. 383, 501, 883, 911, 954, 982, 1005. Lucretius has eleven instances of this (see Munro's note on 2. 404), Vergil six, e. g. Ecl. 8. 108 an quī amant. Cf. Madv., 502 b.

ACCIDENCE AND SYNTAX OF THE PHORMIO.

The following is a brief synopsis of the leading peculiarities in the Accidence and Syntax of Terence, as exemplified in this Play. The references are to the notes, where the various points are treated in detail. Some cases are here mentioned not unknown in Augustan Latin, but which are specially characteristic of Terence's style.

ACCIDENCE.

1. Declension.

Genitive in -i for -us of fourth declension, 154.

Dative in -ae for -i from alter, 928.

Nominative ipsus = ipse, 178.

-ce appended to cases of hic, iste, etc., 290, 442.

compluria = complura, 611.

Chremes, double declension of, 63.

precī, Dat., 547.

Superlatives of adjectives end in -umus, 125.

mirificissimum = mirificentissimum, 871.

2. Conjugation.

(a) Archaic forms, siem = sim, and compounds of the same, as adsient 313, possiet 773. duim = dem, and its compounds, as perduint, 123.

creduas = credas, 993, is doubtful.

faxo, etc., 308.

(β) -ibam = -iebam in Imperfect Indicative, 480.

(γ) -ibit = -iet in Future Simple, 765.

(δ) -undus, etc. = endus, etc., in Gerundives and Gerunds, 22.

3. Syncopated forms, free use of, 13, 198.

sis, sodes = si vis, si audes, 59, 103.

ain, satin, etc., = aisne, satisne, etc., 970.

SYNTAX.

(1) Use of Tenses.

(a) Present Indicative = Future Simple or Present Subjunctive, 447, 737.

(β) Present Infinitive = Future Infinitive, 532.

(γ) Imperfect Indicative, colloquial use of, 858.

- (δ) Future Simple = Present Subjunctive, 917.
 (ε) Future Perfect expressing quickness and certainty, 516.
- (2) Use of Moods.
 (α) Indicative in dependent sentences, 358.
 (β) Indicative after quom, causal or concessive, 23.
 (γ) Future Indicative after faxo, 308.
 (δ) Subjunctive in repeated questions, 122.
- (3) Verbal constructions.
opus, personal and other constructions of, 440, 563.
potest, potis est, pote, impersonal use of, 303, 379.
 Verbal Substantives governing cases, 293.
- (4) Use of cases.
 Accusative of Limitation and Respect, very free use of, 155, 480.
 Accusative after fungor 281, potior 469, abutor 281, inpendere 180, mederi (perhaps) 822, condonare 947.
 Genitive after Participles, 623.
- (5) Use of Particles.
non or ne = nonne, 119.
ut ne = ne or ut non, 168.
nil or nullus = non, 142.
qui, Ablative, free use of, 123.
 Intensive Particles¹, free use of, adeo 389, autem 502-3, enim and nam 113, ergo 685, etiam 474, 542.
- (6) Ellipse, free use of,
 (α) of principal verb, 38;
 (β) of Infinitive clause, 113;
 (γ) of subject of Infinitive, 233.

Besides these differences in Accidence and Syntax the plays of Terence abound, as is natural, with words or phrases used in a colloquial sense, cf. 47, 54, 79, 82, 133, 145, etc., among which may be specially mentioned proverbial sayings, cf. 78, 186, 203, 318, 419, 506, 686, 768, 780.

Tautologous and pleonastic phrases are also a characteristic of comic diction, cf. 80, 89, 164, etc.

Greek words, though not nearly so frequent as in Plautus, occur oftener than in Augustan writers, e. g. dicam 127, eu 398, gynaeceum 862, logi 493, paedagogus 144, palaestra 484, parasitus 28.

CODICES OF TERENCE.

The MSS. of Terence fall into two classes. Class I is before the recension of Calliopius, Class II after it. Class II is arranged in probable order of antiquity.

CLASS I.

Letter of Reference.	Name of Codex.	Place where it is now kept.	Century.	Remarks.
A.	BEMBINUS.	Vatican.	IV or V.	On parchment in uncial characters.

CLASS II.

Letter of Reference.	Name of Codex.	Place where it is now kept.	Century.	Remarks.
D.	VICTORIANUS.	Vatican.	IX or X.	Also known as C. Laurentianus.
P.	PARISINUS.	Paris.	IX or X.	On parchment in small characters.
C.	VATICANUS.	Vatican.	IX or X.	Copied by a German from the same original as P.
F.	AMBROSIANUS.	Milan.	IX or X.	Andria wanting.
B.	BASILICANUS.	Vatican.	X.	A copy of C., except a gap which was filled up from D.
V.	FRAGMENTUM VINDOBONENSE.	Vienna.	X or XI.	Six sheets containing Andria 912-981.
E.	RICCARDIANUS.	Florence.	XI.	Andria 1-39 wanting.
G.	DECURTATUS.	Vatican.	XI or XII.	Much mutilated.

The Bembine is by far the most important, not merely on account of its antiquity, but because it alone has escaped the recension of Calliopius in the seventh century. Codex A was in bad condition, as its owner Cardinal Bembo testified, before the end of the fifteenth century. Andria 1-786 is now entirely wanting, and of Adelphi 914-997 only a few letters are legible.

It bears a note written by Politian (1493 A.D.) to the effect that he never saw so old a Codex. The hands of two correctors can be discerned : one of ancient date, which only appears twice in the Andria, and never in the Phormio or Adelphi ; the other¹, about the fifteenth century, which changed and added characters in a 'downright shameless fashion.' But, where not thus tampered with, Codex A possesses an authority sufficient to outweigh all the other MSS. taken together, though the scribe was not a very careful one, and not unfrequently made palpable mistakes in copying. The later MSS. were so much altered by the Calliopian recension that their independent authority is not very great. In all MSS., even in A, the spelling has been much modernised.

The evidence of the MSS. is to some small extent supplemented by quotations of ancient writers, and the commentaries of grammarians.

Of these latter, the most important is Aelius Donatus, tutor of St. Jerome, about 350 A.D., and the author of a celebrated grammatical treatise which became the common text-book of mediaeval schools. Priscian (480? A.D.), Servius (about 420 A.D.) in his notes on Vergil, and other more obscure scholiasts are of occasional service.

At ego obviam conabar tibi, Dave. DA. Accipe: (giving the purse to Geta, who weighs it in his hand doubtfully.) hem!

Lectum est; conveniet numerus quantum debui.

GE. (shaking Davus by the hand.) Amote: et non neglexisse habeo gratiam.

DA. Praesertim ut nunc sunt mores: adeo res redit: 5 55
Si quis quid reddit, magna habenda est gratia.

(noticing that Geta seems uneasy and anxious.) Sed quid tu es tristis? GE. Egone? nescis quo in metu, Quanto in periculo sumus. DA. Quid istuc est? GE. Scies, Modo ut tacere possis. DA. Abi sis, insciens:

Quoius tu fidem in pecunia perspexeris, ro 60

Verere verba ei credere? ubi quid mihi lucri est

Te fallere? GE. Ergo ausculta. DA. Hanc operam tibi dico.

GE. Senis nostri, Dave, fratrem maiorem Chremem

Nostin? DA. Quid ni? GE. Quid? eius gnatum Phaédriam?

DA. Tam quám te. GE. Evenit sénibus ambobús

DEMIPHO. GETA. PHAEDRIA.

(Demipho enters from the Peiraeus, dressed in travelling cloak and hat, evidently in a state of considerable excitement. He does not see Phaedria and Geta.)

DE. (indignantly.) Ítane tandem uxórem duxit Ántipho réperient?

Demíror. GE. (apart.) Atqui réperiam: aliud cúra. DE.

An hoc dicét mihi:

(in a whining tone.) 'Invítus feci : léx coëgit' ? (impatiently.) aúdio, fateór. GE. (apart.) Places.

DE. Verúm scientem, tácitum causam trádere advorsáriis, Etiámne id lex coëgit ? PH. (apart.) Illud dúrum. GE.
(apart.) Ego expediám : sine.

DE. Incértum est quid agam, quía praeter spem atque íncredibile hoc mi óbtigit :

Ita sum ínritatus, ánimum ut nequeam ad cógitandum instítuere. (paces irritably backwards and for- wards.) 10 240

Quamobrem ómnis, quom secúndae res sunt máxume, tum máxume

Meditári secum opórtet, quo pacto ádvorsam aerumnám ferant.
Perícla, damna, exília peregre rédiens semper cógitet,
Aut fíli peccatum aút uxoris mórtem aut morbum filiae, Commúnia esse haec, fíeri posse, ut né quid animo sít
novom : 15 245

Quidquíd praeter spem evéniet, omne id députare esse ín
lucro.

GE. (apart, with mock admiration.) O Phaédria, incredíbile est quantum erum ánte-eo sapiéntia.

(with a caricature of Demípho's tones and gestures.) Meditáta mihi sunt ómnia mea incómmoda, erus si rédierit :

Moléndum usque in pistríno, vapulándum, habendae
cómpedes,

Opūs rúri faciundum : hórur nil quicquam áccidet animó
novom. 20 250

Quidquíd praeter spem evéniet, omne id députabo esse ín
lucro.

Séd quid cessas hómínem adire et blánde in princípíádloqui ? (Phaedria advances.)

DE. Phaédriam mei frátris video fílium mi ire óbviám.

PH. (effusively holding out both hands.) Mi pátrúe, salve!

DE. (shortly.) Sáve! sed ubi est Ántipho?

PH. Salvóm venire—DE. (interrupting impatiently.) Crédo :
hoc respondé mihi. 25 255

PH. Valet, (pointing to the house.) híc est : sed satin ómnia ex senténtia?

DE. (gruffly.) Vellém quidem. PH. (innocently.) Quid ístúc est? DE. (bursting out passionately.) Rogitas, Phaédria?

Bonás me absente hic cónfecistis núptias.

PH. (with affected wonder.) Eho! an íd suscenses núnc illi? GE. (apart, rubbing his hand with glee behind Demipho's back.) O artificém probum!

DE. Egón illi non suscénseam? ipsum géstio 30 260
Darí mi ín conspectum, núnc sua culpa út sciat Leném patrem illum fáctum me esse acérrumum.

PH. Atquí nil fecit, pátrúe, quod suscénseas.

DE. Ecce autótem similia ómnia : omnes cóngruont :

Vnúm quom noris, ómnis noris. PH. Haúd ita est. 35 265

DE. Híc ín nóxia est, ille ád défendendam caúsam adest :
Quom ille ést, hic praesto est : trádunt operas mútuas.

GE. (aside.) Probe hórum facta inprúdens depinxít senex.

DE. Nam ni haéc ita essent, cum illo haud stares, Phaé-dria.

PH. (in a tone of quiet remonstrance.) Si est, pátrúe, culpam ut Ántipho ín se admíserit, 40 270

Ex quá re minús rei fóret aut famae témpers,
Non caúsam dico quín quod meritis sít ferat.

Sed sí quis forte málitia fretús sua
Insídias nostrae fécit adulescéntiae

Ac vícit, nostran cúlpa ea est an iúdicum, 45 275

Qui saepe propter invidiam adimunt diviti, Aut propter misericordiam addunt pauperi?

GE. (aside.) Ni nossem causam, crederem vera hunc loqui.

DE. An quisquam iudex est, qui possit noscere
Tua iusta, ubi tute verbum non respondeas, 50 280

Ita ut ille fecit? PH. Fungtus adulescentuli est
Officium liberalis: postquam ad iudices
Ventum est, non potuit cogitata proloqui:
Ita eum tum timidum ibi obstupescit pudor.

GE. (aside.) Laudo hunc: sed cesso adire quam primum senem? (advances and bows low to Demipho.) 55 285

Ere, salve: salvom te advenisse gaudeo. DE. (raising his stick threateningly, whereat Geta keeps at a safe distance.) Oh!

Bone custos, salve! columen vero familiae,
Quoi commendavi filium hinc abiens meum.

GE. (in a tone of injured innocence.) Iam dudum te omnis nos accusare audio

Inmerito, et me horunc omnium inmeritissimo: 60 290
Nam quid me in hac re facere voluisti tibi?

Servom hominem causam orare leges non sinunt,
Neque testimoni dictio est. DE. Mitto omnia.

Do istuc, 'inprudens timuit adulescens': sino
'Tu servos': verum si cognata est maxime, 65 295

Non fuit necesse habere: sed id quod lex iubet, Dotem daretis; quaereret alium virum.

Qua ratione inopem potius ducebatur domum?

GE. Non ratio, verum argentum deerat. DE. (sulkily.)
Sumeret

Alicunde. GE. (ironically.) Alicunde? nil est dictu facilius.
70 300

DE. Postrémo, si nullo álio pacto, faénore.

GE. (with great sarcasm.) Hui! díxti pulchre: síquidem quisquam créderet

Te vivo. DE. (angrily.) Non, non síc futurum est: nón potest.

Egon íllam cum illo ut pátiar nuptam unúm diem?

Nil suáve meritum est. hóminem commonstrárier 75 305

Mi istúm volo, aut ubi hábitet demonstrárier.

GE. Nēmpē Phórmionem? DE. Istúm patronum múlueris.

GE. Iam fáxo hic aderit. DE. Ántipho ubi nunc ést?

GE. Foris.

DE. Abí, Phaédria, eum requíre atque adduc húc. PH.

Eo:

Rectá via quidem ílluc. (exit, with a wink at Geta.) GE.

(apart to Phaedria as he passes.) Nempe ad Pámphilam. (exit Geta towards the Forum, with a mocking gesture behind Demiphó's back.) 80 310

DE. Ego deós penatis hínc salutatúm domum

Devórtar: inde ibo ád forum atque aliquót mihi

Amícos advocábo, ad hanc rem qui ádsient,

Vt ne ínparatus sím, si adveniat Phórmio. (*exit into his

Adéste quaeso. GE. (apart to Phormio.) Irátus est. PH. (apart.) Quin tu hóc age. 350

Iam ego hunc agitabo. (speaking in a loud and indignant tone so as to be overheard by Demipho.) Pró deum inmortálium!

Negät Phánium esse hanc síbi cognatam Démipho? 5 Hanc Démipho negat ésse cognatám? GE. Negat.

DE. (in an undertone to his friends.) Ipsum ésse opinor dé quo agebam. séquimini. (they cautiously move somewhat nearer.)

PH. Neque éíus patrem se scíre qui fuerít? GE. Negat. 355

PH. Quia egéns relictá est mísera, ignoratúr parens, 10
Neglégitur ipsa: víde avaritia quíd facit!

GE. (with affected indignation.) Si erum ínsimulabis máli-tiae, male aúdiés.

DE. (apart.) O audáciam! etiam me últro accusatum ád-venit. 360

PH. Nam iam ádulescenti níl est quod suscénseam, Si illúm minús norat: quíppe homo iam grándior, 15
Paupér, quói in opere víta erat, rurí fere
Se cóntinebat: sibi agrum de nostró patre

Coléndum habebat : saépe interea míhi senex 365

Narrábat se hunc neglégere cognatúm suom :

At quém virum ! quem ego víderim in vita óptumum. 20

GE. (with a sneer.) Videás te atque illum, ut nárras. PH.

(angrily.) I in malám crucem !

Nam ní ita eum existumássem, numquam tám gravis

Ob hānc ínicitias cáperem in vostram fámiliam, 370

Quam is áspernatur núnc tam inliberáliter.

GE. (working himself up into a pretended rage.) Pergín ero absenti mále loqui, impuríssume ? 25

PH. Dignum autótem hoc illo est. GE. Aín tandem, car-cér ? DE. (calling.) Geta.

GE. (bawling, pretending not to hear Demipho.) Bonórum extortor, légum contortór. DE. (calling more loudly.) Geta.

PH. (in an undertone to Geta.) Respónde. GE. (turning round.) Quis homo est ? (in a tone of great astonishment.) éhēm ! DE. Tace. GE. Absentí tibi 375

Te indígnas seque dígnas contumélias

Numquám cessavit dícere. DE. (impatiently.) Ohe désine ! 30

(speaking to Phormio with ironical politeness.) Aduléscens, primum abs te hóc bona veniá peto,

Si tibi placere pótis est, mi ut respóndeas :

Quem amícum tuom aís fuisse istum, explaná mihi, 380

Et quí cognatum mé sibi esse díceret.

PH. (sarcastically.) Proinde éxpiscare quási non nosses.

DE. Nóssem ? PH. Ita. 35

DE. (emphatically.) Ego mé nego : tu, quí aís, redige in mémoriam.

PH. Eho tú sobrinum tuóm non noras ? DE. (angrily.) Énicas.

Dic nómen. PH. Nomen? máxume. (Phormio stops abruptly and turns away.) DE. (suspiciously.) Quid núnc taces? 385

PH. (aside, much disturbed.) Perii hércle! nomen pérdidi.

DE. Hem! quid aís? PH. (apart, in a hasty whisper.) Geta,

Si méministi id quod ólim dictum est, súbice. (turning to Demipho with great effrontery.) hem! 40

Non díco: quasi non nóris, temptatum ádvenis.

DE. (indignantly.) Égone aútem tempto? GE. (in a whisper.) Stílpho. PH. Atque adeo quíd mea?

Stilphó est. DE. Quem dixti? PH. (shouting the name in Demipho's face.) Stílphonem inquam: nóveras? 390

DE. Neque égo illum noram néque mi cognatús fuit

Quisquam ístoc nomine. PH. (in a provoking tone.) Ítane? non te horúm pudet? 45

At sí talentum rém reliquissét decem—

DE. Di tibi malefaciant! PH. prímus esses mémoriter

Progénem vostram usque áb avo atque atavo próferens. 395

DE. (doggedly.) Ita út dícis. ego tum quom ádvenissem, quí mihi

Cognáta ea esset, dícerem: itidem tú face: 50

Cedo quí est cognata? GE. (to Demipho, clapping his hands.) Eu nóster! recte: (to Phormio, apart, anxiously.) heus tú, cave!

PH. (in a lordly manner.) Dilúcide expedívi quibus me opórtuit

Iudícibus: tum id si fálsum fuerat, filius 400

Quor nón refellit? DE. (impatiently.) Fílium narrás mihi?

Quoius dé stultitia d́ci ut dignum est nón potest. 55

PH. (ironically.) At tú (with a low bow.) qui sapiens és magistratús adi, Iudícium de ea causa álterum ut reddánt tibi:

Quandóquidem solus régnas et solí licet 405

Hic de eádem causá bís iudícium adipíscier.

(Demipho, completely nonplussed, paces irritably up and down ; then with difficulty controlling his anger he again addresses Phormio, who, with Geta, has been richly enjoying his dis-comfiture.)

DE. Etsí mihi facta iniúria est, verúmtamen 60

Potíus quam litis sécter aut quam te aúdiam,

Itidem út cognata sí sit, id quod léx iubet

Dotís dare, abduc hánc, minas quinque áccipe. 410

PH. (laughing loudly.) Hahahaé! homō suavis. DE. Quid est? num iniquom póstulo?

An ne hóc quidem ego adipíscar, quod ius públicum est? 65

PH. (in a tone of righteous indignation.) Itān tándem quaeso, vírginem quom dúxeris,

Mercédem dare lex iúbet eī atque amíttre?

An, út né quid turpe cívis in se admíttetet 415

Proptér egestatem, próxumo iussá est dari,

Vt cum úno aetatem dégeret? quod tú vetas. 70

DE. Ita, próxumo quidem: át nos unde? aut quam ób rem? PH. (impatiently.) Ohe!

‘Actum,’ áiunt, ‘ně agas.’ DE. Nón agam? immo haud désinam,

Donéc perfecero hóc. PH. (scornfully.) Ineptis. DE. Síne modo. 420

PH. Postrémo tecum níl rei nobis, Démipho, est:

Tuos ést damnatus gnátus, non tu: (with mocking emphasis.) nám tua 75

Praetérierat iam ad dúcendum aetas. DE. Ómnia haec

Illúm putato, quae égo nunc dico, dícere

Aut quidē cum uxore hac ípsum prohibebó domo. (turning on his heel in a rage.) 425

GE. (apart.) Irátus est. PH. Tu tē ídem melius féceris.

DE. Itane és paratus fácere me advorsum ómnia, 80

Infélix? PH. (apart to Geta.) Metuit híc nos, tamētsi sédulo

Dissímulat. GE. (apart to Phormio.) Bene habent tibi principia. PH. (to Demípho, in a tone of parental advice.) Quín quod est

Ferúndum fers? tuis dígnum factis féceris, 430

Vt amíci inter nos símus. DE. (with angry contempt.) Egon tuam éxpetam

Amícitiam? aut te vísum aut auditúm velim? 85

PH. Si cóncordabis cum illa, habebis quae tuam Senēctútem oblectet: réspice aetatém tuam.

DE. (furiously.) Te oblétet: tibi habe. PH. (with provoking calmness.) Mínue vero iram. DE. (with great emphasis.) Hóc age: 435

Satís iám verborum est: nísi tu properas múlierem

Abdúcere, ego illam eíciam: dixi, Phórmio. (turning away with an angry stamp.) 90

PH. (caricaturing Demípho's tones and gestures.) Si tu íllam attigeris sécũs quam dígnum est líberam, Dicám tibi ínpingam grándem: dixi, Démípho. (turning away with a stamp like Demípho.)

(apart to Geta.) Si quíd opus fuerit, heús, domo me. GE.
(apart.) Intéllego. (exit Phormio, rudely pushing aside the friends of Demípho, who shakes his stick at him in impotent rage.) 440

SC. 3 [4].

DEMIPHO. GETA. HEGIO. CRATINVS. CRITO.(Demipho, still trembling from the effects of his scene with Phormio, soliloquises irritably.)

DE. Quantá me cura et sôlicitudine ádficit Gnatús, qui me et se hisce ínpedivit núptiis!
 Neque mi ín conspectum pródit, ut saltém sciam,
 Quid de hác re dicat quídve sit senténtiae.
(turning to Geta.) Abí, víse redierítne iam an nondúm domum. 5 445

GE. Eó. (exit into Demipho's house.) DE. (to his friends, who consult their notes with an important air.)
 Videtis quo ín loco res haéc siet:

Quid agó? dic, Hegio. HE. (with low bows to Demipho and Cratinus.) Égo? Cratinum cénseo, Si tíbi videtur. DE. Díc, Cratine. CRA. (also bowing.)
 Méne vis?

DE. Te. CRA. Ego quae ín rem tuam sint éa velim fa-ciás: mihi

Sic hóc videtur: quód te absente hic fílius 10 450

Egít, restitui in íntegrum aequom est ét bonum:

Et id ínpetrabis. díxi. DE. Dic nunc, Hégio.

HE. (again bowing.) Ego sédulo hunc dixísse credo: vérum ita est,

Quot hómínes tot senténtiae: suos quoíque mos.

(majestically.) Mihi nón videtur quód sit factum légibus 15 455

Rescíndi posse: et túrpe inceptum est. DE. Díc, Crito.

CRI. Ego ámplius delíberandum cénseo:

Res mágna est. HE. Num quid nós vis? DE. (with ironical politeness.) DE. Fecistís probe. (the three advocates bow themselves out.)

(despairingly.) Incértior sum múlto quam dudúm. (re-enter Geta.) GE. Negant

Redísse. DE. (speaking to himself.) Frater ést expectandús mihi : 20 460

Is quód mihi, dederit de hác re consílium, íd sequar.

Percóntatum ibo ad pórtum, quoad se récipiat. (exit towards Peiraeus.)

GE. At ego Ántiphonem quaéram, ut quae acta hic sít sciát.

Sed éccum ípsum video in témpore huc se récipere.

SC. 4. [III. 1.]

ANTIPHO. GETA.

(Enter Antipho soliloquising, without seeing Geta.)

AN. Énimvero, Antiphó, multimodis, cum ístoc animo es vítuperandus : 465

Ítane te hinc abísse et vitam tuám tutandam aliís dedísse !

Álios tuam rem crédidisti mágis quam tete animádvorsuros ?

Nam út ut erant alia, ílli certe quae nunc tibi domí est consuleres,

Né quid propter tuám fidem decépta poteretúr mali : 5
Quóíus nunc miserae spés opesque súnť in te uno omnes sitae. 470

GE. (advancing.) Et quídem, ere, nos iam dúdum hic te absentem íncusamus, qui ábieris.

AN. Te ipsúm quaerebam. GE. Séd ea causa níhilo magís defécimus.

AN. (anxiously.) Loquere óbsecro: quonam ín loco sunt rés et fortunaé meae?

Num quíd subolet patrí? GE. Nil etiam. AN. Ecquíd spei porro est? GE. Néschio. AN. Ah! 10

GE. Nisi Phaédria haud cessávit pro te eníti. AN. (feelingly.) Nil fecít novi. 475

GE. Tum Phórmio itidem in hác re ut aliis strénuom hominem praébuit.

AN. Quid ís fécit? GE. Confutávit verbis ádmodum iratúm senem.

AN. Eu, Phórmio! GE. (with affected modesty.) Ego quod pótui porro. AN. Mí Geta, omnis vós amo.

GE. Síc habent princípia sese ut díco: adhuc tranquílla res est, 15

Mánsurusque pátruom pater est, dum húc adveniat. AN. Quíd eum? GE. Vt aibat 480

De eíus consilio sése velle fácere quod ad hanc rem áttinet.

AN. Quántum metüs est míhi, videre huc sálvom nunc patruóm, Geta!

Nam eíus per unam, ut aúdio, aut vivam aut moriar senténtiam.

GE. Phaédria tibi adést. AN. Vbinam? GE. Eccum ab suá palaestra exít foras. 20

SC. 5. [III. 2.]

PHAEDRIA. DORIO. ANTIPHO. GETA.

(Phaedria and Dorio enter. Dorio's manner throughout is rude and brutal: Phaedria in his agitation does not at first perceive Antipho and Geta.)

PH. (imploringly.) Dório, 485

Audi, óbsecro. DO. (sullenly.) Non áudio. PH. (laying his hand on Dorio's shoulder.) Parúmpet. DO. (shaking himself free.) Quin omítte me.

PH. Aúdi quod dicam. DO. Át enim taedet iam aúdire eadem míliens.

PH. Át nunc dicam quód lubenter aúdias. DO. (with surly acquiescence.) Loquere, áudio.

PH. Néqueo te exoráre ut maneat tríduom hoc? (Dorio abruptly turns on his heel.) quo núnc abis?

DO. (insolently.) Mirábar si tu míhi quicquam adferrés novi.

AN. (apart.) Ei! 5 490

Hunc hóminem metuo né quid—GE. (interrupting.) Suo suát capiti? (ironically.) idem ego véreor.

PH. Nondúm mihi credis? DO. Háriolare. PH. Sín fidem do? DO. Fábulae.

PH. Faéneratum istúc beneficium púlchre tibi dicés. DO. Logi.

PH. Créde mihi, gaudébis facto: vérum hercle hoc est. DO. Sómnia.

PH. Éxperire: nón est longum. DO. Cántilenam eandém canis. 10 495

PH. Tú cognatus, tú parens, tu amícus, tu—DO. Garrí modo.

PH. Ádeon ingenio ésse duro te átque inexorábili,

Vt neque misericórdia neque précibus mollirí queas!

DO. Ádeon te esse incógitantem atque ínpudentem, Phaédria, Vt phaleratis díctis ducas me, ét meam ductes grátiis! 15 500

AN. (apart.) Míseritum est. PH. (turning away from Dorio in despair.) Ei! véris vincer. GE. Quám uterque est similís sui!

PH. Neque, Ántipho alia quom óccupatus ésset sollicitúdine,

Tum hoc ésse mi obiectúm malum! AN. (coming forward.)

Ah! quid ístuc autem est, Phaédria?

PH. Ó fortunatíssume Antipho! AN. Égone? PH. Quoi quod amás domi est:

Néc cum huius modi ũmquam úsus venit út conflictarís malo. 20 505

AN. Míhin domi est? immo, íd quod aiunt, aúribus teneó lupum.

Nám neque quo pacto á me amittam néque uti retineám scio.

DO. Ípsum istuc mi in hóc est. AN. (sarcastically to Dorio.) Heia! né parum nebuló sies.

(to Phaedria.) Núm quid hic confécit? PH. Hicine? quód homo inhumaníssumus:

Pámphilam meam véndidit. GE. Quid? véndidit? AN. Ain? véndidit? 25 510

PH. Véndidit. DO. (with coarse irony.) Quam indígnum facinus, áncillam aere emptám meo!

PH. Néqueo exorare út me maneat ét cum illo ut mutét fidem

Tríduom hoc, dum id quód ęst promissum ab amícis argentum aúfero:

(turning to Dorio.) Sí non tum dederó, únam praeterea hóram ne oppertús sies.

DO. (putting his hands to his ears.) Óbtundes? (Phaedria bursts into tears and buries his face in his hands.) AN. Haud lóngum est id quod órat: exorét sine: 30 515

Ídem hic tibi, quod bóñi promeritus fúeris, conduplicáverit.

DO. Vérba istaec sunt. AN. Pámphilamne hac úrbe privarí sines?

Túm praeterea horúnc amorem dístrahi poterín pati?

DO. (doggedly.) Néque ego neque tu. GE. (indignantly.) Dí tibi omnes íd quod es dignús duint!

DO. Égo te complurís advorsum ingénium meum mensís tuli, 35 520

Póllicitantem et níl ferentem, fléntem: nunc contra ómnia haec

Répperi qui dét neque lacrumet: dá locum meliórius.

AN. (turning to Phaedria.) Cérte hercle, ego si sátis commemini, tíbi quidem est olím dies, Quam ád dares huic, praéstítuta. PH. Fáctum. DO. Nũm ego istúc nego?

AN. Iam éa praeteriit? DO. Nón, verum haec eĩ ántecessit. AN. Nón pudet 40 525

Vánitatis? DO. (tapping his open palm.) Mínume, dum ob rem. GE. Stércilinium! PH. Dório, Ítane tandem fácere oportet? DO. Síc sum: si placeo, útere.

AN. Síc hunc decipis? DO. Ímmo enimvero, Ántipho, hic me decipit:

Nam híc me huius modí scíbat esse: ego húnc esse aliter crédidi;

Íste me feféllit: ego isti níhilo sum aliter ác fui. 45 530

Séd ut ut haec sunt, támen hoc faciam: crás mane argentúm mihi

Miles dare se dixit: si mihi prius tu attuleris, Phaédria, Mea lege utar, ut sit potior, qui prior ad dandum est.
(Dorio walks to the back of the stage, followed by Phaedria with clasped hands, apparently about to renew his entreaties, but Dorio gives him no chance, cutting short his intended prayers by an insolent farewell.) Vale! (exit.)

SC. 6. [III. 3.]

PHAEDRIA. ANTIPHO. GETA.

(Phaedria, in the depths of despair, returns from the back of the stage wringing his hands, scarcely able to speak, and bursting into tears at the end of his sentence.)

PH. Quid faciam? unde ego nunc tam subito huic argentum inveniám miser,

Quoi minus nihilo ést? quod, hic si pote fuisset exorárier 535

Tríduom hoc, promíssum fuerat. (he hides his face in his hands and turns away.) AN. Ítane hunc patiemúr, Geta,

Fíeri miserum, qui me dudum, ut díxti, adiuerit cómiter?
 Quín, quom opus est, beneficium rursum eĩ éxperimur réddere? 5

GE. (doubtfully.) Scío equidem hoc esse aéquom. AN.
(clapping Geta on the back.) Age ergo, sólus servare hunc potes.

GE. Quid faciam? AN. Inveniás argentum. GE. Cúpio:
 sed id unde, édoce. 540

AN. Páter adest hic. GE. Scío: sed quid tum? AN.
(impatiently.) Ah! díctum sapientí sat est.

GE. Ítane? AN. Ita. GE. Sane hércle pulchre suádes:
etiam tu hinc abis?

Nón triumpho, ex núptiis tuis sí nil nanciscór mali, 10
Ni étiam nunc me huius caúsa quaerere ín malo iubeás crucem?

AN. Vérum hic dicit. PH. (plaintively.) Quíd? ego vobis,
Géta, alienus sum? GE. Haúd puto: 545
Séd parúmne est, quod ómnibus nunc nóbis suscensét senex,

Ni ínstigemus étiam, ut nullus lócüs relinquatúr preci?

PH. Álius ab oculís meis illam in ígnotum abducét locum?
hem! 15

(speaking solemnly and slowly.) Tum igitur, dum licét dum-que adsum, lóquimini mecum, Ántipho,

Cóntemplaminí me. AN. (with some alarm.) Quam ob rem? aut quídnam facturús, cedo? 550

PH. Quóquo hinc asportábitur terrárum, certum est pérsequi— (he completely breaks down and finishes his sentence through his sobs.)

Aút perire. (turning away.) GE. Dí bene vortant quód agas: pedetemptím tamen.

AN. Vídē si quid opis pótēs adferre huic. GE. ‘Sí quid?’ quid? AN. Quaere, óbsecro: 20

Né quid plus minúsve faxit, quód nos post pigeát, Geta.

GE. (assuming an attitude of deep thought.) Quaero. (he re- mains some moments buried in thought; then with sudden elation cries out.) Salvos ést, ut opinor.
(with a change of tone.) Vérum enim metuó malum. 555

AN. Nóli metuere: úna tecum bóna mala tolerábimus.

GE. (turning to Phaedria.) Quántum opus est tibi ärgénti, loquere. PH. Sólae trigintá minae.

GE. Tríginta? (whistling.) hui! percára est, Phaedria. PH.
(indignantly.) Ístaec vero vllis est. 25

GE. (consolingly.) Áge age, inventas réddam. PH. (hugging Geta in his joy.) O lepidum! GE. (pushing Phae- dria away.) Aufér te hinc. PH. Iam opus est.
GE. Iám feres:

Séd opus est mihi Phórmionem ad hánc rem adiutorém dari. 560

PH. Praésto est: audacíssume oneris quídvis inpone, ét feret:

Sólus est hómo amíco amicus. GE. Eámus ergo ad eum ócus.

AN. Núm quid ést quod operá mea vobis ópŭs sit? GE.
Nil: verum ábī domum 30

Ét illam miseram, quam égo nunc intus scío ésse exanimatám metu,

Cónsolare. céssas? AN. Nil est aéque quod faciám lubens.
(exit to Demipho's house.) 565

PH. Quá via istuc fácies? GE. Dicam in ítinere: hinc modo te ámove. (exeunt hurriedly towards the

ACTVS III [IV].

SC. 1.

DEMIPHO. CHREMES.

(Enter Demipho and Chremes from the Peiraeus. The latter wears a travelling cloak and hat.)

DE. Quid? quá profectus cáusa hinc es Lemnúm, Chreme, Addúxtin tecum fíliam? CH. Non. DE. Quíd ita non?

CH. Postquám videt me eius máter esse hic diútius, Simul autótem non manébat aetas vírginis 570

Meam néglegentiam: ípsam cum omni fámilia 5

Ad mé profectam esse aíbant. DE. Quid illi tám diu Quaeso ígitur commorábare, ubi id audíveras?

Senéctus ipsa est mórbus. (abruptly changing the subject.) sed venísse eas 575

Salvás audiui ex naúta qui illas véxerat. 10

DE. Quid gnáto obtigerit me ábsente, audistín, Chreme?

CH. Quod quídem me factum cónsili incertúm facit.

Nam hanc cóndicionem sí quói tulero extráριο, Quo pácto aut unde míhi sit, dicundum órdine est. 580

Te míhi fidelem esse aéque atque egomet súm mihi 15

Scibam: ílle, si me aliénus adfiném volet,

Tacébit, dum intercédet familiáritas:

Sin spréverit me, plús quam opus est scitó sciet,

(lowering his voice and looking round towards his house.) Vere-órque ne uxor áliqua hoc resciscát mea: 585

Quod sí fit, ut me excútiam atque egrediár domo, 20
Id réstat: nam ego meórum solus sũm meus.

DE. Scio ita ésse: et istaec míhi res sollicitúdini est:
Neque défetiscar úsque adeo experírier,
Donéc tibi quod pollícitus sũm id effécero. 590

(both retire to the back of the stage where they remain engrossed in their conversation, not noticing the entrance of Geta or Antipho, Demipho having his back turned and Chremes being immediately beyond him.)

CH. Scio.

GE. Visúm est mi, ut eius témpare[m] senténtiam.

Prendo hóminem solum: 'quór non,' inquam, 'Phór-mio, 15 620

Vidés, inter nos síc haec potius cú[m] bona

Vt cómponamus grátia quam cú[m] mala?

Erūs líberalis ést et fugitans lítium:

Nam céteri quidem hércle amici omnés modo Vno óre auctores fuére, ut praecipitem hánc (pointing to the house where Phanium is.) daret.' 20 625

AN. (aside.) Quid híc coéptat aut quo evádet hodie? GE.
'an légibus

Datúrum poenas díces, si illam eiécerit?

Iam id éploratum est: héia! sudabís satis,

Si cum illo inceptas hómine: ea eloquéntia est.

Verúm pono esse víctum eum: at tandém tamen 25 630

Non cápitis ei res ágitur, sed pecúniae.'

Postquam hóminem his verbis sentio mollírier,

'Solí sumus nunc hic,' inquam: 'eho! dic, quid vís dari

Tibi ín manum, ut erus hís desistat lítibus,

Haec hínc facessat, tú molestus né sies?' 30 635

AN. (aside, greatly alarmed.) Satin illi di sunt própítii?

GE. 'nam sát scio,

Si tu áliquam partem aequí bonique díxeris,

Vt ést ille bonus vir, tría non commutábitis

Verba hódie inter vos.' DE. Quís te istaec iussít loqui?

CH. Immó, non potuit mélius pervenírier 35 640

Eo quó nos volumus. AN. (aside, despairingly.) Óccidi!

DE. Perge éloqui.

GE. A prímo homo insaníbat. CH. Cedo, quid póstulat?

GE. Quid? nímium quantum lubuit. CH. Dic. GE. ‘Si quís daret

Taléntum magnum.’ DE. (in a rage.) Immó malum hercle!
ut níl pudet!

GE. Quod díxi ei adeo: ‘quaéso, quid si fíliam 40 645
Suam únicam locáret? parvi réttulit

Non súscēpisse: invénta est quae dotém petat.’

Vt ád paúca redeam ac míttam illius inéptias,

Haec dénique eius fuít postrema orátio:

‘Ego,’ ínquit, ‘a princípío amici fíliam, 45 650

Ita ut aéquom fuerat, vólui uxorem dúcere.

Nam míhi veniebat ín mentem eius incómmodum,

In sérvitutem paúperem ad ditém dari.

Sed mi ópus erat, ut apérte tibi nunc fábuler,

Aliquántulum quae adférret, qui dissólverem 50 655

Quae débeo: et etiám nunc, si volt Démipho

Dare quántum ab hac accípíó, quae sponsá est mihi,

Nullám mihi malim quam ístanc uxorém dari.’

AN. (aside.) Vtrúm stultitia fácere ego hunc an málitia

Dicám, scientem an ínprudentem, incértüs sum. 55 660

DE. Quid si ánimam debet? GE. ‘Áger oppositus pínori

Ob décēm minas est.’ DE. (impatiently.) Áge age, iam ducát: dabo.

GE. ‘Aedículae item sunt ób decem alias.’ DE. Oíeĩ!

Nimiúm est. CH. Ne clama: répetito hasce a mé decem.

GE. ‘Vxóri emunda ancíllula est: tum plúscula 60 665

Supélléctile opus est: ópus est sumptu ad núptias:

His rébus pone sáne, ínquit, decém minas.’

DE. (pushing Geta aside violently.) Sescéntas proinde scríbito iam míhi dicas:

Nil do: ínpuratus me ílle ut etiam ínrideat?

CH. (trying to calm his brother's anger.) Quaeso, égo dabo, quiesce: tu modo filius 65 670

Fac ut illam ducat, nós quam volumus. AN. (aside, despairingly.) Eí mihi!

Geta, óccidisti mé tuis falláciis.

CH. Mea caúsa eícitur: me hóc est aequom amíttere.

GE. 'Quantúm potest me cértiorem,' inquit, 'face,
Si illám dant, hanc ut mítam: ne incertús siem: 70 675
Nam illí mihi dotem iám constituerúnt dare.'

CH. (nervously.) Iam accípiat: illis répudium renúntiet:
Hanc dúcat. DE. Quae quidem filii res vortát male!

CH. Oppórtune adeo argéntum nunc mecum áttuli, Fructúm quem Lemni uxóris reddunt praédia: 75 680
Índe súmam: uxori tibi opus esse díxero. (exeunt Demipho and Chremes into the house of the latter.)

SC. 4.

ANTIPHO. GETA.

AN. (calling angrily.) Geta. GE. Hém! AN. Quid egisti?

GE. (rubbing his hands with great glee.) Émunxi argentó senes.

AN. Satin ést id? GE. Nescio hércle, tantum iússūs sum.

AN. (striking him.) Eho! vérbero! aliud míhi respondes ác rogo?

GE. (rubbing his shoulder, and speaking in an injured tone.)
Quid érgo narras? AN. Quíd ego narrem? operá tua 685

Ad réstim mihi quidém rés redit planíssume. 5 (with the greatest bitterness.) Vt té quidem omnes dí deae superi inferi

Malís exemplis pérđant! em! si quíd velis,
 Huic mándes, qui te ad scópulum e tranquillo aúferat.
 Quid mínus utibile fuit quam hoc ulcus tángere 690
 Aut nóminare uxórem? iniecta est spēs patri 10
 Posse íllam extrudi. cédo nunc porro, Phórmio
 Dotém si accipiet, úxor ducendá est domum, Quid fiet? GE. (testily.) Non ením dúcet. AN. (ironically.)

Novi. céterum

Quom argéntum repetent, nóstra causa scílicet 695
 In nérvom potius fbit? GE. Nil est, Ántipho, 15
 Quin mále narrando póssit depravárier.
 Tu id quód boni est excérpis, dicis quód mali est.
 Audí nunc contra: iám si argentum accéperit,
 Ducénda est uxor, út aís: concedó tibi: 700
 Spatiúm quidem tandem ádpárandis núptiis, 20
 Vocándi, sacrificándi dabitur paúlulum.
 Intérea amici, quód polliciti súnť, dabunt:
 Inde íste reddet. AN. Quam ób rem? aut quid dicét?

GE. Rogas?

Quot rés! (in an oracular tone.) ‘postilla mónstra evenerúnt

Introíť in aedis áter alienús canis: 25
 Angús per ínpluvium decídít de tégulis:
 Gallína cecinit: íterdixit háriolus:
 Harúspex vetuit ánte brumam aliquid novi
 Negóťi incipere, quae causa est iustíssuma.’ 710
 Haec fíent. AN. Vť modo fíant! GE. (confidently.) Fíent:
 mé vide. 30

Pater éxit: abi, dic ésse argentum Phaédriae. (exit Antipho towards the Forum.)

SC. 5.

DEMIPHO. CHREMES. GETA.

(Demipho and his brother come out of Chremes' house in conversation. Demipho has in his hand a large bag of money.)

DE. (with some impatience.) Quiétus esto, inquam: égo curabo né quid verborúm duit.

Hoc témere numquam amíttam ego a me, quín mihi testis ádhibeam:

Quoi dem ét quam ob rem dem, cómmemorabo. GE. (apart, to the audience.) Vt caútus est, ubi níl opu'st. 715

CH. (anxiously.) Atque íta opus facto est: ét matura, dúm lubido eadem haéc manet:

Nam si áltera illaec mágis instabit, fórsitan nos reíciat. 5

GE. (aside.) Rem ipsám putasti. DE. (turning to Geta.) Dúc me ad eum ergo. GE. Nón moror. (Geta turns to lead the way, but Chremes detains his brother, and speaks in a low tone.) CH. Vbi hoc égeris, Transíto ad uxorém meam, ut convéniat hanc priüs quam hínc abit.

Dicát eam dare nos Phórmioni núptum, ne suscénseat: 720

Et mágis esse illum idóneum, qui ipsí sit familiárior:

Nos nóstro officio nón digressos ésse: quantum is vóluerit 10

Datum ésse dotis. DE. (impatiently.) Quíd tua, malum, íd réfert? CH. Magni, Démipho.

DE. Non sátis est tuom te officium fecisse, íd si non fama ádprobat?

CH. Volo ípsíus quoque volúntáte haec fieri, né se eietam praédicet. 725

DE. Idem égo istuc facere póssum. CH. Mulier múlieri magis cónvenit.

DE. (yielding with an ill-grace.) Rogábo. (exit towards the Forum.) CH. (meditatively.) Vbi illas núnc ego reperíre possim, cógito. (he paces slowly towards the back of the stage.) 15

SC. 6. [V. 1.]

SOPHRONA. CHREMES.

(Sophrona comes out of Demípho's house, not seeing Chremes. She is in a state of tremulous agitation.)

SO. Quíd agam? quem mi amícum inveniam mísera? aut quo consília haec referam?

Aút unde auxiliúm petam?

Nám vereor, era ne ób meum suasum indígna iniuria ádficiatur: 730

Íta patrem adulescéntis facta haec tólerare audió vólenter.

CH. (aside, in some surprise.) Nám quae haec anus est, éxanimata a frátre quae egressá est meo? 5

SO. Quod ūt fácerem egestas me ínpulit, quom scírem infirmas núptias Hasce ésse, ut id consúlerem, interea víta ut in tûtó foret.

CH. (aside, excitedly.) Cérte edepol, nisi me ánimus fallit aút parum prospíciunt oculi, 735

Meaé nutricem gnátae video. SO. Néque ílle investigátur—CH. (aside.) Quid ago?

SO. Quí est eius pater. CH. (aside.) Ádeo an maneo, dum haéc quae loquitur mágis cognosco? 10

SO. Quód si eum nunc reperíre possim, níl est quod ve-reár. CH. Ea est ipsa :

Cónloquar. (advances.) SO. (nervously looking every way except the right.) Quis híc lóquitur?—CH. (calling softly.) Sophrona. SO. Ét meum nomen nóminat?

CH. Réspice ad me. SO. (with a cry of amazement.) Di, óbsecro vos, éstne hic Stilpho? CH. Nón. SO.
(in consternation.) Negas? 740

CH. (dragging her away from his house, and speaking in a low but excited tone.) Cóncede hinc a fóribus paulum istórsum sodes, Sóphrona.

Ne me ístoc posthac nómine appellássis. SO. Quid? non óbsecro es 15

Quem sémper te esse díctitasti? CH. (looking towards his house in manifest alarm.) St'! SO. Quid has metuís foris?

CH. Conclúsam hic habeo uxórem saevam. (Sophrona is speechless from terror, and trembles so violently that she can scarcely stand, but Chremes is so excited that he does not notice it.) vérum istoc me nómine

Eo pérperam olim díxi, ne vos fórté inprudéntes foris 745

Effútiretis átque id porro aliqua úxor mea rescísceret.

SO. Istóc pol nos te hic ínvenire míserae numquam pótuimus. 20

CH. Eho! díe mihi, quid reí tibi est cum fámilia hac unde éxis?

Vbi illaé sunt? SO. (bursting into tears.) Miseram me!

CH. Hém! quid est? vivóntne? SO. (speaking through her sobs.) Vivit gnáta.

Matrem ípsam ex aegritúdine hac miserám mors conse-cúta est. 750

CH. Male fáctum! SO. Ego autem, quae éssem anus de-sérta, egens, ignóta,

Vt pótui nuptum vírginem locávi huic adulescénti, 25

Harúm qui est dominus aédium. CH. (with astonishment.)

Antiphónine? SO. Hem! isti ípsi.

CH. (utterly bewildered.) Quid? duásne is uxorés habet?

SO. Au! obsecro, únám ille quídem hanc sólam.

CH. (scarcely believing that it can be true.) Quid íllam álterram quae dícitur cognáta? SO. Haec ergo est.

CH. Quíd aís? 755

SO. Compósito factum est, quó modo hanc amáns habere pósset

Sine dóte. CH. (he turns away, holding up his clasped hands in thankfulness.) Di vostrám fidem! quam saépe forte témere 30

Evéniunt quae non aúdeas optáre! offendi advéniens,

Quocúm volebam et út volebam, cónlocatam amári:

Quod nós ambo opere máxumo dabámus operam ut fieret, 760

Sine nóstra cura, máxuma sua cúra haec sola fécit.

SO. (anxiously recalling Chremes from his soliloquy.) Nunc quíd opus facto sít vide: pater ádulescentis vénit, 35

Eumque ánimo iniquo hoc óppido ferre áiunt. CH. Nil
períclicum est.

Sed pér deos atque hómínes meam esse hanc cavē resciscat quísquam.

SO. Nemo éx me scíbit. CH. Séquere tu me: cétera intus aúdiēs. (exeunt into Demipho's house.) 765

CH. (calling to Demipho in an agitated voice.) Ehēm, Démipho! 795

Iam illí datum est argéntum? DE. Curavi fíco. CH. Nollém datum.

(catching sight of Nausistrata.) Ei! vídeo uxorem: paéne plus quam sát erat. DE. Quor nollés, Chremes?

CH. (confused.) Iam récte. DE. Quid tu? ecquíd locutus cum ístac, quam ob rem hanc dúcimus? (15)

CH. Transégi. DE. Quid aīt tándem? CH. Abduci nón potest. DE. (much surprised.) Qui nón potest?

CH. (scarcely able to answer in his perplexity.) Quia utérque utrique est córdi. DE. Quid ístuc nóstra? CH.

Magni: praéter haec 5 800

Cognátam comperi ésse nobis. DE. Quid? deliras. CH. Síc erit:

Non témere dico: rédii mecum in mémoriam. DE. Satín, sánus es?

NA. Au! óbsecro, vidē ne ín cognatam pécces. DE. Non est. CH. Né nega: (20)

Patris nomen aliud dictum est: hoc tu errasti. DE. (incredulously.) Non norat patrem?

CH. Norat. DE. Quor aliud dixit? CH. (apart to Demipho, glancing with terror towards his wife whose suspicions are evidently aroused.) Numquamne hodie concedés mihi, 10 805 Neque intélleges? DE. Si tú nil narras? CH. (impatiently.) Pérdis? NA. Miror quid siet.

DE. Equidem hércle nesció. CH. (desperately.) Vin scire? at ita me servet Iúppiter, Vt própior illi, quám ego sum ac tu, némo est. DE. (in amazement.) Di vostrám fidem! (25)

Eámus ad ipsam: una ómnis nos aut scíre aut nescire hóc volo. (he turns towards the door of his house, beckoning to Chremes and Nausistrata to follow him.)

CH. (stopping Demipho.) Ah!

DE. Quid ést? CH. (petulantly.) Itān parvam míhi fidem esse apúd te! DE. (impatiently.) Vin me crédere? 15 810

Vin sátis quaesitum mi istuc esse? age, fiat. quid? illa fília

Amíci nostri quid futurum est? CH. Récte. DE. Hanc igitur míttimus?

CH. Quid ni? DE. Ílla maneat? CH. Sic. DE. (turning to Nausistrata with a shrug of his shoulders.) Ire igitur tíbi licet, Nausístrata. (30)

NA. Sic pól commodius ésse in omnis árbitor, quam ut coéperas,

Manére hanc; nam perlíberalis vísa est, quom vidí, mihi. (exit into her house, Demipho holding the door open for her.) 20 815

DE. (turning abruptly to his brother.) Quid istúc negoti est?

CH. (anxiously.) Iámne operuit óstium? DE. Iam.

CH. (Chremes goes to the door, feels that it is fast shut, then leads away the astonished Demipho to the farthest corner of the stage.) O Iúppiter!

Di nós respiciunt: gnátam inveni núptam cum tuo filio.

DE. Hem!

Quo pácto potuit? CH. (looking round nervously.) Nón satís tutus ést ad narrandum híc locus. (35)

DE. At tu íntro abi. CH. Heus! ne filii quidem hóc nóstri resciscánt volo. (exeunt into Demipho's house.)

SC. 4.

ANTIPHO.

(Antipho returns after helping Phaedria to settle matters with Dorio. He is in deep dejection about his own affairs.)

Laetús sum, ut meae res sése habent, fratri óbtigisse quód volt. 820

Quam scítum ést, eius modí parare in ánimo cupiditátes,

Quas, quóm res advorsaé sient, pauló mederi póssis!

Hic símul argentum répperit, curá sése expédívit:

Ego núllo possum rémedio me evólvere ex his túrbis, 5

Quin, si hóc celetur, ín metu, sin pátefit, in probró sim. 825

Neque mé domum nunc réciperem, ni mi éstet spes osténta

Huíusce habendae. séd ubinam Getam ínvenire póssim?

Vt rógem, quod tempus cónveniundi pátrís me capere suádeat.

(Antipho goes to the back of the stage to look up the street on the left, and so does not see Phormio enter on the right.)

SC. 5.

PHORMIO. ANTIPHO.

(Phormio comes on from the Forum, in high spirits.)

PH. (to the audience.) Argéntum accepi, Dórioni sólvi, abduxi

GE. Fámiliariórem oportet ésse hunc: minitatur malum.
(turning round.)

Séd ísne est quem quaero án non? ipsu'st, cóngredere

(actutum.) AN. Quid est?

GE. (in a transport of delight.) O ómnium, quantúm est qui vivont, hómo hominum ornatíssume :

Nám sine controvérsia ab dis sólus diligere, Ántipho.

AN. Íta velim : sed, quí istuc credam ita ésse, mihi dicí velim. 15 855

GE. Sátin est si te délibutum gáudio reddo? AN. (impatiently.) Énicas.

PH. (Phormio, who had remained somewhat in the background, now advances.) Quín tu hinc pollicitátiones aúfer et quod férs cedo. GE. Oh!

Tú quoque aderas, Phórmio? PH. Aderam : séd tu cessas?

GE. (places himself between Antipho and Phormio, and assumes an air of great importance.) Áccipe, em!

Út modo argentúm tibi dedimus ápúd forum, rectá domum Súmūs profecti : intérea mittit érūs me ad uxórém tuam. 20 860

AN. Quam ób rem? GE. (impatient at the interruption.)
Omitto próloqui : nam níl ad hanc rem est, Ántipho :

(Geta enacts the scene which he describes, 862-9, with much vivacity of tone and gesture.)

Úbi ín gynaeceum íre occipio, púer ad me adcurrít Mida,

Póne adprendit pállio, resupínat : respició, rogo

Quam ób rem retineát me : ait esse vétitum intro ad eram accédere.

‘Sóphrona modo frátrem huc,’ inquit, ‘sénis introduxít
Chremem,’ 25 865

Eúmque nunc esse íntus cum illis : hóc ubi ego audiui, ád foris

Súspenso gradú placide ire pérrexi, accessi, ástiti,

Ánimam compressi, aúrem admovi : ita ánimum coepi atténdere,

Hóc modo sermónem captans. AN. (clapping his hands.)

Eú, Geta! GE. Hic pulchérillum

Fácinus audi: itaque paene hercle éxclamavi gaúdio. 30 870

AN. Quód? GE. Quodnam arbitráre? AN. Nescio. GE.

Átqui mirificíssimum:

Pátruos tuos est páter inventus Phánio uxóri tuae. AN.

(starts back in utter amazement.) Hem!

Quíd aís? GE. Cum eius consuévit olim mátre in Lemno clánculum.

PH. (incredulously.) Sómnum! utín haec ígnoraret suóm

SC. 1 [8].

DEMIPHO. CHREMES. PHORMIO.

(Demipho and Chremes come out of the house of the former.
They advance to the front of the stage, so that Phormio at his entrance crosses behind them.)

DE. Dis mágnas merito grátias habeo átque ago, Quando évenere haec nóbis, frater, próspere. 895

CH. Estne íta uti dixi líberalis? DE. Óppido. 12

Quantúm potest, nunc cóveniundus Phórmio est, Priüs quám dilapidat nóstras trigintá minas,

Vt aúferamus. PH. (Phormio had entered during Demipho's last speech, and now, pretending to be unaware of his presence, knocks loudly at the door and calls out to the slave within.) Démiphonem sí domi est 5.

Visam, út quod—DE. (tapping Phormio on the shoulder.)

At nos ád te ibamus, Phórmio. 900

PH. De eadem hác fortasse caúsa? DE. Ita hercle. PH.

NOTES.

Didascalía. The notices called διδασκαλίαι, concerning the origin and first performance of Plautine and Terentian comedies, were inserted after the titles in the MSS., probably by grammarians of the Augustan age.

Phormio. The reason of the title is given Prol. 26-8.

Ludis Romanis, otherwise called Ludi Magni, or, from the circus wherein they were held, Ludi Circenses, were celebrated in honour of Jupiter, Juno, and Minerva on September 4th-12th. The entertainments included shows of gladiators, rope-dancers, comedies, etc.

Aedilibus Curulibus. These magistrates had official superintendence of the public games, and often spent vast sums upon them to gain popularity with a view to their canvass for the consulship.

egere, 'brought out.'

L. Ambivius Turpio was the manager who produced all Terence's plays. See p. 15. Cicero de Senect. 14. 48 mentions him as a good actor. With him is associated in all the Didascalíae, except that of the Hecyra, L. Atilius of Praeneste, of whom nothing further is known.

modos fecit . . . tota. 'The music by Flaccus, slave of Claudius, on treble and bass flutes throughout.' According to Servius tibiae impares = tibiae Phrygiae, i.e. two of unequal size and stops: tibiae pares = tibiae Sarranae, i.e. two of equal size and stops. Probably tibiae dextrae were treble, tibiae sinistrae bass, so that tibiae impares would be one of each. The Heauton Timorumenos was 'primum tibiis imparibus, deinde duabus dextris,' as opposed to 'tibiis imparibus tota,' the change of the music corresponding to the merrier character which the play assumed. Donatus, however, says that tibia dextra = bass, and sinistra = treble.

Claudi, sc. Servos, who composed the music for all Terence's plays.

Graeca, i.e. Comoedia Palliata, wherein the scene and characters are Greek, as opposed to a Comoedia Togata, in which they are Roman, or at any rate Italian. See Introduction, p. 15.

Apollodoru. This archaic form, representing the Greek gen. sing. in -ου, is retained in the Didascalíae; cf. Adelphoe = 'Ἀδελφοί. Apollodorus of Carystus in Euboea, a writer of New Comedy (see p. 13), also composed the original of the Hecyra. He is said to have written forty-seven comedies and gained the prize five times, but some confusion exists between him and another comic poet, Apollodorus of Gela.

Epidicazomenos (Mid. voice), i.e. 'one who claims a girl in marriage as next of kin.' Donatus says that the real title was Ἐπιδικαζομένη (Pass. voice), from the girl claimed, and that the Ἐπιδικαζόμενος was a different play; but this seems improbable, as we should naturally expect ἡ Ἐπιδικασθεῖσα, not Ἐπιδικαζομένη. Cf. 125 note.

facta IIII, 'produced fourth in order,' i.e. of Terence's comedies; the abortive attempt to represent the Hecyra being apparently not reckoned. See p. 15.

Cos. or Coss., the usual abbreviation for Consulibus. The date was 161 B.C. See p. 15.

Prologue.

It had been the custom of earlier dramatists to give a plot of the Play in the Prologue. As dramatic art developed this was felt to be unnecessary, and Terence only followed the example set by Plautus in the Trinummus (if the Prologue of that play be authentic), in making the various characters of the comedy unfold its story to the audience. It was, however, an innovation either to write no Prologue at all—as at the first representation of the Hecyra, and possibly of the Andria—or to make the Prologue a vehicle for answering personal criticisms and attacking critics. The Prologues of the six plays of Terence are all genuine, while the twelve extant Prologues of Plautus are all spurious, with the possible exception of that to the Trinummus.

1. postquam, as in Ad. 1, almost = quoniam (quom iam), the fact being that the ideas of sequence in time and of causality fade imperceptibly into each other.

poeta vetus, i.e. Luscius Lanuvinus, his jealous rival, to whom Terence refers in all his prologues, except that of the Hecyra—in Heaut. 22 with the epithet malevolus. Cf. p. 15.

poetam. Terence never introduces his own name, as Plautus sometimes does, but calls himself poetam, hunc, or hominem.

Note the alliteration, which however Terence does not use so freely as Plautus, except in his prologues; cf. 4, 8, 11, 14, 17, 18, 22, 23, 29. Jordan calculates that an alliteration occurs in about every nine lines of Plautus and twenty lines of Terence. Cf. 334.

2. studio, sc. scribendi.

4. dictitat, note the frequentative, 'is always saying.'

antehac, always scanned as two syllables in Terence.

5. Translate, 'that the plays . . . are poor in execution and common-place in style.' oratio is the manner in which the plot (argumentum) is worked out. scriptura is either (α) 'the style of the composition' = stilus, here and Andr. 12; or (β) 'the work composed;' cf. Hec. Prol. 2. 13 ne cum poeta scriptura evanesceret; ib. 24; Ad. 1.

levi, opposed to gravi, 'stately.'

6. adulescentulum, more correct than adolescentulum.

7. cervam fugere etc. depend on adulescentulum videre. In Terence video is often followed by an Inf. with Acc. expressed or understood; sometimes by a Participle, as is the rule with Augustan writers. Cf. 177, 621. We know nothing of the passage here alluded to, but we gather that the style of Lanuvinus was somewhat sensational and melodramatic. Insane delusions have often been represented on the stage, notably in the Ajax of Sophocles.

9. intellegeret, more correct than intelligeret.

quom, always so spelt in Plautus and Terence. Latin writers till the end of the republican period avoided u after u or v. The correct form in Cicero is cum.

stetit, 'succeeded;' stare was technically used of a play in this sense. This is one of the very few instances in which Terence retains the archaic long quantity of a final syllable. Cf. Ad. 25 augeāt industriam. Cf. p. 30.

10. Actoris, possibly Ambivius Turpio. Lanuvinus might have retorted that this was true of the Hecyra.

13. laccessisset = laccessivisset. Syncopation is more common in Terence than in Augustan Latin. Cf. 198 note.

14. prōlogum, in spite of πρόλογος; cf. platēa and πλατεία, crēpīdam and κρηπίδα, prōpinare and προπίνειν.

16. in medio etc., 'is for open competition among all.' Cf. ἐν μέσῳ κείται. For the opposite e medio see 967, 1019.

17. artem musicam = Gr. μουσικήν, which includes all literary, scientific, and artistic pursuits, opposed to γυμναστική. Translate, 'who cultivate dramatic art.'

18. ab studio studuit. The juxtaposition of two words of the same root is common in Terence. This is merely a special form of Assonance, and is to be distinguished from Agnominatio or Paronomasia, which, strictly speaking, is a play upon words of similar sound but different sense, something akin to a pun, e.g. Andr. 218 inceptio est amentium haud amantium. Paronomasia is fairly common in Plautus, but rare in Terence. The term is sometimes extended to a play upon different meanings of the same word, such as is not uncommon in Cicero, e.g. ius Verrinum.

reīcere, contracted form of rejicere; cf. 717, Verg. E. 3. 96 reice capellas. 'Translate, 'to reduce to beggary.'

19. hic. Cf. 1 note.

20. audisset bene, 'he would have been well spoken of;' audire bene or male is often used thus, e.g. 359. Cf. καλῶς or κακῶς ἀκούειν.

21. rellatum = red-latum by assimilation. Lucretius uses both rellatus and rēlatus; cf. 86 redducere, 646. Translate, 'Let him consider that he has been paid back in his own coin.'

22. dicundi. This was the archaic spelling of the Gerund and Gerundive. At the period of Terence the forms in -undus and -endus were used side by side for verbs of the third or fourth conjugation, except that -undus is never admitted where the verb-stem ends in u or v. The older form was much affected by Sallust, and is frequently used by Augustan writers, especially in legal or political phrases, e.g. iure dicundo, res repetundae, being most common in verbs of the fourth conjugation, ire and its compounds always retaining the form in -undus, while gerundus and ferundus are usually found in Cicero, Caesar, and Livy. The archaic form is, however, seldom used, as here (and 50), for the Gerund.

23. quom, 'although.' In Plautus often, in Terence occasionally, quom causal or concessive is followed by the Indicative. Cicero regularly uses this construction after such verbs as laudo, gaudeo, doleo, gratulor, and, if the reading be correct, in Off. 1. 44. 157 atque ut apum examina non fingendorum favorum causa congregantur, sed, cum congregabilia natura sunt, fingunt favos; sic homines... Cf. 208, 967.

Some editors place a note of interrogation after facit, but there is a good sense without a question. 'I will now say no more about him, though he on his side does yet more offend.'

de se is inserted to answer to de illo, emphasising the unprovoked character of the attack. The sense which is here given to de is unusual.

24. novam, sc. new to the Roman stage.

25. Epidicazomenon. Cf. note on Didascalia.

26. Latini etc., 'its Latin title is Phormio.' Bentley's emendation was Graece, Latine.

27. primas partis qui aget, 'the leading character,' Gr. πρωταγωνιστής.

Phormio, from φορμός, a mat, indicating the grovelling character of a parasite.

partis. The Acc. plural of such nouns of the third declension as form the Gen. plural in -ium was generally written -eis or -is. But from an early period, as inscriptions prove, there was considerable variety of usage. In the last century of the Republic the tendency seems to have been to write -es in common words, -is in others.

28. parasitus (παρά-σιτος), lit. 'a companion at table.' The term soon acquired an invidious meaning, 'a needy hanger-on,' such as were admitted to the houses of the wealthy on condition of making themselves useful and agreeable by telling stories or singing songs for the amusement of the guests.

res, 'the action of the play.'

29. voluntas vostra, 'your good will.'

30. date operam, 'give us your attention.' Cf. 62 note.

per silentium, 'in silence' or 'silently'; cf. per ludum, 'in sport,' per vim, 'forcibly,' per tumultum, 'uproariously,' etc.

32. quom per tumultum etc. 'When our troupe was driven off the stage with uproar' (Gr. ἐξένεσε), referring to the first attempt to produce the Hecyra (see p. 15). Ambivius Turpio says in his Prologue Hec. 33-6

Quom primum eam agere coepi, pugilum gloria, Funambuli eodem accessit expectatio, Comitum conventus, strepitus, clamor mulierum Fecere ut ante tempus exirem foras.

Appeals for good behaviour were very necessary in the case of the miscellaneous throng which composed the audience in a Roman theatre, as in the Poenulus of Plautus, where nurses are requested not to bring in babies, 'ne et ipsae sitiunt, et pueri pereant fame; neve esurientes hic quasi haedi obvagiant.' grex, 'the troupe;' dux gregis, 'the manager,' who was also the chief actor, in this case Turpio, and so called in v. 33 actor.

33. This line probably refers to the successful performances of the Heauton Timorumenos and Eunuchus, as the Hecyra was not accepted by the public till 160 B. C. the year after the performance of this play.

34. aequanimitas, 'your kind attention;' cf. Ad. 24.

ACT I. SCENE 1.

Davus is a character introduced merely to assist in the explanation of the plot to the audience, in Greek πρόσωπον προτακτικόν. He appears, purse in hand, to repay a loan to Geta, the confidential slave of Demipho.

35. summus, 'intimate.'

popularis, 'fellow-countryman.' If Davus = Dacus, it is likely enough that Terence might have considered him a fellow-countryman of Geta, as both Daci and Getae were tribes living on the banks of the Danube. At Rome slaves were often named thus after their nationality; e.g. Syrus. Popularis may, however, merely = 'fellow-slave,' according to the custom, not yet obsolete, of slaves to identify themselves with their masters.

36-7. erat ei etc. 'I had a trifling balance of money on a little account for some time due to him.'

rēlicūom. This word is always of four syllables in Lucretius and the older writers. Lucretius scans rēlicūos. Catullus, Tibullus, Vergil, and Horace, unwilling either to lengthen the first syllable or to unite the two last, avoid the word altogether. Later it is used as a trisyllable, e.g. by Juvenal, rēliquus. Note the diminutives.

38. id ut conficerem, sc. oravit, curious Ellipse. Translate, 'could I settle it?' In colloquial language the principal verb is often omitted. Cf. 65, 80, 142, 144, 198, etc.

39. erilem filium = erī filium, a common phrase in Terence. Cf. 128 note. Such words as erus, umerus, umor were never spelt with an h in Terence's time.

40. credo, parenthetical, as often in the comic writers.

41. quam inique comparatum est, 'what an unfair arrangement it is.'

ii, so A, no MS. reading ei or i, which is commonly printed in deference to Ritschl on Pl. Trin. 17 (Prolegomena, p. 98). Priscian says that ii was pronounced as i, and probably was sometimes so written.

demenso, 'rations,' 'short commons,' which were served out to slaves, an allowance proverbially scanty: sometimes called diaria (dies), as being the daily portion, e.g. Hor. Ep. 1. 14. 40. Cf. ἀρμαλῆ, Hes. Op. 767.

44. genium, 'his own self,' (from root GEN- in gigno). 'The Romans believed that every man had a genius, though their notions on the subject seem very confused. According to the name it should be the attendant on a man's birth, as it was believed to be the inseparable companion of his life. It represented his spiritual identity, and the character of the genius was the character of the man.' Mr. Maclean's note on Hor. Ep. 1. 7. 94. Cf. Hor. Od. 3. 17. 14 Cras genium mero Curabis, Pers. 5. 151 indulge genio. Cf. 70 note.

compersit, 'has saved,' spelt comparsit in the Calliopian MSS.

45. illa, i.e. the bride.

46. partum, sub. sit, the Ellipse making the phrase more emphatic.

47. ferietur alio munere, 'will be hit again,' a colloquial phrase for losing money which has a parallel in English. Propertius 4. 5. 44 uses ferit in a similar sense, alluding to this passage. In Pl. Trin. 247 ibi pendentem ferit, there is a play upon the ordinary and the colloquial meanings.

48. natalis dies, i. e. at the ἀμφιδρόμια, or name-feast, an Attic festival, at which the child was carried round the hearth. Birthdays were scrupulously observed among the Romans also, as occasions for gifts and feasts. Note the proceleusmatic in the second foot; see Introduction on Metres, p. 26.

49. initiabunt, a word of doubtful meaning in this place.

(1) 'at his initiation,' either to the family sacra, or to the Eleusinian or other mysteries.

(2) 'at his weaning,' because according to Varro children were then initiated to the rites of the deities who presided over eating, drinking, and sleeping, Eduia (or Edusa), Potica, and Cuba.

Admission to the family sacra is on the whole more probable, because the ceremony at weaning was purely Roman and so not likely to be here alluded to. See pp. 16-7. Some editors place only a comma after dies, supposing that the 'initiation' took place on the birthday; but it is more forcible to understand it as a fourth occasion for fleeing Geta.

50. mittundi. Cf. 22 note.

ACT I. SCENE 2.

Davus is interrupted by the appearance of Geta, who is coming out to look for him. In the conversation which ensues Geta lets the audience know the position of affairs; how impossible he had found it to control the two young men, Antipho and Phaedria, of whom he had been left in charge; how Phaedria had become enamoured of a music-girl whom he was unable to purchase from her master Dorio; how Antipho likewise had fallen a victim to the charms of a young lady named Phanium, whom he had first seen at her mother's funeral; how by Phormio's assistance a suit had been trumped up against Antipho, who was asserted to be the next-of-kin to Phanium; how, no defence being made, the marriage had been hastily concluded, with the result that all parties were now dreading the return of the young man's father Demipho.

51. rufus, 'red-haired.' Davus wore a red wig. Rufus in this sense was a cognomen of several families at Rome. The sentence is an Aposiopesis; cf. 110.

praesto est, 'he is here.' An old Nom. praestus is found in an inscription, but it is only used as an adverb elsewhere.

52. obviam conabar, sc. ire, 'I was going to look for you.'

em. In Plautus and Terence em seems to be used as another form of en, while hem is an interjection expressive of any strong emotion. The MSS., however, vary so much that often the reading cannot be certainly determined. Here A gives em, tr. 'take it, here it is;' all other MSS. hem, which is adopted in the text with a colon after accipe, because it is dramatically more forcible. Em is often followed by an Accusative, sometimes with tibi added. Cf. 210, 847, etc.

53. lectum est, 'it is of full weight,' lit. 'picked-out;' cf. Pl. Ps. 1149 Accipe: hic sunt quinque argenti lectae numeratae minae.

numerus, sc. nummorum.

54. amo te, 'I am much obliged to you.' Cf. 478. Similarly, amabo = 'if you please.'

55. adeo res redit, 'things are come to such a pass.' Cf. 317. Reflections on the depravity of the age are very frequent in the comic writers, e. g. Pl. Trin. 1028-53, Ad. 441-5, etc.

redit, probably contracted from rediit; cf. 153, 706, Munro on Lucr. 3. 1042.

57. tristis, 'out of spirits;' it often = 'out of temper' or 'morose' in Terence, e. g. Ad. 79.

58. istuc, neuter of istic, istaec, istoc or istuc, a form of iste strengthened by the demonstrative affix -ce, as in hic, haec, hoc, and illic, illaec, illoc or illuc; cf. 77 note, 290, etc.

59. modo ut = dummodo; cf. 773.

abi, 'go to,' a common expletive, sometimes used in a good sense, more often threatening or contemptuous. Cf. 994.

sis = si vis, usually joined in colloquial language with an Imperative. Cf. 103 sodes.

62. hanc operam tibi dico, 'I am all attention:' operam dicare = operam dare, cf. 30.

63. senis nostri = Demipho.

Chremem. Like some other Greek proper names this word follows more than one form of inflexion in Terence: e. g. Chremem, Chremi (gen.) And. 368, Chremes or Chreme (voc.); also Chremetem And. 472, Chremetis ib. 247, Chremeti infra 1026.

64. nostin? = novistine? The final -e of -ne is often dropped, and when affixed to the 2nd pers. sing. Perf. Ind. Act. the last syllable may be shortened. Cf. 194, 256, 275.

quid ni? 'of course,' a conversational phrase.

quid? 'well;' used to introduce a new point in a narration or argument; frequent in this sense in Cicero. Cf. 147.

Phaedriam, sub. nostin?

65. tam quam te = tam bene cum novi quam te.

66. illi, i. e. Chremes; nôstro, i. e. Demipho.

Lemnum. Lemnos became a dependency of Athens in the first Persian war and so continued until the Macedonian supremacy, a special clause in the peace of Antalcidas allowing Athens to keep Lemnos, Imbros, and Scyros.

Ciliciam. After the conquest of Alexander the Great, Greek civilisation spread to Cilicia, and Tarsus became a well-known school of philosophy.

67. antiquom, 'of old standing,' not old in years, which would have been senem, or veterem.

68. modo non, 'little short of.'

70. sic est ingenium, 'that is his way:' ingenium = the natural bent of his character or 'genius.' Cf. 44 note.

regem me esse oportuit, 'Tis I ought to have been the Croesus,' implying, I would have made a better use of my money than that. Rex was technically used for a wealthy powerful patron in relation to his clients and dependants: cf. 338, Hor. Ep. I. 17. 20, Juv. I. 36, etc.

71. hic (so A) with relinquunt; other MSS. read hinc with abeuntes.

72. provinciam etc. (pro-videntia, pro-video), 'you undertook a hard task.'

73. mi usus venit, 'so I found it,' lit. 'experience came for me;' a familiar idiom, cf. Heaut. 553, 556, 557.

74. memini, 'I am sure that;' the word literally means 'to have in mind.'

deo irato meo, 'because my god was angry with me.' Every person had some special deity, under whose protection he supposed himself to be; a sort of divine 'patronus.' Cf. Pl. Poen. 2. 4 dis meis iratissumis; Verg. A. 2. 396 haud numine nostro. We might render, 'I am sure that the charge was a freak of my evil genius.'

76. scapulas perdidit, 'I made my shoulders come to grief,' i. e. I got beaten for my pains.

77. venere in mentem mi istaec; istaec can be Nom. fem. pl. or Nom. neut. pl. (cf. 58 note); if taken here as fem. the sense is, 'I thought of those shoulders of yours;' if as neut. 'I thought of what you just mentioned.' The former seems preferable.

78. advorsum stimulum calces, sc. iactare, 'it is folly to kick against the pricks;' πρὸς κέντρα μὴ λάκτιζε, is a Greek proverb found in Aeschylus, Pindar, and Euripides, e. g. Aesch. Ag. 1624, Eur. Bacc. 794, Acts of the Apos. 9. 5 and 26. 14.

The text of 77-8 is according to the best MS. authority.

Some editors give the whole passage to Geta (73-79), reading 'nam quae (=quaenam) inscitia est, Advorsum stimulum calces!' as a quotation.

eis, 'for them,' dat. commodi.

79. obsequi quae vellent, 'to humour them in whatever they wished : ' quae, Acc. of limitation, cf. Ad. 990.

scisti uti foro, 'you know how to work the market : ' scisti = scivisti. Note the close connexion between the Present and the full Perfect ; 'you have understood' = 'you know.' Cf. 103.

80. nil quicquam, an emphatic pleonasm, common in colloquial language. Cf. 89, 630. There is an ellipse of fecit ; cf. 440 note.

81. puellulam. Note the contemptuous diminutive.

82. perдите, 'to distraction ; ' misere is similarly used.

83. inpurissimo, an abusive epithet, common in Terence.

84. neque . . . quicquam, sc. erat, 'and there was no money to give,' sc. for her purchase.

85. oculos pascere, cf. Verg. I. 468 animum pictura pascit inani.

86. sectari. Note the frequentative, 'dance attendance on her.' The word was used of the young men who frequented the society of the famous philosophers and sophists.

in ludum ducere, 'to escort her to her school,' i. e. where she had her music lessons, her value as a slave depending on the extent of her accomplishments.

reducere. The double d is confirmed by Lucretius, who lengthens the first syllable, and it appears as a correction in D and Andr. 559 in A.

88. exadvorsum ilico, 'right opposite ; ' ilico (in loco) is occasionally used in early Latin in its original sense of place, not as later of time. Cf. Ad. 156 nunciam ilico hic consiste ; infra 195. Here the reading is doubtful, all the Calliopian MSS. giving ei loco.

89. tonstrina, in most MSS. tostrina, cf. Cos. = Cons., note on Didascalia. Barbers' shops in classical, as in more recent times, were favourite resorts where the news of the day was learnt and discussed.

fere plerumque, pleonastic, cf. 80.

90. dum iret, Subjunctive of indefinite frequency.

91. illi = illic, an archaic form often found in Plautus, sometimes in Terence, and perhaps in Vergil G. I. 54, 251, 3. 17. Cf. 572, 772.

92. mirarier ; historic Inf., a marked characteristic of Terence's style, wherein he is followed by Sallust. The archaic termination of the Inf. Pass. or Deponent in -ier is not unfrequent in Terence. Possibly amarier = amare-er = amare-re = amare-se (the reflexive pronoun), but nothing certain can be determined, dicier and similar words being more difficult of explanation. Cf. 206, 305, 306, 589, 603, 632, 640, 697, 931. Terence only uses this form when the antepenultimate is long.

93. modo, 'just now;' cf. 221. With the following vivid narrative may be compared the corresponding scene in the Andria 105 sqq.

94. visum, is attracted into the gender of the Complement onus.

95. hic viciniæ, 'hard by;' viciniæ is most probably a Genitive (partitive) depending on hic; cf. Andr. 70 huc viciniæ, and such phrases as adhuc locorum Pl. Capt. 382, istuc ætatis Heaut. 110; it might, however, be a locative.

97. ea sita est exadvorsum, 'the corpse was laid out opposite the door,' as was the custom. sita is more commonly used of a corpse when buried.

99. miseritum est, sub. me, 'I was moved with pity.'

101. commorat = commoverat.

102. voltisne (ut) eamus. Volo may be followed by the simple Inf., Acc. and Inf., Subj. with or without ut, or Acc. with a Part. Pass. Cf. 432.

visere. The final Inf. is used by Terence after ire, mittere, and dare, as well as ut with Subj. or Supine in -um.

103. sodes = si audes, 'if you please.' Cf. 59 sis.

vēnimus, Perf. tense, 'we arrive.' Note the vigour of the Asyndeton.

104. et quo magis diceret, 'and all the more reason for saying so is that ...'

106. horrida, 'unkempt.' This scene is closely imitated by Molière, Les Fourberies de Scapin, Acte I, Sc. 2.

107. vis boni, 'the very essence of beauty.' Cf. δύναμις τοῦ καλοῦ.

108. inesset ... extinguerent. The use of the Imperf. Subj. for the Pluperf. Subj., for the sake of greater vividness, is an idiom often found in the best authors; sometimes even a Pres. Subj. is substituted. Cf. Madvig, Lat. Gr. § 347, obs. 1-3; infra 119, 297, 299, 468, etc.

110. satis scita est, 'she is pretty enough.' Cf. Andr. 486 perscitus puer, 'a very fine boy;' the more usual meaning being 'witty, 'clever,' 'sensible,' e.g. 820.

For the Aposiopesis cf. 51.

111. scin quam = scisne quam perditæ?

quo evadat vide, 'see the sequel.'

112. anum, i.e. Sophrone.

recta, sc. via, 'straight.'

113. enim. Plautus and Terence often use enim or nam as a particle of emphasis; cf. 332, 338, 487, 555, 694, etc. In 983 enim in this sense begins a sentence; cf. Pl. Trin. 1134. Vergil constantly employs the same idiom, and there is a similar use of γάρ in Greek.

se negat, sc. id facturam esse. Such an ellipse is common enough in colloquial language, e.g. 383, 447, 519, etc.; cf. 440 note.

117. nescire, Historic Inf., cf. 92; like the Historic Pres. it can be followed either by a primary or historic Subjunctive in dependent sentences.

119. non = nonne, as often in Terence and Plautus. Indeed it is doubtful whether nonne was found in the original MSS. of these writers, -ne or non being used indifferently. However all existing MSS. read nonne 768, Andr. 238, 239, Ad. 660. Cf. 260, 392, 525, 856.

veniam daret, 'would he not have given him permission;' for the tense cf. 108 note.

120. indotatam. The dowry was the first point looked to by a father who was arranging a match for his son.

122. quid fiat? The Subj. depends on rogas or some similar word understood. It is common in the indignant or excited repetition of a question asked by another; e.g. 382, 685.

123. homo confidens, 'an impudent rascal.' Note homō here, homō 411.

qui, an old form of the ablative or locative, used by Plautus and Terence in several senses:—

(1) as a relative, referring to any gender and either number. Cf. 655, 770, 889.

(2) as a final particle, with the Subjunctive—'in order that.' Cf. Ad. 950.

(3) as an interrogative adverb, in direct or indirect questions,—'how,' 'why.' Cf. 130, 330, 381, 396, 398, 799, 855, 915.

(4) as an indefinite particle with words of emphasis—'somehow,' Gr. πῶς, e.g. hercle qui, edepol qui, quippē qui, numqui, etc. Cf. Ad. 800.

(5) introducing curses, πῶς, ut, 'would that,' 'O that.' Cf. the present passage, Pl. Trin. 923, 997.

perduint, archaic form of perdant (as duint for dent), used often by Plautus, thrice by Terence, twice by Cicero. Plautus also employs perduim, perduis, perduit. In Terence occur duim, duit, duint, in Plautus duim, duis or duas, duit, duint. Cf. 519, 713, 976, 1005.

125. proxumi. In older Latin superlatives were spelt -umus not -imus. Julius Caesar is said to have introduced -imus. By a law of Solon if a citizen died leaving his estate to a daughter in default of male issue, provided no special arrangement had been made in the father's will, her next of kin (ἀγχιστεύς) was bound to marry her, or to provide an additional dowry. Cf. Diod. Sic. 12. 18. 2, 3. Such a girl was called ἐπίκληρος, and the person making application for her hand was said ἐπιδικόζεσθαι. Cf. note on Didascalía; Numbers xxxvi. 8. Demosthenes in Mac. 1067 ad fin. tells us that there was a fine of 500 drachmae for a πεντακοσιομέδιμνος, 300 for a ἑπταεὺς, and 150 for a ζευγίτης.

127. scribam dīcam = γράφομαι δίκην. Cf. 329, 439, 668. Here there is a play upon dīcam and dīcam.

128. paternum amicum = patris amicum; cf. 39 note.
me, sub. esse.

130. qui, 'how;' cf. 123 note.

131. quod . . . commodum, 'as shall be good and expedient for my case.' Most editors connect this clause with what follows, but it seems more natural to take it with confingam, quod being an Acc. of respect.

132. quom . . . refelles. The case was to be undefended.

133. mihi paratae lites, 'I am in for a row;' a colloquial usage, cf. 219, Ad. 792.

quid mea, sc. refert? 'What care I?'

134. iocularem audaciam! Acc. of exclamation. 'What amusing impudence!'

135. ventum est. Cf. 129.

vincimur, plural because Geta identifies himself with Antipho.

137. quid te futurum est? 'What will become of you?' Cf. 811. Facere, fieri, esse, in the sense of 'to do anything with a person,' 'anything to be done with, or happen to a person,' are constructed with the Dative or Ablative without a preposition, rarely with de and the Ablative. Cf. Andr. 116 quid facias illi? ib. 614 quid me faciam? infra 426, Pl. Trin. 405 quid factum est eo? Ad. 996 sed de fratre quid fiet? Cic. Fam. 14. 4. 3 quid Tullioli mea fiet?

138. Pyrrhus in Ennius An. 204 is made to say . . . quidve ferat fors virtute experiamur. This makes the sentiment in Geta's mouth yet more absurd.

placet, 'well said,' 'hear, hear.'

139. hcm! Cf. 52 note.

140. laudo, 'bravo!'

ad precatorem adeam, credo, 'I am to betake myself to an intercessor, I suppose.' From allusions in the comedians, e.g. Heaut. 976, 1002, we gather that it was customary for a slave when in trouble to enlist the services of a precator. For credo parenthetical cf. 40.

141. amitte hunc, 'let him off;' often in this sense in Plautus and Terence. Donatus says, quod nos dicimus dimittere, antiqui etiam dicebant amittere. Cf. 175, 176, 414, 918.

142-3. si quicquam, sub. faciat.

nil = an emphatic non; so also nullus, cf. Andr. 370 CH. Liberatus sum hodie, Dave, tua opera. DA. Ac nullus quidem.

tantummodo non addit, 'the only thing he leaves out.'

vel occidito, 'you may kill him if you like.' In such sentences reference is made to the original sense of vel (from volo). On the quantity see p. 28.

144. paedagogus ille. Phaedria is comically so called because he escorted his music-girl to and from her school like a παῖδαγωγός.

qui citharistriam, sc. sectatur. Cf. 86.

145. quid rei gerit? 'how does he get on?'

sic, tenuiter, 'so so, but poorly.' Cf. 5.

146. Note the Hiatus after fortasse, at a change of speaker. See p. 31.

147. quid? 'I say.' Cf. 64 note.

148. quoad expectatis? 'when are you expecting?' lit. 'up to what point of time are you waiting for?' quoad = quod ad = ad quod. Cf. 23, 32.

150. portitores, 'the custom-house officers,' who collected the portoria, harbour-dues. All letters brought by sea seem to have passed beneath their censorship. Cf. Pl. Trin. 793, 810.

151. numquid aliud me vis? 'is there anything further you want me for?' A common formula of leave-taking. Cf. 458, Ad. 247, Pl. Trin. 192, Hor. Sat. 1. 9. 6. Note the double Acc. after vis, as after a verb of asking. This construction is used by Terence more freely than by Augustan writers, e.g. with incuso 914, condono 947.

ut bene sit tibi, the polite rejoinder, which was changed by Demea in reply to Syrus, Ad. 432, to 'Mentem vobis meliorem dari.'

152. hoc, i. e. the money paid to him by Davus.

Dorcio. Dorcium was Geta's wife. Female names often ended in -um, e. g. Phanium, Glycerium.

ACT I. SCENE 3.

The young men, Antipho and Phaedria, appear in conversation. The former is dreading his father's return, the latter reproaches his brother for his faint-heartedness, and contrasts his own love-lorn condition with that of Antipho, who is in full possession of the object of his affections.

153. adeon rem redisse, 'to think that things have come to such a pass.' Terence often uses the Acc. and Inf. to express excited or indignant exclamations and questions.

-ne is frequently found in such forms, because a question is implied if not expressed, e. g. 339 ; but naturally -ne is not used if the clause begins with non, e. g. 232-3.

redisse. For the spelling see 35 note, 460, etc.

qui mihi consultum optume velit esse, 'though he is anxious for my best interests,' a common phrase, consultum esse being used impersonally. qui is here concessive.

154. ut, repeated from line above. The clause patrem ut extimescam should be taken before qui mihi etc.

ubi in mentem eius adventi venit, 'when a thought of his arrival has occurred to me.' This construction of venire in mentem with a Genitive is not unfrequent in Cicero, e. g. Sull. 6. 19 cum matronarum ac virginum veniebat in mentem. The phrase is almost equivalent to meminisse in meaning and so takes the same construction. It may be impersonal as here, or personal with the subject thought of in the nominative, as Liv. 8. 5 non venit in mentem pugna apud Regillum lacum. Cf. Madv. § 291, obs. 3. All MSS. give venit, except that the late corrector of A has introduced an A, whence most editors read veniat. When ubi is used of indefinite frequency the Subjunctive naturally follows ; but in this case Antipho may well be supposed to be thinking of the present occasion only.

adventi, archaic for adventūs. In early Latin the Gen. of this declension ended in -uis, e. g. Heaut. 287 amuis. This was contracted (a) into -ūs, (b) into -i, the lightly pronounced s being first dropped, and then -ui shortened to -i. Only the form -ūs is employed by Augustan writers, but Ennius, Lucretius, Plautus, and Terence use both forms side by side. We find in Terence adventi, domi, fructi, ornati, quaesti, tumulti. Neither Plautus nor Terence ever write domūs.

155. quod, 'whereas,' both here and 157 quod is an Acc. of respect, loosely used as a connective particle, a characteristic idiom of comic diction: e. g. 263, 1052-3, etc.

ut par fuit, 'as was right ;' par is so used by Cicero.

156. quid istuc ? 'what do you mean by that ?' The MSS. give quid istuc est ? and consciūs sis, both cannot be kept on account of the metre, and it seemed less violent to omit est than to alter sis to es.

qui, causal, 'seeing that you.' Cf. 471.

157. quod. Cf. 155 note, Cic. Fam. 14. 4. 1 quod utinam minus vitæ cupidī fuissemus ; and for id following quod Andr. 258 quod si ego rescissem id prius, etc.

utinam ne. Cicero uses both ne and non after utinam.

158. neu is for et ne, as neque is for et non.

neu cupidum eo inpulisset, 'and had not urged on my desires to that act :' eo lit. 'thither,' i. e. to the marriage. Cf. 201.

159. non potitus essem, 'suppose I had not won her.' Cf. Verg. A. 4. 603 verum anceps pugnae fuerat fortuna.—Fuisset.

fuisset . . . dies, 'then I should have been wretched for the next few days.'

160. cotidiana. Neither the spelling nor the quantities of this word seem to have been settled. Martial, 11. 1. 2 writes cōtīdiana or quōtīdiana, Catullus 68. 141 (139) cōtīdiana or cōttīdiana, though R. Ellis and most modern editors of Catullus replace the word by some conjectural emendation.

audio, 'I understand.'

161. dum expecto etc. Antipho continues his sentence, not heeding Phaedria's audio.

consuetudinem, 'loving intercourse,' often so used in Plautus and Terence.

162. The order is 'Aliis aegre est quia quod amant deficit: tibi dolet quia (quod amas) superest'. Tr. 'others fret from lack of bliss: you from surfeit.'

164. quidem hercle certo. Phaedria tries to make his sentence as emphatic as possible by the repetition of intensive words. Cf. Andr. 347 mea quidem hercle certe in dubio vita est, Gr. τοιγάροι, τοιγαροῦν.

165. ita me di bene ament, 'heaven preserve me.' Cf. 883, 954.

166. iam depecisci morte cupio, 'now would I gladly close the bargain with my life:'. morte is Abl. of price, cf. Pl. Bacch. 865 pacisci cum illo paulula pecunia potes.

tu conicito cetera, 'do you now compare the other points:'. conicere=to place two propositions side by side, and so to draw a conclusion from them; cf. Gr. συμβάλλειν, and Juv. 6. 436 committit vates et comparat.

168. ut ne addam, 'not to mention.' Terence uses ut ne=ne negative purpose, e. g. 245, 314, 415, Andr. 259, and also=ut non negative result, e. g. 975. So Cicero rarely, e. g. Verr. 2. 4. 28 nam res celatum voluerat . . . ut ne multi illud ante perciperent oculis quam populus Romanus: see a curious instance in Rosc. Amer. c. 20, where ut ne= 'provided that not.'

ingenuam liberalem, 'a lady of free and noble birth.'

171. scelere, 'rascal.'

quo=quocum, which the later MSS. give.

172. plerique omnes, 'almost all of us;'. the same phrase is found Andr. 55, Pl. Trin. 29.

nostri nosmet poenitet, 'we are ever discontented with our lot.'

nosmet. The suffix -met= 'self' is attached to ego and tu, rarely to meus. Conversely -pte= 'self,' 'own,' is commonly affixed to possessive pronouns, rarely to personal pronouns; while -te is found with cases of tu only. Cf. 280, 467, 766, 914.

173. videre. Plautus and Terence usually prefer the form in -re of second pers. sing. pass. to that in -ris except for metrical reasons. Cicero and Vergil follow the same custom except in the Pres. Ind. On the other hand Livy and Tacitus seldom use the form in -re.

174. de integro, 'freely.' The phrase Andr. 26 = 'anew.' In both cases the derivative meaning (in privative and stem of tango) is easily traced.

etiam (Gr. ἔτι), 'even yet,' as often.

175. retinere, amare, amittere. So all MSS. Most editors, seeing the alternatives neque mittendi nec retinendi in 176, get rid of amare; e.g. retinere amorem an mittere (Dz., Fleck., etc.): retinere eam anne amittere (B. and W. following Dz. first ed.). Bentley reads retinere amare an mittere. To add amare to retinere is no doubt more lover-like than logical, but that seems hardly sufficient reason for altering Antipho's words, which all MSS. give without variation.

For amittere cf. 141 note.

176. ut neque mihi sit amittendi. So A with Donatus and Servius. This reading involves the scansion mīhī, which is uncommon in Terence. B C D E G P with A₂ insert eius after sit. If this reading be accepted it is an instance of the gerund used in a purely substantival sense, with a genitive after it, 'of the dismissal of her;' cf. Heaut. 29 novarum qui spectandi faciunt copiam, Hec. 372 eius (sc. uxoris) videndi cupidus recta consequor. This construction, which also occurs in Plautus, Lucretius, Cicero, and Suetonius, is instructive as showing how entirely the gerund was once a verbal noun. One MS. F gives mi ius sit.

177. videon . . . advenire? 'Do I see Geta come running hither?'

178. ipsus, archaic for ipse, common in Terence.

ei, interjection, often written hei.

ACT I. SCENE 4.

Geta appears in great perturbation, having heard of the sudden arrival of Demipho. Phaedria and the slave try to screw Antipho's courage to the sticking-point, but in vain. When the old man is seen approaching Antipho hurriedly decamps, leaving his brother to bear the brunt of his father's anger.

179. nullus es, 'you are done for,' a colloquial phrase. Cf. 942, Ad. 599.

celere. This is the usual form of the adverb in Terence.

reperis. Here repperis is found in A B C D F P, reppereris in D₂ G and Priscian, repereris E. Probably reperis is the true reading, as mistakes of this sort often occur in the MSS.; e. g. in 192 five good MSS. read repperiam for reperiam.

180. te inpendent. A very rare construction, inpendere being followed by Dat. or in with Acc. Cf. Lucilius ut quae res me inpendet agatur, also Lucr. 1. 326 mare quae inpendent. Lucretius also uses incidere and accidere with an Accus.

181. uti, 'how,' as often.

183. quidnam? 'about what?' Acc. of limitation.

184. 'Then I have but a moment to consider this affair.'

punctum temporis is rather a favourite phrase of Cicero. Cf. στιγμή χρόνου.

185. quod, sc. Antipho's marriage.

186. laterem lavem, 'I should be washing a brick;' a translation of the Greek proverb πλίνθον πλύνεις. The meaning is, 'it would be worse than useless.' Greek bricks were made of clay baked in the sun, so that the more they were washed the more dirty they would become. Cf. Xen. Hell. 5. 2. 5.

187. quom . . . tum. This sentence shows well how these conjunctions, at first purely temporal, come to be used as particles of connexion. Here you might translate, 'while' . . . 'then,' or 'not only' . . . 'but also.'

animi is a Locative like humi, domi, etc.: cf. Ad. 610 discrucior animi.

188. nam absque eo esset, 'for were it not for him.' Plautus and Terence only use absque in the protasis of conditional sentences with si omitted as here. In the Augustan period absque is only used in a few quasi-juridical formulae, e. g. absque sententia, 'without judgment.' Cf. Pl. Trin. 832, 1127.

absque was formed by adding -que (its copulative force being lost) to abs, which was a collateral form of ab (cf. ἐκ, ἐξ), used before words beginning with c, g, t. As early however as Plautus, abs is rarely found except before te. Cicero always wrote abs te up to about B.C. 55. Occasional uses of abs in later authors, e. g. Livy, are probably intentional archaisms. In as-pello, as-porto, as-pernor (for as-spernor), the b has fallen out. Cf. Pl. Pers. 159 abs choro; infra 201, 378, 617, 840.

189. vidissem = providissem, colloquial.

190. aliquid convasassem, 'I should have packed a few things together:' convasare is ἀπαξ λεγόμενον in classical literature. It is taken from the military phrase vasa colligere, 'to pack up.' The few things would be of course his master's property.

The text gives the reading of all MSS., and must be scanned as an Iambic Octonarius. To do so seems so unlikely in this place that most editors prefer the violent expedient of reading protinam, an archaic form of protinus found in Plautus and mentioned here by Donatus, and scanning it as prōtīnam, for which there seems no justification.

192. qua quaerere insistam via ? 'where (lit. by what road) shall I begin to look for him ?' insistere, 'to stand' or 'press upon' may be constructed with a Dat. or in with Abl. or a simple Acc. ; while in the sense of 'to set about,' 'to begin,' it is followed by an Inf. as here. A confusion of these usages probably accounts for the reading viam in A F G.

193. nescio quod magnum . . . malum, 'some great calamity or other.' If nescio quod had meant 'I do not know what,' the following verb would have been in the Subj. Nescio quid, 'somewhat,' is often used to qualify a verb or adjective. Nescio may be scanned as a dactyl or as a spondee by Synizesis. Cf. p. 31.

194. sanun = sanusne.

ibi plurimum est, 'he is mostly there.'

195. ilico may here be of place, 'where you are,' or of time, 'at once.' Cf. 88 note.

satis pro inperio, sub. loqueris, 'you give your orders peremptorily enough.'

196. The grammatical order is Ipse est obviam, quem volui, 'here is the very man I want.' Cf. Andr. 532 eccum ipsum obviam.

197. cēdō, 'tell me.' This archaic imperative ('tell me' or 'give me') is used by Cicero. The plural cette is only found in old Latin. Cf. 321, 329, 398, 550, 642, 692, etc.

verbo expedi, 'explain it in a word.'

198. meumne = meumne patrem vidisti ? a striking ellipse.

intellecti. A similar syncope (is being omitted) of verbs whose Perf. Ind. ends in -si, -xi, is used by Latin poets :

(1) in the second pers. sing. Perf. Ind. (often), e. g. dixti (often), e. g. 537, and second pers. plur. (rarely).

(2) in Perf. Infin. Cf. Andr. 561 produxe, Heaut. 32 decesse, ib. 1001 iusse.

(3) in all persons sing. and first pers. plur. of Pluperf. Subj. ; but none of this set occur in Terence.

The syncope of -avisti, -avissem, -ovisti, -ovissem, etc., into -asti, -assem, -osti, -ossem, etc., is too common to require detailed notice.

Hem ! This is an exclamation of surprise at Antipho's consternation. Phaedria, not having so guilty a conscience, had not been so quick to catch Geta's meaning.

199. quid ais? a common phrase in Terence; used,

(1) as a request for information, usually when a remark has not been heard or understood, as here. Cf. 833.

(2) as an exclamation of surprise or anger at some remark which seems scarcely credible, e. g. 755, 873, 1040.

(3) to introduce a new point in conversation, or to call attention, like dis donc. 'What do you say to this?' 'look here.' Cf. 798 note.

200. nam etc. may follow on from quid agam? or nam quod may = quodnam, as is not unfrequent in Terence, e. g. 732.

201. eo. Cf. 158. Both eo and meae are here scanned as monosyllables.

abs. Cf. 188 note.

Phanium was Antipho's young wife.

203. fortis fortuna adiuvat, 'fortune favours the brave,' a proverb found in most languages. Cf. Menan. Fr. τόλμη δικαία καὶ Θεὸς συλλαμβάνει, Soph. Fr. 12 (Brunck), οὐ τοῖς ἀθύμοις ἡ τύχη συλλαμβάνει, Verg. A. 10. 285 audentes fortuna iuvat.

204. non sum apud me, 'I am not myself at all,' a colloquial phrase, cf. Andr. 408, 937.

nunc quom maxume, 'now most particularly.' Cf. Ad. 518, Andr. 823.

ut sis, sc. apud te.

206. inmutarier, 'change my nature,' lit. 'change myself.' Many cases occur where traces of the old Middle Voice can be clearly seen under Passive forms. Cf. 92 note.

208. quom hoc non possum, 'since I cannot do this.' Cf. 23 note.

hoc nil est: ilicet, 'this is nonsense: let us be off.'

ilicet = ire licet was a formula of dismissal from an assembly, funeral, or other ceremonial gathering; see Conington's note on Verg. A. 6. 231. Cf. Ad. 791, where ilicet = 'it is all up.'

209. quin abeo? 'why do I not go?' equivalent in meaning to 'I am off.' Note the following uses of quin (quī-ne):

(1) 'why not?' either in direct or indirect questions. As may be seen from the present passage this meaning passes easily into 'indeed,' 'verily,' without a question. Cf. 429, 539, 1015.

(2) with Imperatives. This use is a natural development of the first; for quin taces? is equivalent in sense to tace. Cf. 223, 350, 486, 857, 882, 935.

(3) as a corroborative particle, 'indeed,' 'verily,' sometimes further strengthened by etiam. Cf. Ad. 262 quin omnia sibi post putavit esse prae meo commodo.

(4) in the common sense, 'but that,' after verbs expressing doubt, prevention, or the like, with a negative. Cf. 272, 697, etc.

210. quid si adsimulo? 'what if I assume an air.'

em! Cf. 52 note. In 212 em istuc scans as ém 'stuc.

212. par pari ut respondeas, sc. serva, 'take care to answer tit for tat:' serva, in its colloquial sense, 'take care,' is understood by a kind of Zeugma before ut respondeas, from istuc serva, 'keep that expression,' where it is in its ordinary meaning.

213. saevidicis is ἀπαξ λεγόμενον.

protelet, only ante- and post-classical, probably derived from pro and tendo, and so not connected with either Gr. τῆλε or telum (tex-lum), 'a missile weapon.' Protelum is used by Cato and Lucilius for 'a team of oxen harnessed in single file,' thence in Lucr. 2. 531 undique protelo plagarum continuato, 'a continuous succession of blows,' ib. 4. 190. So too in legal language protelare = 'to prolong by successive delays.' Here it forcibly expresses the idea of a rapid succession of attacks which might prevent Antipho from getting in a word of defence. Tr., 'lest in his anger he should rout you with his furious broadsides.'

214. coactum te esse, sub. responde.

tenes? 'do you understand?' In the same sense in Andr. 300, 349, 498, etc.

215. in ultima platea, 'at the bottom of the street.' For platēa cf. 14 note.

219. litis. Cf. 133.

220. ego plectar pendens, 'I shall be hung up and flogged.' Cf. Pl. Trin. 247 ibi pendentem ferit.

221. modo. Cf. 93 note.

223. aufer mi 'oportet', 'must me no musts.' Phaedria means 'stop your platitudes and tell me something practical.'

quin. Cf. 209 note.

225. ad defendendam noxiam, 'to protect ourselves from blame.' Cf. 266.

226. 'That Phormio's suit was righteous, all plain sailing, sure to win, most equitable.'

vincibilem. In Augustan Latin verbal adjectives in -ibilis have nearly always a passive signification; but in earlier periods the meaning is often active. Cf. 961 and Ad. 608 placabilis; Verg. G. 1. 93 Boreae penetrabile frigus; Hor. O. 1. 3. 22 dissociabilis (Oceanus); exitiabilis = exitialis in Plautus, Cicero, Livy, Ovid, and Tacitus; Lucretius uses genitabilis, mactabilis; Horace has illacrimabilem Plutonem (act.), and illacrimabiles urgentur (pass.), Munro Lucr. 1. 11.

227. em! 'see now!'

230. subcenturiatus, 'as a reserve,' lit. 'a man to fill a vacancy in a centuria.' Geta is fond of military metaphors. Cf. 285, 320, 346-7.

In this Play, as in the Adelphi, the division of Acts and Scenes in the MSS. is dramatically impossible, and is doubtless due to a copyist's ignorance. This edition adopts the arrangement found in practice to be the most natural and convenient, but the old numbering of Acts and Scenes is preserved in brackets for purposes of reference.

In MSS.				In this edition
Act I ends at line 230.				Act I ends at line 314.

ACT I. SCENE 5. [ACT II. SCENE 1.]

Demipho is boiling over with rage at his son's unauthorised and imprudent marriage. Phaedria loyally defends his brother, and assisted by Geta makes every possible excuse. Between them they manage to divert the old man's wrath upon Phormio's head.

231. itane tandem etc., 'has Antipho really thus married a wife?'

tandem emphasises the question; frequently thus in Cicero. Cf. 373, 413, 527.

232. ac mitto inperium, 'and not to mention authority.' Cf. 293. The Callipian MSS. give age for ac.

233. revereri. Cf. 153 note. The subject eum is omitted, as often in Terence before an Infinitive.

234. monitor. Cf. Hor. A. P. 163 iuvenis monitoribus asper. In law, 'a prompter for counsel.'

vix tandem! sc. meministi mei, or some such words; spoken ironically. Cf. Andr. 470 vix tandem sensi stolidus.

235. aliud cura, 'think of something else,' 'try again.'

237. causam tradere etc., i. e. as a praevaricator. Tr. 'but the deliberate betrayal of the case without a word!'

238. illud durum, 'that's a poser.'

242. meditari, 'to rehearse.'

advorsam aerumnam, 'the attacks of trouble.'

243. peregre is used for 'coming from abroad,' 'going abroad,' and 'rest abroad.' Cf. 970.

cogitet, sub. quisque.

245. communia esse haec, 'let him think that these are common misfortunes.'

ut ne quid. Cf. 168 note.

The text gives the MSS. reading. Many editors follow Cicero's version as quoted Tusc. 3. 14. 30:

Pericla, damna, peregre rediens semper secum cogitet

Communia esse haec, nequid horum unquam accidat animo novum.

246. deputare esse in lucro, 'to reckon as clear gain;' deputare depends on oportet, supplied from 242.

248. meditata, an instance of a deponent Perf. Part. used in a passive sense: 'thought out beforehand.'

249. A reads molendum esse, which cannot stand with habendae compedes. B C E F P and Donatus give usque.

The pistrinum answered to our 'tread-mill' as a means of punishment.

250. opus ruri faciundum. To degrade a confidential body-servant to be a farm-labourer would be of course a severe punishment.

opus often means farm-labour in Terence, e.g. 363.

251. Compare the similar parody of Demea's words by Syrus, Ad. 425-9.

255. salvom venire, sc. gaudeo. The ordinary salutation to one who has arrived after a journey. Cf. 286.

credo, 'I take that for granted.'

258. confecistis, 'you have trumped up.'

259. id, Acc. of respect, 'about that:' so quod in 263, 1052.

suscenses. Cicero writes both suscenses and succenses.

260. -ne . . . non = nonne. Cf. 119 note.

262. lenem patrem illum . . . me, 'that I, formerly (illum) the kindest of fathers.'

264. similia omnia, 'it's all of a piece.'

congruunt. Cf. 9 note.

266-7. 'When A gets into trouble, B is his advocate: when B is in a scrape, A turns up: it's a joint-stock concern.' Cf. 835-6.

hic as Nom. Sing. is usually short in Plautus and Terence, long in Augustan poets. See however 1028.

268. inprudens, 'unwittingly,' because he knows nothing of Phaedria's love-affairs.

269. cum illo haud stares, 'you would not be his partisan:' stare ab aliquo or ab alicuius causa = 'to be on a man's side:' stare pro aliquo = 'to be a man's champion.'

270. si est, 'if it is the fact.'

271. minus . . . temperans, 'he was inconsiderate as to fortune or to fame,' i.e. in marrying a penniless girl of ignoble birth. rei and famae may be Genitives or Datives: temperare in this sense usually takes a Dat., but temperans is found elsewhere with a Gen.

272. quin follows the idea of 'prevention' contained in non causam dico. Cf. 209 note.

276-7. adimunt diviti . . . addunt pauperi. This would have been more likely at Athens than at Rome.

280. tua iusta, 'the rights of your case.'

tute. Cf. 172 note.

281-2. functus adulescentuli est Officium liberalis, 'he acted like an ingenuous youth.' Fungor governs the Acc. in Plautus and Terence, except in Ad. 603 tuo officio fueras functus, where the MSS. give the Abl. Conversely fruor is constructed with the Abl. in Terence, except in Heaut. 401, where the Acc. is found: similarly utor takes an Abl. except in Ad. 815, but abutor an Acc. For potior cf. 469 note. Lucretius constructs fungor, fruor, potior with Acc.; abutor with Acc. and Abl.

284. timidum. Antipho being really of a timid nature, cf. 204 sqq., this statement sounded plausible enough.

obstupēfecit. When preceded by a short syllable the e in compounds of this class is usually shortened, following the analogy of the 'Iambic Law,' p. 27, but Catullus 64. 361 has tepēfaciet.

289. iam dudum . . . audio, 'I have been hearing you for some time;' cf. Fr. depuis longtemps je vous entend.

dudum may refer to time past, immediate or distant; e.g. 537, 786, 838 'just now,' in Pl. Trin. quam dudum? = 'how long ago?' Cf. 459, 471.

290. horunc = horum-ce, cf. 58 note.

292. servom hominem, 'one who is a slave;' both homo and mulier are often thus used in apposition. At Athens the evidence of slaves was only taken under torture, at Rome not at all against their masters, except in certain specified cases.

293. dictio. Verbal substantives in -io are sometimes followed by the same case as the verb: e.g. Andr. 44 exprobratio est inmemori. Still more remarkable is the use of the Acc. by Plautus after receptio, curatio, tactio (very often after the last).

mitto. Cf. 232.

294. do is Fleckeisen's emendation for addo or adde. It gives a better sense and seems necessary for the metre.

297. dotem daretis. Cf. 125 note, and for the tense 108 note.

298. qua ratione, 'on what account.' There is a play on the word ratio which Demipho uses as 'reason,' Geta as 'a money account.' Cf. Pl. Trin. 418-9:—

LE. Nequaquam argenti ratio comparet tamen.

ST. Ratio quidem hercle adparet: argentum οἷχεται.

dēerat. In this verb ee is scanned by Synizesis as ē by Vergil, Catullus, etc., as well as by Terence.

sumeret, sc. mutuom argentum, 'he should have borrowed it.' For the tense see 108 note. Cf. Verg. A. 4. 678 eadem me ad fata vocasses, 'you should have invited me to share your fate,' where the context makes it almost = debebas vocare; ib. 8. 643 at tu dictis, Albane, maneres, = debuisti manere; Cic. pro Sulla 8. 25 ac si, iudices, ceteris patriciis me et vos peregrinos videri eporteret, a Torquate tamen hoc vitium sileretur; infra 468, and Heaut. 201-2 fortasse aliquantum iniquior erat . . . pateretur, i. e. 'he should have borne it.'

302. dixti. Cf. 198 note.

crederet, 'would have given us credit.' At Rome the Lex quina vicenaria (Lex Plaetoria) forbade loans to young men under five and twenty; cf. Pl. Ps. 303; as did also the Senatus-consultum Macedonianum. But it is not clear that we have here a specific allusion to Roman law, which is against our author's custom; cf. p. 16.

303. potest, impersonal, as often in Terence: e.g. 402, 640, 674, 818.

304. egon . . . ut patiar. Note the emphatic ego. Madvig (§ 353 obs.) explains this construction as = fierine potest ut etc., and it is clear that there must be an ellipse of something of the sort. Cf. 669, 874, 955, etc. Sometimes -ne is omitted, e.g. Andr. 618. Translate, 'to think that I should put up with her marriage with him for a single day.' Note that this construction refers to the future, mene pati to the present, mene passum esse to the past.

305. nil suave meritum est, 'they have deserved no indulgence,' lit. 'nothing indulgent has been deserved' sc. 'by them.' The Perf. Part. Pass. of mereo is used by Cicero, Livy, etc., though not often. Donatus interprets nihil mihi mercedis suave est ut ego illam cum illo nuptam feram.

commonstrarier. Cf. 92 note.

307. nēmpē, often scanned thus in Plautus and Terence, when the first syllable is unaccented. In some MSS. it is then written nepe. See Introduction on Prosody.

308. iam faxo hic aderit, 'I will fetch him here at once.'

faxo. Plautus and Terence use the following: faxo (Ind.), faxim (Subj.), faxis, faxit (Ind. or Subj.), faximus (Subj.), faxitis (Ind. or Subj.), faxint (Subj.). Cf. 554.

Two views are held with regard to these forms:—

(1) They may be syncopated forms for fecero, fecerim, etc.; cf. Zumpt. § 161.

(2) They may be archaic futures, formed exactly like the Greek by adding -so to the verb-stem, e.g. fac-so = faxo as $\pi\alpha\rho\gamma\text{-}\sigma\omega = \pi\rho\acute{\alpha}\xi\omega$; the tense in -sim being the Subjunctive; cf. Roby, §§ 291-3, Madv. § 115 f.

The philological uncertainty is not removed by the practical usage of these forms. In the present passage it is quite an open question (cf. 681 note), but faxo is often used where a Fut. simple would naturally stand, and in Ad. 847-8 is a direct co-ordinate of faciam Fut. The Subjunctive form is never used as a Perf., but always as a Fut. Subj.; cf. the common phrase di faxint expressive of a wish, Hor. Sat. 2. 3. 38 cave faxis, and the use of ausim. Vergil, Livy, Ovid, and Horace occasionally employ these forms, and di faxint is found even in Cicero. Cf. 742 note. As regards construction faxo is followed four times in Terence by the Fut. Ind., here, 1055, Eun. 285, 663, thrice by the Pres. Subj., Ad. 209, 847 (placed after the Subj.), and Andr. 854. It is also constructed with an Acc. and a Perf. Part. Pass., infra 1028. There is no certain instance of the Fut. Ind. after faxo in Plautus, and the Augustan writers always use the Subjunctive construction.

foris, 'out,' an Abl. plur. of the obsolete fora, used as an adverb meaning 'rest out of doors:' so foras = 'motion out of doors.'

309. adduc. Terence always uses duc in the simple form, but in composition either -duce or -duc. A always gives the shorter form if the metre does not require the longer, except in Heaut. 744 TRADVCEHVC: conversely the later MSS. always read the longer form except for metrical reasons, e.g. Eun. 377, and one MS. F which gives traduc in Heaut. 744. Of the other Imperatives, fac, dic, fer, Plautus sometimes writes dice, duce, never ferre, and in both the comic poets face often appears, but only at the end of lines, e.g. 397, 674. Otherwise Terence uses the shortened forms. The rule in Augustan Latin was to use exclusively dic, duc, fer, fac, and similarly in the compounds of duco, fero, and those of facio which retain a in the stem; but other compounds of facio and those of dico retain the final e: e.g. educ, affer, calefac, but confice, edice.

311. The order is, Ego devortar hinc domum salutatum deos penatis.

313. adsient, archaic for adsint. Terence uses siem, sies, siet, sient: also possiem, possiet, adsiet. Cf. 446, 508, 514, 635, 675, 773, 806, 822.

314. ut ne. Cf. 168 note.

ACT II. SCENE 1 [2].

In the interval between the Acts Geta has met Phormio and informed him of the arrival and the anger of Demipho. Phormio is confident that he can carry the matter through; he boasts of the impunity with which he has preyed upon the wealthier citizens, and describes the delightful freedom from anxiety enjoyed by a parasite.

315. itane . . . ais, is more emphatic than ain (ais-ne): sometimes the expression is further strengthened by tandem, e.g. 231. Tr. 'Do you mean to say' etc. The metre requires pātris or ais.

admodum, 'certainly.' An affirmative answer may also be expressed by etiam, ita, factum, oppido, sane, scilicet, sic, vero, verum, etc.: or by repeating the verb, e. g. hoc facies? faciam: or by a pronoun, e. g. hoc facies? ego vero. Cf. 316, 382, 524, 811-12.

oppido, 'very much so,' a colloquial word, found in Cicero's Letters, etc., but not in his Orations; obsolete in the time of Quintilian. The derivation is doubtful. Festus says it arose from a frequent answer to an enquiry as to a man's crops, 'quantum vel oppido satis est.' Whence oppido became equivalent to 'valde multum.' Cf. 763, 896.

318. tute hoc intristi: tibi omne est exedendum, a proverb, lit. 'you have mixed the mess, you must eat it up.' In English, 'you have made your bed and you must lie upon it.' Cf. Auson. Id. vi Tibi quod intristi exedendum est: sic vetus verbum iubet, | Compedes, quas ipse fecit, ipse ut gestet faber.

intristi=intrivisti, from the rare intero, referring here to the grating of various ingredients into a mortar, and then pounding them.

319. eccere, 'see there!' from ecce and re ('in fact') or rem.

320. quid si reddet? sc. responsum. 'What if he shall reply?' It might however be, 'What if he shall give the girl back?' Note that from 317 to 320 Phormio is buried in thought, uttering aloud only disconnected fragments of sentences, and paying no attention whatever to Geta's ejaculations.

321. cedo senem, 'bring the old fellow out.' Cf. 197 note.

322. crimine, 'reproach.'

323. derivem, 'divert,' a metaphor from turning the current of a stream (de-rivus).

325. in nervom erumpat, 'should end by landing you in the stocks.' Cf. 696.

nervom, lit. 'a sinew,' then 'a fetter,' especially used of a fetter for the feet and sometimes the neck, like our stocks or pillory. This use of erumpat is colloquial.

326. periculum, 'trial,' its original sense.

iam pedum visa est via, 'I can keep my feet out of harm's way by this time,' said with reference to in nervom.

327. usque ad necem, 'almost to death,' 'within an inch of their lives.' Notice this sense of usque ad, 'right up to, but just stopping short of.'

328. hospites, here 'aliens,' Gr. ξένοι.

quo magis novi, sc. viam, from 326, 'the better I know the way, the oftener I do it.'

329. cedo dum, 'tell me now.' dum is often used by the comic writers as an enclitic with Imperatives and Interjections, e. g. ehodum; and we also find quidum (interrogative) and primumdum. In later Latin this use of -dum is confined to agedum, agitedum, and nondum, nedum, vixdum, dudum, interdum. Cf. 594, 784, etc.

en umquam. These words are often used together (some write enumquam) in animated questions where the answer 'no' is expected : en serving to arrest attention. Cf. 348.

iniuriarum . . . dicam, Gr. αἰτίας δίκην, or in aggravated cases γραφὴν ὑβρεως. Tr. 'that a prosecution for assault was brought against me.' Cf. 983.

330. qui istuc? 'how is that?' Cf. 123 note.

tenditur, so all MSS. Most modern editors strangely prefer tennitur, which is mentioned by Donatus as a various reading, probably representing the vulgar pronunciation.

Cf. Old English proverb, 'Stones and sticks are flung only at fruit-bearing trees.'

332. quia enim, 'because indeed.' Cf. 113 note.

illis . . . illis. Note the very uncommon use of the same pronoun to contrast two sets of people. On the stage the actor's gestures would prevent the possibility of mistake.

334. Notice the emphatic alliteration. Cf. 1 note. In default of payment of damages legally awarded, both Athenian and Roman law authorised the creditor to seize the person of the debtor (addictus) and treat him as a slave.

337. illo, sc. Antiphone.

338. immo enim. Cf. 113 note.

regi, 'his patron.' Cf. 70 note.

339. tene asymbolum venire, 'to think that you should come with no contribution to the feast.' It was a common Greek custom that each person dining should contribute his quota, called συμβολή in Greek, collecta by Cicero de Or. 2. 57. 233. Cf. Andr. 88 symbolam dedit, cenavit. Cf. 153 note. Hence the use of immunis, 'not contributing,' in Hor. Od. 4. 12. 22, Verg. G. 4. 244, etc.

340. otiosum ab animo, 'easy in mind : ' ab denotes here, as often, the direction from which the matter in question is viewed. Cf. a fronte, a tergo, etc.

341. ringitur, 'he chafes,' lit. 'he snarls.'

tu rideas, 'you can laugh.'

342. prior bibas, etc., 'you can drink before him, you can have a better place at table.'

dubia, 'puzzling.' Cf. Fr. embarras de richesse.

347. postillā = postea, only ante-Augustan. Tr. 'directly after that you may play with him as you please.' Cf. 705.

ACT II. SCENE 2 [3].

Geta, pretending not to see the entrance of Demipho with his friends, defends his master with much simulated warmth; while Phormio affects righteous indignation. Demipho assails the parasite hotly, but meets his match. Phormio is not to be out-faced, but answers threat with threat; and though at one time nearly nonplussed by forgetting Stilpho's name, eventually leaves the field victorious.

348. en umquam. Cf. 329-note.

350. age. All Calliopian MSS. with *A*₂ read ages. The meaning would be the same. Cf. 209 note. Tr. 'now do you attend to this.'

351. ego hunc agitabo, 'I will stir him up.'

pro deum immortalium, sub. fidem imploro: cf. pro divom fidem etc. The interjection pro does not affect the case of the word before which it stands; cf. pro Iuppiter! Cf. 1008.

356. After 355 is inserted in the MSS.,

PH. Nec Stilphonem ipsum scire qui fuerit? GE. Negat.

This must be a gloss, as is shown clearly by 386-9.

357. ignoratur, 'is disowned.'

358. vide avaritia quid facit. Note the Indicative. 'In conversational or animated language a question is often put logically though not grammatically dependent on another verb or sentence, e. g. on such expletives as dic mihi, loquere, cedo, responde, expedi, narra, vide: rogo, volo scire, fac sciam, viden, audin, scin, etc. So frequently in Plautus and Terence, even where later writers would make the question dependent and use the Subjunctive. Compare, 'Tell me, where are you?' and 'Tell me where you are.' Roby § 751. Cf. 987.

359. Geta, as well as Phormio, is of course playing a part, intending to be overheard by Demipho.

male audies. Cf. 20 note.

360. Tr. 'What impudence! he is actually going to prosecute me.'

ultra, lit. 'beyond what might be expected:' contrasted with sponte, which merely means 'willingly.' Here Phormio does not wait to be made a defendant, but intends, as Demipho thinks, himself to prosecute. This meaning of ultra may be expressed here by emphasising the pronouns. Cf. 769. Note the elision of O, cf. p. 31.

362. illum, sc. Phanium's father, cf. 357.

norat = noverat: Indic. because the supposition was represented as a fact.

iam grandior, 'of some considerable age.' Notice this use of the Comparative; cf. Vergil's iam senior etc.

363. quoi in opere vita erat, 'who worked for his livelihood.'

365. interea, 'during that time.'

366. The order is, narrabat hunc cognatum suum neglegere se.

367. quem ego viderim etc. 'the most worthy man perhaps that I have seen in my life.' The Subjunctive probably qualifies what would otherwise be a downright statement, as is done in English by 'perhaps.'

368. videas te atque illum, ut narras, 'compare yourself and him according to your account,' i. e. 'what a contrast between such an excellent man as you describe and a rascal like yourself.' The meaning must be uncomplimentary to account for Phormio's rejoinder. Some explain this, 'do you see to your stories about yourself and him, it is nothing to us:' or, 'see what lies you are telling about yourself and him.' Bentley's version, vidisti nullum ut narras, has the merit of simplicity.

i in malam crucem! 'go and be hanged.' Gr. ἐπ' ἐς κόρακας. Cf. 930 i hinc in malam rem.

369. nam etc. This follows immediately on 367, Phormio disregarding Geta's interruption.

370. hanc, i. e. Phanium. Note the scansion ōb hānc ĩnt | mīcītĭ | ās etc. Cf. Intro. on Metres.

373. tandem. Cf. 231 note.

carcer, 'jail-bird.'

374. extortor . . . distortor, 'you rascally robber, you pettifogging rogue.'

378. adolescens, 'my young gentleman.'

abs te. Cf. 188 note.

bona venia, 'with your kind leave.'

379. potis est, 'it is possible:' potis may refer to a subject (rarely plural) of any gender, or may be used impersonally. The neuter pote is similarly employed, e. g. 535, but, unlike potis, is generally found without est. As a rule potis stands before vowels, pote before consonants. Neither potis nor pote occurs in Augustan prose.

380. tuom . . . istum. The addition of istum emphasises tuom, and gives moreover a contemptuous turn to the phrase.

381. qui, 'how;' cf. 123 note.

diceret. The regular sequence of tenses would require dixerit. It is perhaps to be explained by the preceding fuisse which carries back the thought to past time, though grammatically the verb is of course dependent on explana.

382. nossem? Cf. 122 note.

383. ego me nego, sc. nosse (novisse).

tu, qui ais, 'do you, who make the assertion.'

384. enicas, 'you are worrying me to death.' Cf. 856.

386. perdidi, 'I have forgotten.'

387. subice, 'prompt me.'

388. temptatum, 'to try your tricks on me.' Supine in -um.

389. atque adeo. Note the uses of adeo—

1. 'so far,'

(a) of space, 55.

(b) of time, 589.

(c) of circumstance, 497, 932.

2. as an intensive particle with

(a) pronouns (common), 645, 906, 944.

(b) adjectives or adverbs, 679.

✓ (c) conjunctions, as here. Tr. 'and after all' . . .

(d) verbs, Andr. 759 propera adeo puerum tollere.

Vergil constantly uses it in this intensive sense, e. g. A. 3. 203 tris adeo . . . soles, 'three whole days.'

3. 'Moreover,' 'besides' (rare).

quid mea, sc. interest. Cf. 723 note.

392. non te horum pudet? The same meaning is expressed Ad. 754 by non te haec pudet? the verb being either personal or impersonal in Terence: but when personal the Nominative is usually a neuter pronoun. The above seems more probable than to refer horum to Demipho's friends.

393. talentum = talentorum, as nummum etc. An Attic talent = 60 minae = £243 15s. Cf. 644.

394-5. esses proferens = proferres. This is an early instance of the tendency of Latin, as of other languages, to become 'analytic;' i. e. to express changes of case, tense, mood, voice, or person by the addition of separate words, e. g. prepositions, auxiliary verbs, pronouns, etc., instead of by case-endings or verbal inflexions. The latter method is called 'synthetic.' Greek is a good example of a 'synthetic,' English of an 'analytic' language. Analytic varieties are, however, more frequent in Greek than Latin. Cf. And. 508, 775 ut sis sciens = ut scias, Cic. Verr. i. 40 distributum habere = distribuissse: infra 946, 974.

atavo, 'great-great-great-grandfather.' The ascending steps of paternal ancestry were pater, avus, proavus, abavus (= avi-avus), atavus, tritavus (= avi-avi-avus).

396. 'Exactly so: on coming before the court,' i. e. to claim his inheritance.

qui. Cf. 123 note.

397. face, archaic for fac, cf. 309 note.

398. cedo. Cf. 197 note. qui. Cf. 123 note.

eu, Gr. εὖ, so euge, Gr. εὖγε. Tr. 'well done our side.'

400. si fuerat. The Pluperf. Indic. after si is rare.

401. filium narras mihi? 'What! talk to me of my son?' Terence sometimes uses narrare = 'to speak about,' 'to mention.'

402. potest, impersonal, cf. 303.

403. magistratus adi, 'make an application before the magistrates,' so followed by ut and Subj. because equivalent to a verb of asking.

405. solus regnas. Cf. Ad. 175 regnumne, Aeschine, tu hic possides? Pl. Trin. 695 quid? te dictatorem censes fore? This can hardly be considered as a distinctively Roman allusion, since a 'tyrant' at Athens was almost as great a bug-bear as a 'king' at Rome. Phormio would of course lay special emphasis on alterum, eadem, bis, as well as on solus regnas and solus.

To have a case heard twice was illegal at Athens, cf. Dem. Lept. p. 502; but at Rome there might be a 'restitutio in integrum,' cf. 451.

409. ut . . . si instead of the usual quasi, because ut naturally follows itidem.

410. dotis dare etc. The logical order would be, abduc hanc, minas quinque accipe, id dotis quod lex iubet dare. The omission of the subject of dare makes the statement more general, as we should say in English, 'the dowry which the law orders one to give;' dari would have been more usual, dare being probably more colloquial. Demipho's excitement quite accounts for the irregular order of the clauses.

abduc. Cf. 309 note.

minas. The Attic mina = 100 drachmae = £4 1s. 3d.

411. homō. Cf. homō 123.

413. tandem. Cf. 231 note.

414. amittere = dimittere. Cf. 141 note.

415. ut ne. Cf. 168 note.

418. at nos unde, sc. proximi sumus? 'but where does she get us from?'

419. 'actum,' aiunt, 'ne agas,' 'the proverb says, "don't kill a dead dog."' The Latin proverb is from the law-courts, 'don't bring on a case already decided,' cf. Ad. 232.

420. ineptis. Terence only uses the verb here and Ad. 934.

sine modo, 'do you just let me alone:' modo emphasises the Imperative. Cf. 496.

426. tu te idem melius feceris, 'it would be better to do that to yourself,' i.e. to leave the house yourself. It is best to consider te as Abl. after feceris, cf. 137 note, and idem as neuter, though idem might be taken as emphasising tu without material alteration of the sense.

427. advorsom is rarely, as here, put after its case; cf. Sall. Jug.
101. 8 quos advorsum ierat.

428. infelix, 'wretch.'

429. quin. Cf. 209.

432. te visum . . . velim? 'should I wish for the sight of you?'
Cf. 102 note.

435. hoc age, 'attend to this:' a common phrase.

439. dicam tibi inpingam grandem, 'I will bring an action against you with swingeing damages.' Cf. 127 note.

440. si quid opus fuerit. The constructions of opus and usus are,

(1) personal, with the thing needed in the Nom. as a subject. The phrase may be completed by ad with an Acc., or by an Abl. which is sometimes a Perf. Pass. Part., e.g. 762 quid facto opus est, more rarely a supine. Cf. Roby, § 507, infra 563 note, 593.

(2) impersonal, with the thing needed in the Abl. which may be a substantive, adjective, or participle, very rarely in the Gen. (twice in Livy) or Acc. (twice in Plautus).

With either construction in place of an Abl. or a Nom. is sometimes found an Infinitive or Acc. and Infinitive, e.g. 560. The person who needs is in the Dative. Cf. 584, 666, 715-16, 1003.

domo me, sc. arcesse. Cf. 38 note.

ACT II. SCENE 3 [4].

Demipho consults his friends. They severally give opinions diametrically opposed to each other, leaving Demipho in greater uncertainty than before. The whole scene is pervaded by a delicate humour peculiarly Terentian.

442. hisce, Nom. Mas. Plur. The strengthening affix -ce is usually found with hic before words beginning with a vowel or h. The Nom. Fem. Plur. is haec.

With the enclitic -ne the forms are spelt hicine, haecine, hocine, etc. Iste is similarly strengthened into istic, istoc, or istuc.

443. in conspectum. Cf. 261.

446. siet. Cf. 313 note.

447. quid ago? 'what shall I do?' The Pres. Ind. was thus colloquially used instead of a Fut. Simple or deliberative Subj. In 812 a Pres. Ind. of this sort is directly co-ordinate with a Pres. Subj. Vergil's well-known phrase, A. 2. 322 quo res summa loco, Panthu? quam prendimus arcem? is a probable instance of this usage, there being a dramatic propriety in admitting a forcible colloquialism in words uttered under such strong excitement. Cf. infra, 486, 532 note, 657, 669, 736-7, 893, 963, 987, 1004, 1007.

Cratinum censeo, sc. dicere oportere. Cf. 440 note.

450. hic, 'in this case.'

451. restitui in integrum, 'should be null and void.' Cf. 405 note.

457. amplius. Ampliatio was the technical term for deferring judgment in a case when more time was needed to collect evidence; comperendinatio was the ordinary adjournment to the third day between the first and second part of a trial. Terence, however, was so strict in not making Roman allusions that the coincidence of the words may be accidental.

458. res magna est. On the Westminster stage an additional point is given to these words by the small stature of the Queen's Scholar to whom the part of Crito is by tradition assigned.

numquid nos vis? Cf. 151 note.

459. dudum, 'before.' Cf. 289 note.

459-460. negant redisse, sc. servi negant Antiphonem redisse.

462. percontatum. Supine after ibo. Cf. 102 note.

quoad. Cf. 148 note.

464. eccum = ecce eum. Terence uses eccum (common), eccam, eccos, eccas, ecca, also eccistam = ecce istam, and ellum, ellam = ecce illum, illam. Plautus employs also the fuller forms eccillum, eccillam, eccillud. In Terence eccum may stand by itself, e.g. And. 957 proviso quid agat Pamphilus: atque eccum, or followed by an Acc., e.g. 600 sed eccum ipsum, or with the person referred to following as a subject to a verb, e.g. Ad. 923 sed eccum Micio egreditur foras. Cf. 484.

in tempore, 'at the nick of time.'

video . . . se recipere. Cf. 7 note.

ACT II. SCENE 4. [III. 1.]

Antipho returns, blaming himself for his faint-hearted flight. He is reassured by Geta that, thanks to Phaedria and Phormio, the interests of Phanium have not been betrayed.

465. cum istoc animo es vituperandus, 'you and your faint heart are much to blame.'

466. itane te hinc abisse. Cf. 153 note.

467. tete. Cf. 172 note.

468. consuleres, 'you should have thought for.' Cf. 299 note.

469. propter tuam fidem, either 'from her confidence in you,' or

'from your assurances: ' fides meaning either 'belief' or that which produces belief, i. e. 'promises,' 'oaths.

poteretur. This form is preferred by Terence to potiretur, as also potitur: indeed potitur is only used once by a classical writer, Ov. Her. 14. 113. Terence constructs potior three times with an Acc., once with an Abl., infra 830. Cf. Ad. 871, 876. The Augustan construction is the Abl., rarely the Gen. except in the phrase potiri rerum.

471. iam dudum. Cf. 289 note.

qui abieris, 'for your flight: ' qui is causal.

474. subolet, lit. 'it emits a smell for one,' so 'one gets wind of,' 'has an inkling of: ' used impersonally or with a neuter pronoun as subject; only in Plautus and Terence. Cf. Pl. Trin. 615, 698.

nil etiam, 'nothing at all: ' etiam is often thus used as an intensive. Cf. 542.

475. nisi, 'but.' Cf. 953. This usage seems to be only colloquial.

cessavit eniti, 'slackened his exertions: ' cessare = 'to flag,' desinere = 'to desist.'

476. in, not repeated before aliis, as with cum 171.

praebuit, sc. se.

477. confutavit . . . senem, 'he utterly quenched the old gentleman when boiling over with rage: ' confutare, lit. 'to pour cold water into a vessel which is boiling over.'

478. ego quod potui porro. In full the sentence would be, ego porro feci quod potui facere.

480. quid eum? 'what about him?' In conversational language an Acc. may be thus loosely used with no verb expressed and probably with none understood. The essential idea of the Acc. is 'limitation,' and so an Acc. may be thus employed to limit the question to the person or thing spoken about. Cf. 755.

aibat = aiebat. Terence seems to have used -ibam or -iebam for the Imperf. of the fourth conjugation indifferently, e.g. Andr. 38 servibas; Phor. 83 serviebat. The shorter form was sometimes employed by later poets, e.g. lenibat, nutribant, vestibat by Vergil; audibat, mollibat by Ovid. Aibam, etc., probably represents the colloquial pronunciation in the time of Terence. The MSS. are so confused on this point that the reading has usually to be decided by the metre.

481. The construction is a mixture of ut aibat, de eius consilio volo facere, and aibat de eius consilio sese velle facere. Cf. Ad. 648 ut opinor eas non nosse te.

de eius consilio, 'in accordance with his advice: ' cf. the common phrases de more, de sententia.

482. metus, Gen. case. Some editors gratuitously alter the MSS. reading to metuis, an archaic form of the Gen. found once in Heaut. 287 anuis.

huc salvom, sc. venire.

484. eccum. Cf. 464 note.

ab sua palaestra, 'from his own special school;' the term palaestra, 'wrestling school' or 'gymnasium' is here comically applied to the house where Pamphila lives, because Phaedria goes there so regularly.

ACT II. SCENE 5. [III. 2.]

Phaedria begs Dorio, the owner of Pamphila, to give him three days' grace. Dorio is obdurate: he has an offer for the girl, and will not throw away ready money for tears and promises. 'First pay, first serve' is his motto.

486. non audio. Note the Present; cf. 447 note.

quin. Cf. 209 note.

omitte me, 'let go of me.'

487. dicam is Fut. Indic.

at enim. Cf. 113 note.

490. mirabar si . . . novi, 'I thought it would be a miracle if you had anything new to say to me;' cf. And. 175 mirabar hoc si sic abiret. The use of quicquam for quid implies Dorio's conviction that there was nothing new.

491. Translate, 'AN. I fear this fellow, lest he should— GE. devise some mischief for himself? That is just what I am afraid of.' Antipho was going to say, 'lest he should do some harm to Phaedria.' Geta, interrupting, substitutes significantly 'some mischief for himself, do you mean?' meaning to convey a strong hint to Dorio that he might drive the young men to take violent measures, as Aeschinus did with Sannio in the Adelphi. The words idem ego vereor are of course spoken at Dorio.

suat, lit. 'patch' or 'sew,' whence sutor 'a tailor;' only here in metaphorical sense.

492. hariolare, 'you are talking nonsense.' The significant change in the meaning of this word, as also of vaticinari, shows into what disrepute soothsaying must have fallen before this date. Cf. μαίνομαι and μαντική, Plato Phaedr. 245 B. C., Ad. 202.

493. faeneratum . . . dices, 'you will say that this kindness was richly repaid with interest.' Cf. Ad. 219 metuisti . . . ne non tibi istuc faeneraret? Both faeneror and faenero are found; Augustan writers prefer faeneror.

logi, Gr. λόγοι, 'mere tattle.' The purer Latin of Terence admits far fewer foreign words than we find in Plautus, and we never meet with actual Greek words, such as οἷχεται, παῦσαι, ἐπιθήκη, πάλιν, all of which occur in the Trinummus.

494. somnia, 'moonshine.' Cf. 874.

495. cantilenam eandem canis, 'you are singing the same old song,' or 'you are always harping on the same string.'

496. garri modo, 'chatter away;' modo strengthens the Imperative.

497. adeon . . . esse . . . te. Cf. 153 note.

500. ut phaleratis dictis etc. 'that you can lead me on with your "tinsel and spangle," and lead away my girl for nothing.'

phaleratis, from phalerae, Gr. φάλαρα, horses' trappings, or decorations like medals worn by soldiers; so the adjective = 'ornamented,' 'fine.'

ducas. A similar sense of ducere is found, And. 180, 644.

501. miseritum est, 'poor fellow.' The full phrase is found Pl. Trin. 430 me eius miseritum est. The tense here seems to be an imitation of the so-called 'immediate' Aorist in Greek. In English we should use the Present, 'I pity him.'

veris vincor, 'it is all too true.'

quam uterque est similis sui, 'how true to his character each is,' i.e. 'How like Antipho! how like Phaedria!'

502-3. neque . . . malum! 'to think that this trouble did not befall me at a time when Antipho might have been beset by some other (i.e. slighter) anxiety.' Phaedria laments that this supreme disaster—viz. the threatened loss of his lady-love—should be impending just when Antipho's attention is engrossed by a similar complication. At any other time, when Antipho's cares would have been of a less absorbing nature, he might have been of more service to his brother. The above seems to give a perfectly good sense without tampering with the text or doing violence to the construction. Wagner, however, changes neque to atque; Zeune supposes vellem to be understood after neque; Stallbaum considers neque alia as = eadem; Paumier conjectures aeque for neque.

autem is often added like Gr. δὲ as an emphatic particle, especially in questions where some reproach is implied. Cf. 601, 775, 788.

504. quoi quod amas domi est, 'you who have at home the object of your love.'

505. Connect cum malo huius modi and translate, 'and has never experienced the shock of a trouble like this;' conflictaris = conflictaveris; cf. And. 93 nam qui cum ingeniis conflictatur eius modi.

506. auribus teneo lupum. A wolf's ears are short. Donatus quotes the Greek proverb, τῶν ὧτων ἔχω τὸν λύκον οὗτ' ἔχειν οὗτ' ἀφείναι δύναμαι. Cf. 'I've caught a Tartar.'

508. ipsum . . . est, 'that is exactly my case with him.'

ne . . . sies, 'you are afraid of being a scoundrel by halves.' In the parallel passage Pl. Pers. 4. 6. 4 the verb of fearing is expressed. Cf. 313 note.

509. confecit, 'has he settled?'

511. ancillam, sc. vendere.

512. ut me maneat, 'to give me time.'

cum illo . . . fidem, 'to break faith with his customer.'

515. obtundes, sc. ures, 'will you keep dinning this into me?' obtundere aures, 'to beat at the ears,' comes to mean 'to importune,' or 'to annoy by constant repetition,' like the Hellenistic use of ὑπωπιάζειν, St. Luke 18. 5 (B. and W.). Cf. And. 348.

exoret sine: sino may be followed by a Subj. with or without ut, or by an Infin.; cf. 517.

516. 'He too will surely repay you twofold for any service you may have rendered.'

conduplicaverit. A Fut. Perf. is often used by Plautus and Terence to express a future action to be quickly and certainly performed, where in English we should employ a Fut. Simple. Cf. 681, 882, etc.

idem, used, as so often, as a particle of transition.

518. horunc = horum-ce, cf. 290.

519. neque ego neque tu, 'it won't be my doing nor yours either;'
i.e. it is Phaedria's fault for not paying over the money.

quod es dignus, sc. accipere, or quod may be Acc. after the verbal idea contained in dignus es = mereris.

duint. Cf. 123 note.

521. contra omnia haec. Some editors, believing that contra is not used as a preposition as early as Terence, put a stop after haec, understanding sunt. But though the adverbial use is much more common, contra is found as an undoubted preposition Pl. Ps. 155 adsistite omnes contra me, ib. Pers. 1. 1. 13; and it is far more natural to take it as such here and in the parallel passage Ad. 44 ille contra haec omnia Ruri agere vitam.

522. da locum melioribus, said to have been a formula used by a Consul's lictors in clearing the way.

524. quam ad, so all MSS. If the reading be correct, this is the sole instance of ad standing after its case. Bentley conjectures quoad. Tr. 'unless my memory deceives me, there was assuredly a date once fixed for you to pay him.' Usually dies, 'a day,' is masculine, dies, 'time,' feminine.

factum. Cf. 315 note.

525. haec, sc. the date on which the other purchaser appeared.

526. vanitatis, 'bad faith.' The quality most prized by the Romans was gravitas, a solidity of character on which full reliance could be placed. Opposed to this was vanitas, 'fickleness,' 'untrustworthiness.'

dum ob rem, 'if it is to pay.' In a similar sense we find in rem And. 546, and ex re 969, in an opposite sense ab re Pl. Trin. 238.

527. sic sum: etc. 'Tis my way. If you like it, deal with me.'

528. immo enimvero, 'nay, in very truth.'

532. dare se dixit=daturum se dixit. We find several instances in Terence where a Pres. Inf. is used instead of a Future Inf., e.g. And. 379, 411, 613, infra 837. Compare the use of the Pres. Ind. for the Fut. Ind., 447 note. The continuative force of the Present makes it in these cases almost equivalent to a Future.

533. mea lege utar, etc. 'I will follow my rule, "first pay, first serve."'

ACT II. SCENE 6. [III. 3.]

Phaedria, in despair, implores the aid of Geta, who eventually undertakes by some means to procure the money in time.

535. The scansion is doubtful. It might be quoi minŭs | nihilo est | quod hīc si | pote fu | isset | etc., or quoi mi | nus nihi | lo est quod hīc | si pote | fuisset | etc. Wagner lengthens quod, making the third foot quod hīc, but this is improbable.

hic si . . . exorari, 'if only he could have been wheedled out of this three days' grace.' In this passage si is not strictly conditional, but expresses a wish, exactly as in the corresponding English idiom.

pote. Cf. 379 note.

536. triduum hoc. Verbs like exorare, which take a double Acc. in the Active, retain one Acc. in the Passive, the other becoming the Subject.

fuerat, Indicative because the promise was a fact, cf. 513.

537. dudum. Cf. 289 note.

dixti. Cf. 198 note.

adiuerit=adiuverit. The metre shows that adiuerit most nearly represents the pronunciation.

538. quin. Cf. 209.

539. equidem, from quidem, compounded with the intensive particle e, as in ecastor, edepol, enim, and perhaps edurus. It does not stand for ego quidem, and, though more common with the first person singular, is also found with other persons and numbers: e.g. Eun. 956 atque equidem orante, ut ne hoc faceret, Thaide; Pl. Pers. 2. 2. 5 equidem si scis ; Pl. Epid. 4. 2. 33 adulescentem equidem dicebant emisse ; Sall. Cat. 52. 16 vanum equidem hoc consilium est.

540. id unde, sc. inveniam ; cf. 440 note.

542. Note Hiatus after itane. See Introduction, p. 31.

etiam tu hinc abis ? 'out with you !' Cf. Eun. 799 non tu hinc abis ? Ad. 550 etiam taces ? 'do be quiet.' This is better than to translate, 'What ! are you going to leave me in the lurch ?' etiam is often thus used to emphasise questions or imperatives ; cf. 474.

543-4. 'Can't I congratulate myself on not having got into trouble about your marriage, without your bidding me now court a greater risk for your brother as well ?' in malo quaerere crucem, lit. 'when in trouble already to seek for what is worse.'

546. parūm. A final m in Latin was very lightly pronounced, so that parum practically = parū. Hence the elision of such syllables.

547. preci. Note that Nom. and Gen. Sing. of this word are nowhere found, Dat. and Acc. Sing. only in ante-Augustan writers. Cf. And. 601.

549. tum, used as a particle of transition, like the English 'then,' especially in questions, as in 541.

550. cedo. Cf. 197 note.

552. pedetemptim, more correct than pedetentim, tempto than tento, etc. Tr. 'cautiously.'

553. quaere, 'think.'

554. faxit. Cf. 308 note.

quid plus minusve, 'something or other.'

555. verum enim, 'but indeed,' enim being a particle of emphasis ; cf. 113 note. Note that verum enim is verum strengthened by enim, while enimvero is enim (= indeed) strengthened by vero, the former combination being adversative, the latter corroborative.

556. bona mala, an effective instance of Asyndeton, or omission of et.

557. opus. Cf. 440 note.

argenti depends on quantum.

triginta minae = over £120 ; cf. 410 note. The price of accomplished female slaves in these comedies is usually from twenty to thirty minae.

558. percara. The prefix per- has an intensive force, e. g. perninium, perscitus, perfortiter, perliberalis.

istaec. Cf. 442 note.

559. O lepidum ! sc. caput, a common phrase when some favour has been promised or granted : 'good fellow.'

aufer te hinc, 'off with you ;' cf. 566 hinc modo te amove.

solus . . . amicus. Donatus quotes from Apollodorus μόνος ἐπίστανται φιλεῖν τοὺς φίλους. 'He is the only friend that can befriend one.'

563. quod opera mea vobis opus sit, 'which I can do for you.' Here quod might be explained as an acc. of respect, but the phrase is more probably an extension of the construction quid opus est facto? etc., quod being the subject, opera mea being added to complete the sense. Cf. 440 note.

564. illam, i. e. Phanium.

ACT III. SCENE 1. [IV. 1.]

Chremes has landed before this Act opens. He tells Demipho how he found the birds flown from Lemnos, and explains the cause of his deep concern at Antipho's unexpected marriage.

568. adduxtin tecum filiam. This clause is the antecedent to qua causa etc.

570-1. non manebat . . . meam neglegentiam, 'did not wait for my negligent delay:' i. e. the girl was growing older and older while Chremes still was absent.

familia, 'the household.' As in later times the slaves constituted the vast majority of an ordinary household, familia was often used when the slaves were wholly or chiefly meant.

572. illi = illic. Cf. 91 note.

578. condicionem, 'match,' in the matrimonial sense.

580. sit. The subject is the young lady implied in condicio.

583. intercedet familiaritas, 'there shall be a good understanding between us.'

584. opus est scito. Cf. 440 note.

585. aliqua, sc. via, 'somehow.' Cf. 566, 746.

586. me excutiam, 'clear myself out.' Cf. Hor. Od. 3. 9. 19 si flava excutitur Chloe.

587. nam . . . meus, 'for I have nothing but myself to call my own,' implying, 'I am the only thing in my own house I dare call my own.'

589. neque defetiscar etc., 'and I will not slacken in my efforts until I have actually accomplished . . .'

usque adeo . . . donec. Cf. And. 662 orare usque adeo donec perpulit.

experirier. Cf. 92 note.

ACT III. SCENE 2. [IV. 2.]

Geta narrates with admiration the quickness of Phormio in understanding the new turn events had taken, and his readiness to co-operate in the scheme to get the required money.

592. venio . . . ut dicerem. A historic Present may be followed either by primary or historic tenses.

593. argentum opus esse. Cf. 440 note.

et id . . . fieret, 'and how it all happened.'

594. vixdum. Cf. 329 note.

intellegerat, 'he saw it all at a glance.' Note the force of the pluperfect.

595. quaerebat, 'he was asking for.'

596. tempus, 'opportunity.'

600. eccum ipsum. Cf. 464 note.

quis est ulterior, 'who is that behind?' Chremes is here standing behind Demipho.

attat, an interjection denoting apprehensive recognition of some danger, e. g. 963, And. 125 percussit ilico animum: attat hoc illud est.

601. sed quid pertimui autem belua? 'but yet why was I such a jackass as to be scared?'

autem. Cf. 503 note.

belua, 'a dolt,' 'an ass;' cf. Pl. Trin. 952.

602. an quia = an pertimui quia.

603. duplici spe utier, 'to have two strings to my bow.' Cf. 92 note. Gr. ἐπὶ δύοῖν ἀγκύραιν ὀρμεῖν.

604. petam, 'I will try to get the money.'

a primo, 'at first;' cf. 642.

605. hunc hospitem, 'this new-comer.' Geta can use hinc and hunc with reference to Demipho and Chremes respectively, because he indicates to the audience by gesture the object of his remarks.

ACT III. SCENE 3. [IV. 3.]

Geta now puts his scheme into execution. He tells Demipho and Chremes that in their interest he has sounded Phormio, and has found him open to the following arrangement. On receipt of thirty minae the parasite will give up all legal proceedings and marry Phanium himself. To this Chremes scarcely persuades his brother by offering to provide the money from his wife's income.

607. expecto, 'I am waiting to see.'

610. volup est, 'I am delighted:' volup, or volupe as it appears in many MSS., is from the obsolete volupis, whence Volupia, the goddess of pleasure, voluptas, etc.: in Terence only here and Hec. 857, fairly common in Plautus, never in Augustan writers. Cf. Gr. ἐλπίς.

credo. Cf. 255.

quid agitur? 'how goes it?' a common form of salutation, like quid fit?

611. 'There are many changes here, as is usual when one first comes home—very many.'

compluria, the older form of complura, which accounts for the Gen. complurium. Neither Plautus nor Terence use pluria, though Gellius mentions it as the original form.

614. circumiri, 'to be circumvented:' so also circumvenire; in English 'to get round a man.'

id . . . commodum, 'I was talking with him about that just now.'

commodum, used in the comic writers as a temporal adverb, either = opportune, 'in the nick of time,' e. g. Pl. Trin. 400, or = modo, 'just now,' as here; only ante- and post-classical. Gr. ἀπρίως.

615. nam hercle. Nam is thus joined to words of asseveration, not giving any logical confirmation of the preceding statement, but as a connective particle with what follows. In English 'and indeed.' Cf. Ad. 190.

agitans, 'turning the matter over.'

617. abs te. Cf. 188 note.

618. qui Phormio? 'what Phormio?' Donaldson, Varr. p. 381, following Kritz, and apparently Madvig, § 88, obs. 1, maintain that quis and quid merely ask for the name, but qui and quod (interrogative) inquire respecting the kind, condition, or quality of the person or thing. The truth seems to be that in many cases the substantival use of quis and the adjectival use of qui are attended with this distinction of meaning, which naturally arises from the form of the sentence, e. g. Eun. 823-4 TH. Quis fuit igitur? PY. Iste Chaerea. TH. Qui Chaerea? But that this distinction is not inherent in the actual words quis and qui is clear from the fact that quis est Phormio? quid est remedium? would require the same answer as qui Phormio? quod remedium? and that Cicero uses qui before a consonant, quis before a vowel. In many cases where quis seems to be used adjectivally the irregularity is only apparent, e. g. And. 965 quis homo est? 'who is there?' is literally 'who is the man?' Verg. G. 2. 178 quis color, 'what is its distinguishing colour?' Cf. 990-1.

is qui istam—, sc. nobis obtrusit or some such words: istam = Phanium. Translate, 'the man by whom that girl'—

620. prendo hominem solum, 'I button-hole the fellow.'

621-2. 'Why do you not see how we can settle this matter between us amicably rather than by strife?' videre may be followed by ut with Ind. or Subj., but only in poetry, e. g. Verg. A. 6. 779, G. 3. 250. Here the Subj. is not due to the ut but to the idea of contingency.

sic, i. e. as I am about to suggest.

623. liberalis, 'a gentleman.' Cf. 815.

fugitans litium, 'shy of law-suits.' When participles from transitive verbs are used as pure adjectives they can be constructed with an objective Genitive, e. g. negotii gerens, 'carrying on a business,' etc.; cf. Madv. § 289.

624. modo may be taken with uno ore, 'with but one mouth,' or = 'just now.'

625. auctores . . . daret, 'advised him to turn the girl out of doors.'

628. iam id exploratum est, 'he has had good advice on that point.'
sudabis satis, 'you'll have a hot enough time of it.'

630. verum pono . . ., 'but granted that . . .'

at tandem tamen, 'yet after all.' For the pleonasm cf. 80 note.

631. non capitis etc., 'tis not a question of his civic rights.'

632. mollirier. Cf. 92 note, infra 640.

633-4. quid vis dari tibi in manum? 'what will you take in cash?' 'To pay cash' is repraesentare.

635. haec hinc facessat, 'the girl should take herself off:' se is understood. The phrase is classical, but the fact that it is only used in sentences directly or indirectly imperatival points to its colloquial origin.

sies. Cf. 313 note.

636. satin illi di sunt propitii? 'is the fellow in his senses?' Madness was always regarded as a divine visitation.

638. ut est ille bonus vir, 'so good a man is he.'

640. non potuit, impersonal; cf. 303 note.

642. insanibat, 'raved.' Cf. 480 note.

cedo. Cf. 197.

643. nimum quantum lubuit, 'he wanted a great deal too much;' cf. Gr. πλεῖστον ὅσον, θαυμαστὸν ὅσον. Similar phrases are mirum quantum, incredibile quantum. Bentley, followed by others, reads nimum quantum. CH. Quantum? dic. But there is no MSS. authority for the change.

644. talentum magnum, 'a whole Attic talent.' There was a small Sicilian talent. Cf. 393 note.

immo malum hercle! a double entendre: malum dare = 'to inflict punishment,' but Demipho is also referring to the preceding magnum, which he alters to malum, sc. dabo, 'a great talent! I'll give him a great thrashing.'

645. quod adeo, 'the very thing which.' Cf. 389 note.

quid si etc. This sentence is elliptical. The full sense would be, 'if he were to portion out an only daughter, what could he do more?'

locaret, sc. in matrimonium, or nuptum; cf. 752.

646. rettulit, so spelt in A. Cf. 21, 723 notes.

647. non suscepisse, 'that he had no daughter?' The father formally acknowledged a new-born child and undertook to bring it up as his own by raising it from the ground, when it had been laid before him: tollere is also used in this sense, e.g. And. 219. Cf. 967, 1007.

648. ut ad pauca redeam, 'to cut a long story short.'

651. fuerat. The Pluperfect because referring to a time antecedent to that implied in volui. The English idiom does not admit of it. Tr. 'as was right and fair.'

653. Tr. 'that a poor girl is given in slavery, not wedlock, to a rich man.'

in servitutum is substituted for in matrimonium.

ad ditem, not diti, because there is an idea of sending to the rich man's house. The position of a wife seems to have depended materially upon her dowry. See the relations of Nausistrata to Chremes; Pl. Trin. 688-691, etc.

655. qui. Cf. 123 note.

657. accipio, 'I am getting.' Cf. 447 note.

661. si animam debet, 'if he is over head and ears in debt:.' Gr. καὶ αὐτὴν τὴν ψυχὴν ὀφείλει.

ager oppositus est pignori, 'some land has been mortgaged.'

663. oiei, apparently a lengthened form of hui.

664. ne clama. This archaic construction is not common in Terence, and disappeared altogether in later Latin, except in the poets. Cf. 803.

repetito. All MSS. give petito, but another syllable is necessary for the metre.

665. pluscula, 'a little extra;.' plusculum as a substantive is classical. Note the diminutives aediculae, ancillula, pluscula.

667. pone sane, 'put down, if you please;.' sane is often thus used with Imperatives in colloquial language.

668. sescentas, Gr. μυρίας, the word commonly used for an indefinitely large number, as in English 'a hundred' or 'a thousand.' Cf.

Pl. Trin. 791 sescentae causae, Cic. Verr. 2. 1. 47 possum sescenta decreta proferre.

dicas. Cf. 127.

669. nil do, 'I won't give a farthing.' For the tense see 447 note. ut inuideat. Cf. 304 note.

670-1. The order is, tu modo fac ut filius (sc. Antipho) ducat illam (sc. Chremes' daughter) quam nos volumus.

673. eicitur, sc. Phanium.

674. quantum potest, 'as quickly as possible,' a common phrase, fieri being probably understood; potest is impersonal. Cf. 897.

face. Cf. 309 note.

675. illam, sc. Phanium, hanc, sc. quae sponsa est mihi, cf. 657.

siem. Cf. 313 note.

676. illi, sc. my betrothed's relations, so illis in 677.

677. iam accipiat, 'let him have the money at once.'

repudium renuntiet, 'should inform them that the engagement is broken off;' repudium is the dissolution of the marriage contract by one of the parties to it, divortium is a separation by mutual consent. Consequently repudium is often used, as here, of persons engaged but not married.

679. opportune adeo, 'most luckily;' cf. 389 note.

680. Lemni, Locative case. Terence also uses in Lemno 873, 1004.

681. dixero. Cf. 516 note.

ACT III. SCENE 4. [IV. 4.]

Antipho, who was entirely in the dark as to the scheme between Phormio and Geta, had overheard with amazement and dismay the arrangement by which he was to lose his beloved Phanium. As soon as the old gentlemen are gone he fiercely assails Geta, who has some difficulty in assuring him that the whole affair is only a temporary ruse to get the money, and that there is no real cause to fear the actual accomplishment of the projected marriage between Phanium and Phormio.

682. emunxi argento senes, 'I have cleaned the old gentlemen out of their money.' Cf. Gr. ἀπομύσσεσθαι, applied to a drivelling old man.

683. satin id est? etc. 'Is that all?' 'I really don't know: it was all my orders.' Geta purposely misapplies Antipho's question to the amount of money demanded. Literally satin id est? = 'are you satisfied with that?'

684. verbero, 'you scoundrel.' Cf. mastigia, Ad. 781.

685. ergo is often used as an emphasising particle, especially in questions and commands. 'What then do you mean?' Cf. 755 note, 882, 948, 984, 995.

quid ego narrem? Cf. 122 note.

687. ut, introducing a wish as in 711, 773.

688. malis exemplis, 'with condign punishments;' exemplum was specially used for a 'method of punishment.'

689. Here the MSS. read huic mandes quod quidem recte curatum velis, which cannot stand after si quid velis and is almost certainly a gloss from Ad. 372 huic mandes, si quid recte curatum velis. The reading in the text is found in the margin of E and F. Tr. 'Here's a pilot to take one out of smooth water on to a reef.'

690. utibile = utile, only here in Terence, found in Plautus, not Augustan.

692. cedo. Cf. 197 note.

694. non enim. Cf. 113 note.

696. in nervom. Cf. 325 note.

701. tandem, 'after all,' so used Lucr. 5. 137. An easier reading would be tamen, but no MS. gives it.

702. vocandi, 'for issuing invitations.'

705. monstra [monestra, fr. monco]. Omens, termed generically auspicia, auguria, were divided by the Romans into five classes—

(1) ex caelo, e.g. thunder and lightning.

(2) ex avibus, which gave omens by their note (oscines), or by their flight (alites).

(3) ex tripudiis, i.e. from the feeding of the sacred chicken.

(4) ex quadrupedibus, only used for private divination.

(5) ex diris, i.e. any portentous event, not otherwise classified; such were called prodigia, portenta.

Tr. 'how many things have proved ominous to me since that event!'

postilla. Cf. 347 note.

706. introiit scans as a dactyl, intróit, the final syllable being first contracted, cf. 55, and then shortened by the Iambic Law. See Introduction, p. 27. A black dog or cat has usually been considered 'uncanny.' Mephistopheles appears to Faust as a black poodle.

707. inpluvium, also 'conpluvium,' 'the skylight,' a quadrangular opening in the roof of a Roman atrium, through which smoke went out and rain came in; also sometimes the square basin sunk in the floor which received the rain. The second foot must be scanned as a pro-

celeusmatic, pěr inplivř | um. To avoid this many editors print in for pěr.

708. gallina cecinit, 'a hen crowed,' sc. like a cock. This was an omen, according to Donatus, that the wife would survive the husband.

708-9. hariolus, haruspex, synonymous terms for a soothsayer who interpreted omens from the entrails of victims (Sans. hirā = entrails). The art soon fell into disrepute among the educated classes, cf. 492 note. Note that the whole system of omens at Rome had a practical bearing. The signs warned men to do or not to do some act, and so the auspices were taken or soothsayers consulted before any undertaking of importance in public or private life. Cf. Hor. Od. 3. 27. 1-7—

Impios parrae recinentis omen

Ducat, et praegnans canis, aut ab agro

Rava decurrens lupa Lanuvino

Fetaque vulpes :

Rumpat et serpens iter institutum,

Si per obliquum similis sagittae

Terruit mannos. sqq.

aliquid is only found as a correction in E, Eugraphius reading quid. Otherwise the MSS. read autem, which is in itself awkward and leaves negoti without a construction. Many editors place a colon after vetuit and assume the loss of two half-verses between incipere and quae. But of this there is no trace in the MSS. or the Scholiasts, and it seems the least of the difficulties to read aliquid.

711. me vide, 'look to me,' 'trust to me.' Cf. And. 350, Pl. Trin. 808.

ACT III. SCENE 5. [IV. 5.]

The old gentlemen re-appear with the money for Phormio. Chremes is manifestly apprehensive of some trickery, but Demipho is confident that no one will get the better of him. Chremes is also anxious that Nausistrata should be sent to break the news to Phanium, and his brother somewhat impatiently assents.

713. ne quid verborum duit, 'that he practise no trickery on us;' verba dare = 'to cheat,' cf. altercari, 'to quarrel.' Such phrases are very significant of Roman manners.

duit. Cf. 123 note.

714. hoc . . . a me, 'I will never rashly part with it,' i.e. the money.

715. commemorabo, 'I will formally recite,' i.e. before the witnesses.

716. opus facto est. Cf. 440 note.

lubido, 'caprice.'

717. si . . . instabit, 'if that other girl (cf. 657) puts more pressure on him.'

719. ut conveniat hanc, 'to visit her,' i. e. Phanium. This is the classical construction of convenire in the above sense.

720. The order is dicat nos dare eam nuptum (Supine) Phormioni.

721. familiarior, 'more intimately connected.' Cf. 851.

723. malum, 'the plague;' thus used interjectionally, cf. Ad. 544 quid hoc, malum, infelicitatis? infra 948 and 976 where there is a relative clause appended.

quid tua id refert? 'what does it matter to you?' Interest and refert take a Gen. of the person, but with pronouns the cases meā, tuā, suā, nostrā, vestrā. The probable origin of this construction is as follows: tuam rem fert, Balbi inter rem est, the m being always liable to be dropped (cf. 546 note), become tua re-fert, Balbi interest. No other theory explains so completely the cases meā, tuā, etc., the Gen. of the person, and the quantity of rēfert.

725. quoque is an almost certain interpolation, as shown by the metre. The mistake perhaps arose from wrongly giving v. 724 to Chremes (as is done in A), who would not be likely to speak of himself as te, and the suggestion was in no way Demipho's.

726. mulier . . . convenit, 'one woman gets on better with another.'

727. illas, sc. his wife and daughter from Lemnos, cf. 571-2.

ACT III. SCENE 6. [V. 1.]

Chremes is startled by the sudden appearance of Sophrona, a servant of his Lemnian wife, from Demipho's house. He learns from her the death of her mistress and the marriage of Phanium to Antipho. At first he fails to identify his own daughter with Phormio's ward, and thinks that his nephew like himself must have married two wives: but the confusion is soon removed and his joy is unbounded.

730. suasum, 'advice,' only ante- and post-classical.

732. nam quae = quāenam, 'why? who?'

a fratre, 'from my brother's house:' a common idiom, e. g. 795, etc.

733. infirmas, 'insecure,' because divorce was so easy, and parental authority so great, that no marriage could be safely depended on without the father's consent.

735. edepol, 'by Pollux,' shorter form pol 747. The prefix is from the interjection e, as in e-castor, and perhaps a syncopated vocative of deus.

736. quid ago? Cf. 447 note, and 737.

737. adeo . . . maneo . . . cognosco. Note that this use of the Pres. Ind. for Pres. Subj. or Future Simple is usually in animated speech, making the effect more vivid. Cf. 447 note.

741. istorsum (isto-vorsum), 'from where you are.'

sodes. Cf. 103 note.

742. appellassis, usually considered as syncopated from appellaveris, as excessis And. 790, from excesseris; cf. Zumpt, § 161. But Madv. § 115 f. and Roby §§ 291-3 consider both these forms, like faxo, ausim, etc., to be remnants of an archaic Future in -so (Ind.), -sim (Subj.). In Plautus is found an Inf. in -assere, e.g. impetrassere. Cf. 308 note. It may be noted that here the Perf. Subj. would be the tense naturally expected.

743. st! 'hist.' This exclamation scans as a long syllable.

744. conclusam, the word applied to a wild beast in a cage. Tr. 'I have a ferocious wife caged up there.'

745. perperam, 'falsely,' used by Cicero; Gr. πέρπερος.

746. effutiretis, 'should blurt it out;' connected with futilis, fundo.

porro, 'forthwith,' a meaning arising naturally from the ordinary sense of 'next,' 'further.' Cf. 923.

aliqua. Cf. 585 note.

747. istoc, 'on that account,' like eo.

751. quae essem, 'since I was,' quae causal. male factum! 'what a pity:' a very cool expression of grief.

752. nuptum locavi. Cf. 645, 720.

753. dominus, in the absence of Demipho his son was 'master.'

Note Hiatus after Hem!

754. Au! a female exclamation, usually of deprecation, e.g. 803: Gr. ὤυ. It is here elided; cf. Introduction, p. 31.

The consternation of Chremes at finding that his nephew had, as it seemed, early followed his uncle's example in bigamy, is very humorous.

For ellipse of the verb see 440 note.

755. quid illam alteram, 'what about that other one?' cf. 480 note.

haec ergo est, 'this is the very girl.' Cf. 685 note.

756. composito factum est, 'it was done by arrangement.'

amans, 'her lover,' here a pure substantive.

757. di vostram fidem, sc. imploro, 'good heavens.'

758. offendi, 'I have accidentally found,' lit. 'stumbled on.'

759. 'That she has been wedded to the man I wished, and is loved as I wished.' Chremes is speaking to himself, and so there is no ambiguity in omitting gnatam, which some editors substitute for amari the reading of A.

761. haec sola, sc. Sophrona. The reading is doubtful. If hic solus be right, Antipho must be meant.

762. quid opus facto sit. Cf. 440 note.

763. oppido. Cf. 317.

765. scibit. Terence uses scibo for 1st pers., scies for 2nd pers. (except in Heaut. 996 and perhaps Eun. 805), scibit for 3rd pers.

The MSS. read sequere me: cetera intus (or intus cetera) audies, which will not scan. The insertion of tu seems more satisfactory than to change audies to audiemus or audietis. The line then becomes an Octonarius, as the last line of Ad. 4. 5 (712), which also follows Septenarii.

ACT IV. SCENE 1. [V. 2.]

Demipho returns from paying the money to Phormio in a very ill-temper, which is not improved by Geta's expression of doubt as to the fulfilment of the compact. Geta himself is by no means easy with regard to his own prospects of escaping punishment.

766. nostrapte. Cf. 172.

ut malos expediat esse, 'that it pays to be a rogue;' cf. Heaut. 388 expedit bonas esse vobis.

767. dici nos bonos studemus. Note that in Augustan Latin a predicative word following an Infin. and referring to a subject in the Nom. is itself in the Nom., e.g. Bibulus studet fieri consul. Cf. Madv. § 393.

768. ita fugias, ne praeter casam, sc. fugias, 'in running away, don't pass the house' (i.e. your master's); a proverb applicable to a runaway slave, something like 'don't jump out of the frying-pan into the fire,' or 'in escaping from Scylla don't fall into Charybdis.' Demipho means that in trying to get out of one trouble he is running the risk of a worse. Another interpretation is, 'in running away, don't pass your house,' which is the safest place for you. But the application of this to Demipho's present circumstances is not obvious.

nonne. Cf. 119 note.

769. etiam argentum est ultro obiectum, 'we have actually thrown money to him as well,' i.e. like a sop to Cerberus. Cf. Verg. A. 6. 420-1 melle soporatam et medicatis frugibus offam obicit. For ultro cf. 360 note.

770. qui. Cf. 123 note.

771. qui recta prava faciunt, 'who confound right with wrong.'

772. ut, 'so that.' Demipho continues his sentence from 771.

illi = illic, 'in that affair.' Cf. 91 note.

773. modo ut etc. 'I only hope that by this means his marriage with her can be successfully effected:' discedi, cf. 1047: possiet, impersonal; for the archaic form see 313 note. The marriage of Phormio with Phanium is of course meant. For ut introducing a wish see 687, 711.

774. haud scio . . . an mutet animum, 'I really don't know whether he won't change his mind.' The English idiom requires a negative in the second clause, because haud scio an suggests 'probably,' but 'I don't know whether' suggests 'probably not.'

ut homo est, 'being human;' a thoroughly Terentian touch.

ut, causal, 'seeing that.'

775. mutet autem? 'what? change?' Cf. 503 note.

777. ista, i.e. Phanio; hanc, i.e. Nausistratam.

778. de iurgio siletur, 'not a word about the lawsuit.'

779. haec, sc. Phanium.

780. in eodem luto haesitas, 'you are in the same mess as before.'

vorsuram solves, 'you will pay your new debts with interest:' vorsuram facere = 'to borrow from one man to pay another.' Geta means that he has got the money for Phaedria at the expense of a new complication about Phanium, for which he will have to pay the penalty.

781. in diem abiit, 'is put off for the moment.' Cf. in diem vivere.

plagae crescunt, 'my score of stripes is running up.'

783. eius, sc. Nausistrata, see stage direction.

ACT IV. SCENE 2. [V. 3.]

Demipho re-appears from his brother's house escorting Nausistrata, who has consented to inform Phanium of the proposed arrangements. Nausistrata is eloquent on the feebleness of Chremes as compared with her former husband.

784. age dum. Cf. 594 note.

786. re dudum, 'just now with your money.' Cf. 681, and for dudum 289 note.

787. factum volo, 'you are very welcome,' lit. 'I wish it done.' Distinguish factum volo, 'I am glad it is so;' factum velim, 'I hope it may be so;' factum vellem, 'I wish it were so.' So too factum nolo, etc.

788. quid autem? 'why, what do you mean?' Cf. 503 note.

790. statim, 'regularly,' only ante-classical in this case.

The subject of capiebat is Nausistrata's father.

vir viro quid praestat! 'what a difference there is in men!'

791. 'Yes, two talents, and that when prices were much lower.'

792. quid haec videntur? scilicet. This question and answer are obscure. The meaning may be, (1) 'What do you think of this?' 'Of course you are right:.' or (2) 'What! do you think so?' (referring to Demipho's hui! of admiration). 'Of course I do.' Hence Colman's translation, 'What! are you surprised?' 'Prodigiously.' In any case Demipho's scilicet is not likely to be either ironical or absent, as supposed by some, since he is very anxious to pay Nausistrata every attention.

natum, the reading of *A*₂ is more characteristic of Nausistrata than natam.

793. parce sodes, 'please spare yourself.' Cf. 103 note.

794. cum illa, sc. conloqui. Demipho expected a scene.

795. abs te. Cf. 732 note.

ACT IV. SCENE 3. [V. 3.]

As Demipho and Nausistrata approach the house, Chremes comes out in great excitement from an interview with his daughter. He wants of course to stop any further proceedings with reference to Phanium, but finding Nausistrata with Demipho he cannot explain matters. Demipho gets impatient and Nausistrata suspicious at his inexplicable conduct and manifest agitation, and only with great difficulty does Chremes get his wife safely back into her own house, so that he can impart to his brother the news which he has been bursting to tell.

796. nollem datum. Cf. 787 note.

797. paene, sc. dixi. Cf. 440 note.

798. iam recte, 'it's all right.' Cf. 812.

quid tu? introduces a new point like quid? cf. 64 note, and quid ais? cf. 199 note.

locutus, sub. es, which is read by the Calliopian MSS.

istac = Phanium; hanc = Nausistrata.

799. qui, 'how?' Cf. 123 note.

800. 'est cordi,' 'is dear to,' a common phrase.

nostra, sc. refert. Cf. 940.

801. sic erit, 'so it will prove:.' an idiomatic form of confident asseveration which may refer to the past, e. g. Heaut. 1014 subditum se suspicatur. CH. Subditum, ain tu? SO. Sic erit, the present as here, and of course the future, e. g. Ad. 182.

803. Au! with Hiatus, not elided as in 754.

ne nega. Cf. 664.

804. aliud dictum est, 'was wrongly given.'

hoc, 'about this : ' Acc. of respect.

806. miror quid siet, 'I wonder what it's all about.' Nausistrata has been observing with growing suspicion her husband's manifest perturbation and his anxiety to stop any conversation on the subject. Cf. 313 note.

807. ita . . . ut, thus used in strong asseverations, literally, 'may Jupiter so preserve me according as . . . ' Cf. Roby 715 f.

809. aut scire aut nescire hoc, 'know the truth or falsehood of this matter.' That Nausistrata should be present at any enquiry of the sort is of course what Chremes most dreads.

811. vin satis . . . esse? 'do you wish me to ask no further questions about it?'

quid. Cf. 798 note.

illa filia, Abl., cf. 137 note. Demipho, in the presence of Nausistrata, thus alludes to Chremes' Lemnian daughter.

812. hanc igitur mittimus? 'Then are we to drop her?' i.e. give up our plan of marrying her to Antipho. For the tense see 447 note: here mittimus is co-ordinate with maneant.

813. quid ni? 'certainly.' illa, i.e. Phanium.

814. in omnis, 'for all parties.'

815. perliberalis, 'very lady-like.' Cf. 558 note.

817. di nos respiciunt, 'it is quite providential.' Cf. 854.

818. potuit, 'was it possible.' Cf. 303 note.

ACT IV. SCENE 4. [V. 4.]

In a short soliloquy Antipho contrasts his cousin's happiness, secured by thirty minae, and his own wretchedness, from which there seems no escape.

820. ut is usually said to be here equivalent to ut ut, 'however,' as 468; but it makes good sense = 'considering that.' Antipho is glad that his cousin's anxiety is relieved since his own is so pressing.

fratri = patrui, a cousin on his father's side.

821. scitum, 'sensible.' Cf. 110 note.

822. sient, Subjunctive, because the statement is general and indefinite.

mederi governs a dative elsewhere, and this may merely be a case of Inverse Attraction. See, however, Verg. A. 7. 756 sed non Dardaniae medicari cuspidis ictum Evaluit.

823. simul = simul ac.

825. si hoc celetur, Subjunctive, because he does not think it will remain secret.

sin patefit, Indicative, because he believes it will be revealed. Note that when facio is compounded with prepositions it modifies the vowel of the stem and forms its Passive regularly, e. g. inficior; when connected with other parts of speech the a is not modified and the Passive is in fiō, such not being regarded as true compounds.

827. habendae, 'of keeping,' like Gr. ἔχειν. Cf. 880.

ACT IV. SCENE 5. [V. 5.]

Phormio enters, congratulating himself on the successful result of his plans for Phaedria. He now intends to leave town in order to enjoy a few days quiet drinking.

830. propria ut poteretur, 'should gain her as his own,' i. e. should make her his wife, which could not have been done had she remained a slave. Cf. 469.

Phaedriā. The final a in Greek names is usually long in Terence, except in dissyllables, e. g. Getā.

emissa est manu, 'she has been freed.'

831-2. otium ab senibus, 'some peace from the old gentlemen.'

aliquot hos sumam dies, 'I will take these next few days,' sc. as a holiday.

833. quid ais? quid? 'what now? what do you mean?'

835. partis tuas. Cf. 215-17.

836. suas, sc. partes. Cf. 266-6.

rursum, 'in return' (re-vorsum).

837. ire. Cf. 532 note.

Sunium, the southern promontory of Attica. There was in the deme a prosperous town, owing to the silver mines of Laurium, a strong fort built during the Peloponnesian war, and a celebrated temple of Athena overlooking the sea.

838. emptum, Supine.

839. conficere, 'that I am making short work of.'

840. ostium concrepuit. Greek doors opened outwards, and so it was customary before leaving a house to knock against the door as a warning to persons in the street. The door was said crepare, concrepare, Gr. ψοφεῖν. A person knocking from within or without was said pellere fores, Gr. κόπτειν, κρούειν, or if violent, pulsare, pultare, Gr. ἀπάσσειν. Tr. 'There is a knocking at the door.'

abs te, 'at your house.' Cf. 188, 732 notes.

ACT IV. SCENE 6. [V. 6.]

Geta suddenly issues from the house of Demipho in great excitement. By some adroit eavesdropping he has learnt the secret about Chremes' Lemnian daughter and her identity with Phanium. All this he relates to Phormio and Phaedria.

841. O Fortuna, O Fors Fortuna, 'O luck! O great good luck!' Fors Fortuna, the goddess of good luck, had a separate temple on the right bank of the Tiber distinct from that of Fortuna: the verbs therefore are plural. The Asyndeton is natural in such excited speech.

842. meo ero, Dat. commodi.

843. quidnam hic sibi volt? 'whatever does the fellow mean?' a colloquial phrase frequent in Terence. The ordinary meaning of velle aliquid alicui is 'to want' or 'to wish something for some one.' Cf. 946.

844. mihi cesso, 'I am wasting my time,' lit. 'I am loitering to my own injury.'

umerum. Cf. 39 note.

pallio. Slaves out of doors sometimes wore a coarse outer garment, the lower fold of which would be thrown over the shoulder when they wanted to make haste.

845. contigerint. We should have expected ut quae contigerint sciat, or ut haec quae contigerunt sciat. The Subjunctive may perhaps depend on the idea of the character of the news to be imparted rather than the mere fact.

847. em tibi! 'there you are again!' Cf. 52 note.

848. It seems to have been a common practical joke to delay slaves when in a hurry in order to get them into trouble. It is a stock incident in Terentian comedy. Cf. 195.

849. pergit hercle, 'he's going on, by Jove.'

numquam tu odio tuo me vinces, 'you will never get the better of me by boring me.'

850. vapula, 'go and be hanged,' a colloquial phrase.

verbero. Cf. 684.

851. familiariorem, 'one of the family.' Cf. 721.

852. actutum, 'immediately,' common in Plautus, but occurs only once each in Cicero and Livy.

853. O is elided. See Introduction, p. 31.

quantum est qui vivont. Cf. the common phrase quicquid est deorum. Tr. 'the happiest man alive.'

homo hominum, thus doubled for the sake of emphasis.

854. ab dis solus diligere. Cf. And. 973 solus est quem diligant di.

855. qui, 'how?' 'why?' Cf. 123 note, 878.
 856. satinet? 'is it not enough?' Cf. 119 note.
 delibutum gaudio, 'over head and ears in joy:' lit. 'smeared over.'
 enicas. Cf. 384.
 857. quin. Cf. 209 note.
 cedo. Cf. 197 note.
 858. tu quoque aderas? 'you were there all the time, were you?'
 a colloquial use of the Imperfect. Cf. 945. accipe, em! 'listen, here goes!'
 859. recta, sc. via.
 862. gynaeceum, Gr. γυναικεῖον. The women's apartments were at the back of the house, beyond the αὐλή or central hall.
 863. pone, 'behind,' rare in Augustan Latin. Cf. Verg. A. 2. 725 pone subit conjux.
 864. eram, sc. Phanium.
 865. Sophrona. Cf. 830 note.
 867. suspenso gradu, 'on tip-toe.'
 869. captans, 'trying to catch.' Cf. Ov. Met. 10. 41-2 Flebant exsangues animae: . . . nec Tantalus undam Captavit refugam.
 871. mirificissimum. In Augustan Latin adjectives in -ficus, -dicus, -volus are compared -entior, -entissimus.
 873. clanculum, 'secretly:' a diminutive from clam. Note the unusual distance of cum from its noun matre.
 874. somnium. Cf. 494.
 utin haec ignoraret. Cf. 304 note.
 877. inaudivi, 'I have heard some whispers of.'
 etiam dabo, 'I will tell you something more.'
 880. adhibendae. Cf. 827.
 882. quin ergo. Cf. 209, 685 notes.
 fecero, 'no sooner said than done.' Cf. 516.
 883. bene factum gaudeo, 'I am delighted that all has gone well.'

ACT IV. SCENE 7. [V. 7.]

In the short soliloquy which closes the Act, Phormio prepares the audience for a new development of the plot. Armed with Geta's information, he sees his way to secure Phaedria from all trouble of returning the thirty minae, and himself from fulfilling the compact whereby the money was obtained.

884. datam, sc. esse. Cf. 153 note.

885-6. eludendi . . . adimere. Note the change of construction. For adimere after occasio cf. And. 56 studium alere.

888-9. 'For as this same money has been given to Phaedria, so it shall remain, say they what they will : ' i. e. Phormio will prevent the old gentlemen from getting back the money which they paid to get Phanium taken off their hands by Phormio, but which had been actually applied to the purchase of Phaedria's lady-love.

hoc qui cogam, re ipsa repperi, 'I have discovered means to force them to this from the course events have taken.'

qui. Cf. 123 note.

891. angiportum hoc proximum, 'this alley hard by.' Both angiportus mas. of the fourth decl. and angiportum, neut. of the second decl. were in use. The term was applied to those passages leading off the streets through a doorway, common in most old towns. Sometimes such a passage was a thoroughfare, sometimes a 'cul de sac.'

893. non eo. Cf. 447 note.

ACT V. SCENE 1 [8].

On the reappearance of Chremes and Demipho from their interview with Phanium, Phormio puts his new scheme into execution. He comes to fulfil his engagement like a 'man of honour.' Demipho makes very lame excuses to annul the compact and demand back the thirty minae. The parasite affects righteous indignation. He has already paid away the money, and broken off his engagement in order to marry Phanium. If now this is not to be, the dowry at least must remain with him as satisfaction for the false position in which their indecision has placed him. Demipho waxes very angry and threatens summary justice; whereupon Phormio discloses his knowledge of the Lemnian intrigue. Chremes is utterly crushed. His brother urges him to make a clean breast of the affair to Nausistrata, and promises his mediation. Stung almost to frenzy by Phormio's taunts, Demipho tries to drag him off to the law-court. The parasite on his side attempts to get to the door of Chremes' house. There ensues a violent struggle, ended by the appearance of Nausistrata, who has heard the stentorian shouts of Phormio.

894. gratias habeo atque ago. The regular usage was to say gratiam habeo, but gratias ago.

896. This line is found in the MSS. after 905, where it is almost certainly misplaced by a copyist's error.

oppido. Cf. 317.

897. quantum potest. Cf. 674.

898. dilapidat, 'pitches away,' sc. like stones, 'makes ducks and drakes of it:' not found elsewhere in any classical writer.

903. recepissem, 'I had undertaken.'

905. ut mi esset fides, 'to preserve my honour.'

906. idque adeo. Cf. 389.

908. ita uti par fuit, 'as was fitting.'

912. potuit, sc. dari.

913. eam nunc extrudi, so A, four later MSS. reading nunc viduam extrudi.

915. inluditis me. Terence constructs includere thrice with the direct Acc., once with in and Acc., Eun. 942, once with in and Abl., And. 758. Cicero uses both the direct Acc., in with Acc., and also the Dat., which last construction is found also in Vergil and Tacitus. Its usual meaning is 'to make game of; ' very rarely 'to sport with,' as Hor. Sat. I. 4. 139.

qui. Cf. 123 note.

917. redibo . . . contempserim. We should have expected redeam . . . contempserim or redibo . . . contempsi: but we have seen (447 note) how the Pres. Indic. may be colloquially used for a Pres. Subj., so that the use of a Fut. Simple for a Pres. Subj. need not surprise us. The Homeric student will remember how these tenses are often interchangeable in early Greek.

918. amittere. Cf. 141 note.

921. sodes. Cf. 103 note.

922. rescribi, 'to be re-transferred.' Both at Athens and Rome the business of banking and money-changing was carried on in the marketplace by men called in Greek τραπεζῖται, in Latin argentarii.

923. quodne ego discripsi porro . . . 'what? the money which I immediately paid away.' Note that the question is asked by ne, not by quod, which is not here interrogative.

porro. Cf. 746 note.

925. sin est ut velis, periphrastic for sin velis; compare the use of fore ut.

926. hic, δεικτικῶς, pointing to himself.

928. alterae, archaic for alteri. Pronouns forming the Gen. and Dat. in -ius and -i are occasionally declined by Terence like a regular adjective in -us -a -um, e.g. And. 608 nulli=nullius, Eun. 1004 mihi solae. Nulli consili is also read Cic. Rosc. 16, § 48.

929. dabat, 'was offering,' Gr. ἐδίδου.

930. i hinc in malam rem=i in malam crucem, 368 note.

magnificentia, 'rodomontade,' or 'injured innocence.'

931. fugitive, 'vagabond,' lit. 'runaway slave.' Gr. δραπέτης.

932. adeo goes with ignorarier. 'Do you suppose that even now we know so little of you and your proceedings?'

933. ut filius etc. depends on vis ducere, or similar words.

937. si porro esse odiosi pergitis, 'if you continue to be troublesome.'

940. dotatis, a hit at Chremes, whose wife was well dotata.

quid id nostra, sc. refert? Cf. 800.

942. nullus sum. Cf. 179.

943. educat. Terence more often uses educere in this sense. sepultus sum, 'I am a dead man.'

944. haec adeo, 'these very things.' Cf. 389 note.

illi. Phormio intentionally leaves the person unnamed. Of course he means Nausistrata.

945. eras. Cf. 858.

946. missum te facimus, 'we dismiss you.' Cf. 394-5 note.

quid vis tibi? Cf. 843.

947. condonamus te. Cf. 151 note. The Augustan construction is the Dative of the person.

948. malum! 'the plague!' Cf. 723 note.

ergo. Cf. 685 note.

949. puerili sententia, 'your childish decisions:' sententia is here used in its proper sense as an 'expression of a determination.' Fleckei- sen's conjecture inconstantia is quite gratuitous, as that meaning is given by puerili.

950. vōlō : vōlō. Cf. 123 note.

953. nisi . . . scio, 'I only know.' Cf. 475 note.

954. monstri . . . simile, 'it is like a judgment.' Cf. 705.

iniei scrupulum, lit. 'a small pointed stone,' hence 'doubt,' 'anxiety,' 'difficulty.' Cf. 1019, And. 228, etc. A neuter form scrupulum or scripulum is used as the smallest division of weight, $\frac{1}{24}$ of an ounce. Tr. 'I have made them uneasy.'

955. hicine ut . . . auferat. Cf. 304 note.

957. praesens, 'resolute,' a classical usage. Compare the English phrase 'presence of mind.'

959. The order is neque iam te posse celare id uxorem tuam; as usual celare takes a double Accusative.

961. placabilius est, 'it is the better way to appease her.' Cf. 226 note.

962. nostro modo, 'as we please.'

963. Note the Hiatus at the change of speakers, cf. 146.

attat. Cf. 600 note.

haereo. For the tense cf. 447 note: cf. 780.

964. hi gladiatorio animo . . . viam, 'they are planning an onset upon me in the spirit of desperadoes.' The metaphor in gladiatorio is of Roman origin. Terence very rarely comes so near to an allusion distinctly national. Cf. 16-17. The combats of gladiators were proverbially ferocious.

966. vos, i. e. Chremes and his wife.

967. quom, causal with Indic., cf. 23 note.

e medio excessit, 'has departed this life.' Cf. 16, 1019 notes.
suscepta est. Cf. 647 note.

969. ex re istius, 'to your brother's advantage.' Cf. 526 note.

istius may be dissyllabic of Synizesis, or the last syllable may be shortened.

970. ain tu? 'what do you mean, Sir?' A formula often used to express surprise, reproof, etc. peregre. Cf. 243 note.

971. neque sis veritus, 'and have had no respect for:' vercor in this sense with a Gen. is rare, but is once found in Cicero's letters.

972. novo, 'unheard of;' as often. ēi. Cf. 1030.

973. lautum, Supine, 'to wash away.' We say 'to whitewash.'

974. incensam dabo, more emphatic than incendam. Terence is fond of this idiom, which is probably colloquial, e. g. And. 683, 684, 703, etc. For dabo cf. 877, 1027.

975. ut ne. Cf. 168 note.

lacrumis si extillaveris, 'even if you melt away in tears.'

976. malum! Cf. 723. Note malum used interjectionally, yet acting as antecedent to quod. duint. Cf. 123 note. The line is identical with Pl. Most. 655.

977. adfectum esse. Cf. 153 note.

978. asportarier, so used 551. Under the Empire deportare became a technical term implying transportation for life, usually to a small island, with loss of citizenship: while relegare was to banish beyond a certain distance from Rome for a stated period and with no deminutio capitis. Tr. 'to think that such a rascal is not sent a voyage at the public expense.'

981. huc, sc. eamus.

983. enim nequeo, 'I really can't.' Cf. 113 note.

iniuria, 'action for assault.' Cf. 329.

984. ergo. Cf. 685 note.

985. rape hunc, 'drag him away.'

sic agitis? 'is that your plan?'

987. valet. Cf. 358 note.

non taces? 'won't you hold your tongue?' Cf. 447 note.

989. est ubi, Gr. ἔστιν ὅτε, 'sometime.'

ACT V. SCENE 2 [9].

With insolent triumph Phormio discloses to the outraged wife her husband's infamy. Demipho tries to intercede for his wretched brother, at first with small success. Phormio improves the occasion. He wins from Nausistrata a practical assurance that Phaedria shall be allowed to keep his bride, that the money paid shall not be asked for, and last, but not least, an invitation for himself to supper, to which they all go in as the curtain falls¹.

990. qui nominat me—? Nausistrata begins to speak while she is scarcely out of the door. Before she has time to finish her sentence (with homo perhaps), her eyes fall on the termination of the violent struggle before the house, and she breaks off with an exclamation of surprise. This explains qui, which otherwise would have been quis. Cf. 618 note.

991. quis hic homo est? 'who is this fellow here?' Cf. 618 note.

992. hicine ut . . . respondeat. Cf. 304 note.

993. creduas. All MSS. give credas; but the archaic form seems necessary for the metre. Plautus uses credum, creduas, creduat: also creduis, creduit.

994. abi. Cf. 59 note.

totus friget, 'all as cold as a stone,' i. e. with fright.

998. quod, Acc. of respect. Cf. 155 note.

1001. tibi narret? 'is he to tell the tale for you?'

factum est abs te sedulo, 'you have managed matters nicely.'

1005. mi homo! 'my good man!'

1009. hodie, 'in our time.'

1014. The order is non nego eum meritum esse culpam in hac re.

1015. sed ea quin sit ignoscenda? 'but why should that be unpardonable?' quin = 'why not,' cf. 209. Donatus, followed by Bentley, considered the phrase as an Aposiopesis, negare non poteris or the like being understood. Others repeat non nego before quin, sc. sed non nego quin ea sit ignoscenda, which does not seem very forcible.

verba fiunt mortuo: a doubtful phrase, (1) 'you are wasting words on the dead;' or, 'you might as well talk to the dead,' sc. as to Nausistrata: cf. Pl. Bacch. 519 nihilo plus referet Quam si ad sepulchrum mortuo dixit logos.

¹ In Roman theatres the curtain was lowered (aulaea premere) to the floor, or perhaps drawn under the stage at the commencement of an Act, and raised again at the conclusion (aulaea tollere). Cf. Hor. Ep. 2. 1. 189 quattuor aut plures aulaea premuntur in horas, Verg. G. 3. 25 purpurea intexti tollant aulaea Britanni.

(2) 'his funeral oration is being pronounced,' a sarcastic allusion to Demipho's feeble excuses for Chremes, which are represented as the laudatio usually delivered at a funeral, perhaps here suggested by sepultus sum 943, cf. 1026.

1016. tua . . . tuo, objective use.

1019. e medio abiit, 'has departed.' Cf. 16, 967 notes.

scrupulus. Cf. 954 note.

1021. quid ego aequo animo, sc. feram? 'how can I bear it calmly?'

defungier used as an impersonal Passive, as in Ad. 507 utinam hic sit modo defunctum.

1022. quid sperem? 'what can I hope for?' Fleckeisen's conjecture, qui id sperem, 'how can I hope for it,' is very plausible.

1024. magis expetenda, 'more attractive.'

1026. exequias Chremeti . . . ire, a formula used in giving notice of a funeral. Note the omission of the preposition before exequias.

1027. sic dabo, 'that's my style,' or 'such shall be my revenge.' dare=facere is common in colloquial Latin, in Lucretius and Vergil, less frequent in Cicero and Livy. We find such phrases as dare finem, cuneum, motus, ruinas, discessum, impetum, etc.=facere finem, etc. Munro on Lucr. 4. 41 quotes Max Müller, Science of Language, 2nd series, p. 224, 'in Latin it was equally impossible to distinguish between the roots dā and dhā, because the Romans had no aspirated dentals; but such was the good sense of the Romans that, when they felt they could not efficiently keep the two roots apart, they kept only one, dare, to give, and replaced the other dare, to place or to make, by different verbs, such as ponere, facere.'

It seems possible that such uses of dare as are given above may be survivals in popular or poetical language of dare from root dhā. Cf. 974, etc.

1028. faxo. Cf. 308 note. Two MSS. read faxo tali sit mactatus.

mactatum, 'victimised.' With this reading note hic; cf. 266 note.

1030. habet . . . ogganniat, 'she has something to din (lit. snarl) into his ears as long as he lives.' Note ēi.

1031. at meo merito, sc. hoc videtur factum. Cf. 1033. At first sight it looks as if this repetition of the same phrase (1031 and 1033) were due to some corruption of the text: but in the mouth of the outraged Nausistrata it is perhaps natural enough.

1033. minume gentium! 'not the least in the world!' gentium is a partitive Genitive, cf. nusquam gentium, ποῦ γῆς, etc.

1034. fieri infectum non potest, 'cannot be made unmade;' this infectum is a compound of in and factum, to be distinguished from infectus, Perf. Part. Pass. of inficio, 'I stain,' 'corrupt.'

1035. purgat, 'he apologises.'

1037. Nausistratā like Sophronā, Phaedriā, cf. 830 note.

prius quam is thus used with a Pres. Indic. when the event or act referred to is regarded as certain, otherwise with a Subj., e.g. Ad. 583 prius quam ad portam venias.

1047. discedo, 'I get off,' colloquial. Cf. 773. The persons among whom lines 1046-7 are apportioned seem to have been confused in the MSS. A omits satis.

1048. mihin is monosyllabic.

1049. summus, sc. amicus, 'most devoted to.'

1050. at emphasises the affirmation.

quod potero, 'as far as I possibly can.'

ecastor, according to Gellius, was used exclusively by women, hercle by men. Either sex employed pol. Cf. 735 note.

1052. quod here and in 1053 is an Acc. of respect. Cf. 155 note.

1053. me ad cenam voca. By a professional parasite this would doubtless be interpreted as a standing invitation.

1055. iudex noster. Cf. 1045.

faxo aderit. Cf. 318 note.

Cantor. Between two or more of the Acts of a Roman Comedy it was the custom to introduce a lyrical monologue (canticum) with a flute accompaniment. Cf. Pl. Ps. I. 5. 158-160.

Concedere aliquantisper hinc mihi intro lubet,

Dum concenturio in corde sycophantias.

Tibicen vos interea hic delectaverit.

Sometimes these Cantica were an integral part of the Play, and we learn from Livy 7. 2 that, in order to save his voice, Livius Andronicus placed a boy on the stage to sing the words, while he himself acted the part in dumb show. This boy was probably the Cantor, who came forward at the end of the last Act and said to the audience 'plaudite.'

Cf. Hor. A. P. 155 donec Cantor 'vos plaudite' dicat. In all Terence's plays the MSS. mark the Cantor by Ω. The actors are often indicated by letters of the Greek alphabet in the order of their appearance on the stage, and Ω was naturally appropriated to the Cantor because he always came on last. In this play the Cantor is Flaccus, slave of Claudius. Cf. Didascalia.

Just as in Greek drama the lyrical element became less and less prominent in proportion as the dialogue (diverbia) was elaborated, so we find that in Terence the Cantica are few and unimportant as compared with those of Plautus: e.g. in the Trinummus there are three Cantica extending over 116 lines, the longest being 78 lines, whereas the only Cantica in Terence are two in the Andria of five and fourteen lines respectively, and one in the Adelphi of eight lines, though traces of the custom remain in the soliloquies with which the young men in particular are wont to express their feelings at the beginning of their scenes.
